Edison's Funeral. His Industry Was There. His Songs, His Friends.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 22. THOMAS A. EDISON lay in his coffin, here yesterday afternoon, in his old-fashioned house, with tall pale green fern palms and innumerable flowers about him.

Sunlight streamed through many windows of rooms opening one into the other. In each were gathered intimate friends and relatives of Edison, old employes, and those connected with him in the electrical industry.

IN ONE ROOM, opening into that in which lay the large brown coffin, sat several that had known Edison for many years, some for half a century, and more.

Samuel Insull, of Chicago, one of the world's greatest distributors of electric power, was there, with his wife.

Near him sat Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company, and Gerard Swope, president of General Electric, and his wife. Charles M. Schwab was in the same room.

MORE THAN 50 years ago, Insull, a youth in London, bought a little book about Edison at one of the Smith newsstands, determined to know him, came to America and became Edison's private secretary.

Forty years ago, Schwab worked with Edison on the problem of concentrating New Jersey iron ores.

Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope are the world's greatest manufacturers of the incandescent light bulbs that Edison created. How many scores of millions of such bulbs they have made, they do not know.

MATTHEW SLOAN, head of New York's Edison Company, said that too much emphasis is put on Edison's invention of the incandescent light. Great as that is, his creation of central power plants is greater. Henry Ford was there with his wife. They had come from Detroit and with them Edsel Ford, their son.

Henry Ford had bidden farewell to his friend, both knowing they would never meet again on this earth, two weeks before Edison died. And Ford refused to look upon Edison dead, saying:

"I want to remember him alive, with all his power."

EACH MAN WAS proud of Edison's friendship or acquaintance and determined to make the honor known.

Ford, for years has been Edison's friend, in the truest sense, devoted, helpful in many ways, of which the public knows nothing.

Those that admire Edison may be grateful to Ford for all that he has done to free Edison's last years from worry.

HARVEY FIRESTONE was there, with his sons. He and Ford were Edison's two most intimate friends, in the later years.

President Hoover had planned to be present, but work in connection with the arrival of Premier Laval and others from abroad made it impossible at the last moment.

Edison would have approved the President's absence. He would have said to Herbert Hoover, who has known him for many years:

"That's right. Attend first to the business for which the public elected you."

But the President did not send to represent him any mere official substitute. Mrs. Hoover came from Washington, to the funeral and saw Mrs. Edison, and tried to comfort her.

THERE WAS a brief delay in beginning the simple service, and that, years ago, would have annoyed Edison, to whose active mind time was everything. But there is no hurry now, within that heavy box, with so many flowers around it.

Old men that have worked with him and for him, discuss the old days, in whispers. It was in 1873 that Edison became known all over the world, for his inventions in connection with telegraphy. And about five years later, the Western Union paid him $100,000 for one telegraphic discovery.

That was much money at that time, but all of it went to scientific experiment. Edison living, literally, for his work, could conceive of no interest in money, outside of it.

SAMUEL INSULL recalls that it was in 1877 and 1878 that stock in gas companies dropped violently, all over the world. Finance had heard of Edison's electric light.

But one good thing never hurts another. The world's gas companies are worth today 10 times what they were worth when Edison enclosed a little filament, to resist the passage of the electric current, and become incandescent by that resistance within a glass bulb.

Resistance has been a blessing to the world, supplying electric light through Edison's genius, and the light of liberty, through the resistance of courageous men.

INSULL SAID:

"Everybody who is anything in the electrical industry is here."

Everybody was there, owners of great private fortunes, managers of light, power and electrical manufacturing organizations, with values totaling many billions, and all born of that brain, so quiet in the coffin. As he lies there, 800,000 men and women are on payrolls created by his genius, drawing in pay $1,000,000,000 a year, every dollar paid by him.

No need of a monument, for such a man, but he should have one, a monument at Niagara, as tall as the precipice, with his

LAVAL IN U. S. TO AID WORLD STABILITY

KILLER HIDES, OFFICIAL SAYS

Believes Blonde Killer Near Los Angeles; Pittsburgh Woman's Name in Diary

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—Ruth Judd, the suspected Phoenix trunk murderess, is alive, hiding near Los Angeles and either communicating with her relatives or trying to do so.

This was the flat declaration today of County Attorney Lloyd Andrews, of Maricopa County, Ariz., who came here to aid the search for the 27-year-old "velvet tigress" whom he accused of shooting to death Agnes Leroi, nurse, and Hedwig Samuelson, red-haired school teacher, and shipping their bodies from Phoenix to Los Angeles in trunks.

A diary and a thick file of letters, all liberally sprinkled with references to noted persons, came to light today. The diary was kept by "Sammie" Samuelson, and the letters evidently were exchanged between all three women and numerous friends widely scattered in the United States.

In the address section of Miss Samuelson's diary were found many names, including Mrs. K. A. Menaglia, 1608 Benedum Trees Building, Pittsburgh.

One letter referred to John Barrymore, noted screen and stage actor, and his wife, Dolores Costello, on whose yacht Miss Samuelson was invited to make a cruise.

A man who signed himself Thomas Frelinghuysen and whose address was indicated to be Elberson, N. J., wrote Miss Samuel-

QUIZ SUBPENAS BARE VOTE 'PHANTOMS'

Only 40 of 97 Summoned in Election Investigation Answer Court's Writs

Many of the 97 subpenas now in the hands of county detectives for prospective witnesses for the second grand jury investigation into fraud and thievery at the primary September 15, apparently have been issued for "phantom" voters, the detectives reported today.

Only 40 of the 97 witnesses from "the Strip" and Oakland appeared in the jury waiting room today.

The county detectives reported to District Attorney Andrew T. Park many of the persons for whom they held warrants were unknown at the addresses from which they were registered for voting.

Each of the subpenas instructed the person summoned to bring his tax receipt before the jury.

Instructions to bring their tax receipts, indicated that the inquiry planned to delve deep into charges that thousands of fraudulent receipts were issued in an attempt to "steal" the election.

INSTRUCTED BY JUDGE

The grand jury started its work yesterday afternoon after having been instructed by Judge Frank P. Patterson. Among the first witnesses were Attorney E. Lowry Humes of the Registration Commission and County Detective David Drexler, elections expert of the district attorney's office.

That fraudulent tax receipts and registration will be the basis

HUNDREDS LOSE JOBS IN CITY BUDGET CUT

Drastic Pruning of Payroll Needed to Meet Demand For Slash in Taxes

Wholesale payroll slicing in many city departments along with "furloughs" to indispensable employes will be necessary if the city is to reduce its tax millage rate three mills or more, President John S. Herron, of Council, said today in an exclusive interview with the Sun-Telegraph.

At the same time Chairman W. Y. English, of Council's Committee on Finance, said he thought the three-mill reduction would be possible despite $1,386,700 in frozen assets in closed banks, $200,000 less revenue from the Pittsburgh Railways Company, a million less in other funds and $4,639,560 in delinquent water rents and back taxes.

Every department will feel the financial ax, both Herron and English asserted. No exceptions will be made. The largest cuts will be made in the Public Works Department, headed by Director Edward G. Lang. Within a day or two Lang is to receive from all bureau heads under his jurisdiction lists of employes whose services can be dispensed with. Only those absolutely necessary for efficient operation of the department will be retained. Four hundred, all of whom are on salaries, will be given furloughs without pay. A saving of $150,000 between now and January 1 will be made, Lang estimated.

STAGGER SYSTEM OUT

Herron stated definitely that payroll cuts to decrease the tax millage could not be made by the stagger system of employment.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Henri Prince, close friend of Mayor Walker and official interpreter for Premier Laval on his visit to New York today, was seriously injured by a fall on the companionway of the Ile de France soon after he boarded the liner bringing in the French Premier today.

Unconscious and bleeding from a cut on the head, he was taken to the ship's hospital.

PEACE GOAL OF FRENCH MISSION

Premier, Hailed in New York, Leaves to Open Parleys With Hoover in Capital

International News Service.

ABOARD LAVAL SPECIAL TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Pierre Laval, Premier of France, came to the United States today so that, he said, "our two great democracies together may search for and apply methods which will restore calm and re-establish equilibrium."

The frank discussion of world problems, for which the French Premier came to this country, began as his train sped toward the national capital, where for three and a half days he will confer with President Hoover.

Almost before the special train had left the Pennsylvania Station in New York, Premier Laval was engaged in a conference with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson.

It is believed the conferences will encompass such labyrinthine subjects as modification of reparation payments, involving a possible American guarantee of French political security, revisions of inter-governmental debts, drastic arms reductions, and international trade and currency relations.

U. S. PLANNING LUXURIES TAX

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(INS.)—The administration has virtually given its approval to a "selective" sales tax to be levied on luxuries and semi-luxuries, it was learned today following an exhaustive survey of federal revenue needs by Treasury experts.

The tax in contemplation would not be imposed on food, clothing, rents or other necessities of life, but would be restricted to such articles as radios, automobiles, matches and other products whose consumption probably would not be seriously affected by moderate taxation.

No final decision has been reached as to whether the "selective" tax is to be recommended to Congress in December, but it was learned today in the picture of government finances will be laid before the Congress. This picture will disclose the government's desperate need of new revenues.

NEW YORK, Oct 22.—(AP.)—While Wall street bankers were somewhat reticient in discussing the report from Washington that the government was considering a selective sales tax to augment its shrinking income, it was believed that financial circles generally would, at least, not oppose such a tax.

NESBIT POLICY AIDS BANK

The assets of the closed Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., will be increased by $1,000,000 as a result of the sudden death of Harrison Nesbit, formerly its president, in an automobile accident at Muirkirk, Md., yesterday. The life of Nancy Elizabeth Nesbit, his 21-year-old daughter, who was driving the car and suffered a fractured skull, hangs in the balance today.

The accident was held by the Coroner to have been unavoidable.

Mr. Nesbit was insured for $1,000,000 by the Bank of Pittsburgh, and the policies, with premiums paid up to March 2, 1932, are payable to the bank.

Gang Victim's Safety Box Yields Rum War Clues

More than $3,000 in cash, a title to an expensive automobile and other documents, detectives admitted, revealing his alleged underworld connections, were found in a safety deposit box of Jack Palmere, shot to death in Wylie avenue two weeks ago.

The box was opened yesterday on a court order. The papers, it was said, contain the names of persons engaged in bootleg and yeast operations in the Pittsburgh district. Although detectives declined to discuss their findings, it was believed the documents reveal Palmere's alleged bootleg activities.

A "tip" concerning "Little Joe" Spinelli, sought in connection with the killing of Palmere and Antonio (Toto) Argenti, alias Amarosa, whose blazing body was found in a thicket in Peterson Hollow, near Turtle Creek, the morning after Palmere's murder, was being run down by detectives.

Detectives were informed Spinelli had offered to pay off many of Palmere's creditors, if the estate did not.

MORE CITY CASH UNSECURED

City funds amounting to around $32,500 in the closed Bloomfield Trust Company may be secured only 50 per cent, Controller James P. Kerr disclosed today. He said:

"I think perhaps the bonds put up are 50 per cent less than the amount of the city's deposit. However, the city may be protected by a surety bond. I do not know."

Kerr declared that as far as he knew all city funds in other depositories were fully protected by approved bonds. No list of securities thus far has been found in the office of Roy D. Schooley, former City Treasurer, discharged by Mayor Kline. This does not mean, Kerr stated, that the securities are not posted. The audit of the Treasurer's office will reveal everything, he asserted.

CITY TAX CLERK KILLS SELF

David A. Rodgers, 46, assistant chief clerk in the city delinquent tax office, died in the South Side Hospital at noon today, a few hours after he had been found in his home, a bullet wound in the head. The case at the Coroner's office is listed as a suicide. Rodgers lived at 861 Crucible street, West End.

Rodgers was taken ill several months ago and since that time had been under the case of a physician. He had been working regularly, however, and was at his desk yesterday. He was well-known in the West End district.

According to the report to the Coroner, he was found in his bedroom shortly before 8 o'clock, the wound in the head and a revolver on the floor. Detectives of the homicide squad are conducting an investigation.

Rodgers had been employed in the city tax office for 17 years. He was married and had four sons.

Fingerprints of Babies Demanded; Juror Fired

A juror in Criminal Court, who demanded fingerprints be taken of 4-month-old twins and the man accused of being their father so he might be aided in giving a fair verdict in the case, caused postponement in a trial in court today and brought about his discharge from further jury service. The case was held over for the next term of court.

Albert Shmittau, 23, of Allison Park, was on trial, accused of being the father of the twins born in July to Katherine Werthmiller, 20, of 4913 Browns way, East End. While the case was under way before Judge Sylvester J. Snee, C. C. Geisler, juror No. 12, of 7504 Verona boulevard, Penn Township, made the unusual demand.

He said:

"Might I ask for fingerprints of the babies and the defendant? Otherwise my conscience will bother me when I come to render a decision."

To this Judge Snee said:

"You were sworn to try this case on law and evidence."

Geisler still insisted, saying:

"I have children of my own. I have taken their fingerprints and my own. They are the same."

Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty, the prosecutor, then demanded that the jury be withdrawn and the case be held over. Geisler was called before the bench and discharged.

MANSFIELD PLEDGES M'GOVERN SUPPORT AND CO-OPERATION

M'KEESPORTER AGAINST BARR INDORSEMENT

Speaks at Republican Rally In William Penn; Aides Give Independent Backing

William D. Mansfield, Republican nominee for County Commissioner, today declared he would work with and support C. C. McGovern, the other Republican candidate for Commissioner. He declared also that should both be elected he would co-operate with McGovern as a member of the County Board of Commissioners.

He made this statement at the noon meeting in the William Penn Hotel headquarters of the Republican Campaign Committee. McGovern and Thomas M. Marshall, Republican nominee for Judge of Common Pleas Court, also spoke. Attorney O. K. Eaton presided.

PLEDGES HARMONY

Mansfield said:

"I believe when the Republicans nominated McGovern and me they expected us to run together. If elected I intend to work with McGovern in the interests of the people of Allegheny County and it will not make any difference who the third commissioner is, as I will work with him also. I could not be loyal to the Republican party if, in the general election, I supported any other person than McGovern."

Commissioner McGovern said:

"My position is peculiar because of the 24-day uncertainty while waiting to find if I had won the Republican nomination. During that time I became a candidate on the Independent ticket. However, I am no different from other candidates on the Republican ticket who also were on the Independent ticket in the primaries.

"If I am elected I will help rejuvenate the Republican party in Allegheny Count. I intend to do everything I can to prevent the party from being built up at the expense of the taxpayers."

'PROSPERITY PARTY'

Candidate Marshall drew a laugh when, in the course of his address, he said:

"The Republican party is predominant in the nation and county because the people know it is the party of prosperity."

Despite the opposition of Mansfield toward an indorsement of C. M. Barr, independent candidate for the same office, there are candidates for other county offices on the Republican ticket who favor a conditional approval of Barr.

Their position would be that, where the voters did not care to vote either for Mansfield or McGovern, they should be advised to vote for Barr rather than David L. Lawrence, Democratic Commissioner candidate, or Louis Alpern, Liberal. McGovern, running also with Barr on the Independent ticket, has repeatedly indorsed Barr, but he is the only Republican candidate to take that attitude up to now.

M'GOVERN BOOMS BAN

Whether the influence of those favoring a Barr indorsement will prevail with Mansfield cannot be forecast.

In a speech last night in Stowe Township, McGovern again asked for the election of Barr, as well as that of Mansfield and himself, and hinted that the Independent victory in the county should be only a stepping stone to a similar accomplishment in the city of Pittsburgh.

It was the closest McGovern has come, either in the primary or general election campaign, to criticising the administration of Mayor Kline, now under fire in the courts.

Louis Alpern, Liberal candidate for County Commissioner, is "standing on his own feet," and has no tie-ups with other parties or candidates, Attorney J. I. Simon said at an Alpern meeting yesterday.

In a short speech, Alpern reiterated his assertion that taxes should be lowered in Allegheny County.

Senator Barr, Councilman Robert Garland, P. J. McArdle and Dr. Frank C. Ferrante, chairman of the Independent party supplementary campaign committee, will speak at the Mifflin School, Lincoln Place in the Thirty-first Ward, tonight. Barr and McGovern, with former Magistrate A. D. Brandon, Donald D. Mangone and Henry O'Neill will speak in Italian Hall, Baldwin street. In Franklin School, Wilkins Township, Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Smith and Attorney Clarence will talk.

ARMSTRONG FOR G. O. P.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Republican County Committee, today called a meeting of that organization for Saturday, October 31, in the North Side Carnegie Hall.

Armstrong and Mansfield spoke before the Women's Republican Organization of the Seventeenth Ward last night in the home of its chairman, Mrs. Mary Bayer, 1026 Warrington avenue. Each advocated support of the entire Republican ticket.

Other speakers were P. J. McArdle, council candidate, and Attorney Ralph Davis. The meeting was held primarily in the interest of Alderman J. P. Kearcher's candidacy against P. J. Riley.

son, addressing her as "dear sweetheart."

Meanwhile, police of three western states were spurred in the search for Mrs. Judd, when it was found the small automobile belonging to the two girl victims was missing.

Her nurse's uniform rumpled and untidy, Mrs. Judd was learned to have driven about Phoenix Sunday afternoon following the slaying of her chums, and it was believed she used the victims' car with a youthful admirer as her driver.

ASKED CASH FOR BABY

Here also a startling new line of investigation was opened up when it became known Mrs. Judd had told Phoenix friends she needed money to support her 5-month-old child which was in Los Angeles. It was the first reference to a child in connection with the woman, who married Dr. William C. Judd, 48, seven years ago when both were employed at an Evansville (Ind.) insane asylum.

At the same time California's beaches were being watched for the body of Mrs. Judd as a result of the belief expressed by some authorities that she might have eluded the vast police network through the medium of death by drowning herself in the ocean.

Patrols were also organized to search the mountains, the canyons and the bottom of cliffs.

FRIENDS' HOMES WATCHED

Her husband and her brother, B. J. McKinnell, both expressed the belief that she would not be found alive.

Many friends of Mrs. Judd were interrogated. Guards were placed at their homes in the hope the fugitive would seek aid from acquaintances.

Officers also endeavored to piece together a plausible motive for the slaying of Mrs. Leroi and Miss Samuelson, both of whom had been roommates of Mrs. Judd. Detective Inspector D. A. Davidson said:

"All evidence shows it was a case of insanity—but there was something that caused the mind to perform such a ghastly crime. Indications were that jealousy furnished the background for the slayings—but jealousy of what is still undetermined."

That Mrs. Judd had been acting irrationally for some time was disclosed by her former employers, who said she had acted "queerly" on numerous occasions.

MEN TAKEN FROM PARTY

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Officers delving into evidence of a party at the home of Winnie Ruth Judd the night of October 16 assert jealousy over a man, or men, probably caused her to slay her former friends, Agnes Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson.

The locale of the murders the following night has been definitely fixed as the apartment of the victims.

Corroboration of the theory that men were involved, detectives said, was obtained from a woman whose name was withheld.

The woman witness said she attended Mrs. Judd's party by invitation and that the hostess obtained two of the three men who were present only by summoning them, under protest, from the Leroi-Samuelson apartment.

REFUSED TO SPEAK

She and Mrs. Judd and one of the men drove from Mrs. Judd's house to the girls' apartment, she said, to get the other two men. Mrs. Judd refused to go in and asked the others not to tell Mrs. Leroi and Miss Samuelson she was in the car.

The girls argued the men should remain there instead of joining the other party. Finally, the woman told police, it apparently was settled amicably, and she and the two men went out, one lingering for what she said apparently was an affectionate parting. The girls then followed them to the car at the curb, but Mrs. Judd refused to speak to them.

Police said they had learned the names of two of the men, but were not sure of the third. The theory, they said, did not involve likelihood that any of the men were involved in the actual slayings.

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Dr. W. C. Judd, whose wife is sought in connection with the trunk murder of Mrs. Agnes Leroi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson at Phoenix, was an inmate of the Oregon State Hospital for the Insane from December 27, 1919, to February 21, 1920, hospital authorities said today.

The records show Dr. Judd was committed from Marion County as a narcotic addict.

of the present probe was indicated in Judge Patterson's charge. He declared:

"We are informed that there will come before you certain instances of alleged fraud in the procuring of tax receipts. I call it to your most careful attention.

"There may be instances where the perpetration of fraud has been cunningly concealed, or so intricately involved in the acts of divers persons that to place the finger of guilt upon a single individual becomes impossible and yet it is clear that concerted action of several has combined to effecuate an election fraud.

"To meet such a condition there is the crime of conspiracy, to do an unlawful act."

Fifty-eight persons, including high County officials, police officials and election board members, already have been indicted on election irregularity charges growing out of the September 15 primary.

His first role, under a Paramount Studio contract, is that of a fast-living young New Yorker. He will appear with Paul Lukas, Judith Wood and Charles Rogers. He said:

JAPAN REJECTS TIME LIMIT IN EVACUATION

Refuses League Proposal For Taking Troops From Manchuria by Nov. 16

GENEVA, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Japan's representative on the League of Nations Council today refused to accept any definite time limit for withdrawal of her troops from Manchuria.

His announcement was in response to a resolution by Aristide Briand, the French foreign minister, who is chairman of the council, proposing that Japan complete the Manchurian evacuation by November 16, at which time the council would meet again.

The resolution also recommended that China pledge the security of Japanese lives and property in Manchuria.

When Kenkichi Yoshizawa, the Japanese delegate, took the stand which he had been expected to take, the council adjourned until tomorrow evening so that the Japanese delegation could study the proposals and so that Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese member, could ask instructions from his government.

The Briand resolution suggested that China and Japan begin direct negotiations immediately so that evacuation of the occupied area could be carried out quickly and smoothly.

The council's action lacked the firmness which had been desired in some quarters, but created a favorable impression and aroused a new hope that its efforts to restore peace in the Far East might ultimately be successful.

The Chinese delegates indicated privately that while the Briand proposals were generally acceptable to them, they were dissatisfied with the length of time suggested for completion of the evacuation.

Planes Bomb Chinese; 40 Reported Killed

TOKIO, Oct. 22.—(INS.)—A squadron of Japanese planes has bombed 1,500 Chinese troops loyal to Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian war lord, near Talai in Heilungkiang Province, less than 100 miles south of the Chinese Eastern Railway, according to dispatches received here today from Mukden.

The Japanese military contends that the Heilungkiang troops were attempting to destroy a bridge on the Taonan-Angachi Railroad.

Forty Chinese were reported killed.

but would have to be based on discharging of hundreds of persons at city hall. The exact number or savings will not be known until Council receives the budget estimates early next month.

No concerted effort will be made, both English and Herron pointed out, to work hardship on the small pay men, including laborers, who work for $4.40 per day on city jobs.

On the other hand, they pointed out, unnecessary bureaus and activities may be eliminated. These may include, it was said, the Topographical Survey, work activities in the Bureau of City Planning and Subway Commission.

Denying that the city faces bankruptcy as a result of the present depression, English disclosed that a large amount of unemployment relief would be necessary to care for the wants of destitute and needy during the coming months. The money will be appropriated by Council. At present Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, of the Public Works Department, is working out an unemployment program in connection with the Allegheny County Emergency Association. More than $220,000 is already available for this work. The city furnishes materials and tools on unemployment projects, while the men are paid by the association. Herron said no plan had yet been devised to care for those who would be "let out" by the city, but "no doubt something would be done."

PAY CUTS SOON

English said general pay cuts in higher salaried city officials probably would be necessary, with the alternative that they work several weeks without pay. A 10 per cent reduction in all departmental activities was demanded by Mayor Charles H. Kline for 1932 at a cabinet meeting held in his office this week.

Council may curtail payrolls of police and firemen, Herron said he doubted if salaries would be sliced, but that the personnel would be reduced. This will be discussed with Public Safety Director James M. Clark on his return from an European tour soon.

Facing economic stress for 1932, the city will meet the new year with $6,561,260 in revenue tied up or uncollectable. Of this amount, $1,386,700 is frozen in closed banks. Four hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars collected from the American Reduction Company this year will not be collected in 1932.

TROLLEYS NOT TO PAY

The Pittsburgh Railways Company has notified Council its 1932 assessment of $200,000 for street railways area street paving cannot be raised. The same situation existed during the present year, but Council appropriated money to continue the work. Cessation of such activities will reduce the payroll about $75,000. There is $4,639,560 in delinquent water rents and back taxes. A ray of hope is seen for the municipal finances if the closed banks here reopen, according to Councilman English, releasing the frozen assets.

The staff of the Bureau of Recreation will be sliced, with unnecessary employes fired. Decision on this matter will be announced by Lang shortly. Band concerts and motion picture programs at playgrounds and city parks will be eliminated as an economy move. This will amount to a saving of more than $25,000.

The Bureau of Highways and Sewers staff, along with that of the Bureau of Water, is taking a two weeks' furlough without pay.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars in street improvement work will be eliminated in 1932, according to Herron.

LANG TO CUT $800,000

It was stated on good authority at City Hall today that the Public Works Department hoped to cut its payroll at least $800,000 for next year. This alone would mean a saving of more than a mill. Each mill of the city's tax levy raises about $750,000 in cash.

City elevator operators are now working week about.

Asked whether high-salaried ward chairmen would be continued on the payroll, Herron said:

"We don't know yet. The Mayor's order, however, includes everyone."

Herron pointed out that under present circumstances there was no other way to lower taxes except to fire employes. Charges for materials and supplies are fixed at the market price. There can be no cutting on those items, he said.

Aside from frozen assets, the city will lose a half million dollars from the deposits security fund and another half million on garbage and rubbish refunds. This means an additional loss of about one and one-third mills in revenue, making it necessary, in actuality, to cut the millage four and one-third mills to effect a three-mill reduction.

Dr. C. B. Maits, head of the Health Department, today said his staff was already low but that he would save expenses in every other way. Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of welfare, and Col. W. R. Dunlap, of the Supplies Department, said they were working on plans for slashing expenditures, but had nothing to announce.

N. Y. Man Inherits Legacy Left by British King

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—King Charles II, of England, was boosted into a tree by "a country fellow," Richard Pendrell, 280 years ago, and that is how Irving Pendrell, a Brooklyn insurance man, came into a $400-a-year legacy.

For hundreds of years the Pendrells have been getting the annuity, the only one of its kind in the country.

The $400, paid from the estate of King Charles in recognition of the service, had been going each year to George W. Pendrell, a retired laundry man. With his death at 76 his son had inherited the legacy.

agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, today verified the fact that the insurance was in force and declared that this was the first large amount of insurance to be placed on the life of a bank executive.

The policy was placed early in 1928. Previous to that time it had been common practice for corporations to carry insurance on key executives. A ruling of the comptroller of the currency permitted banks to follow the same practice.

The late Alexander Dunbar, vice president and cashier of the bank at that time, was largely instrumental in placing the insurance, according to Mr. Birmingham.

Mr. Nesbit's funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at his country estate, Alwington, near Warrenton. Burial will be in the Warrenton Cemetery.

ON WAY TO RACES

The former banker and his daughter were driving on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard when their car struck a parked truck near Muirkirk, Md. Both occupants of the car appeared to be carrying on a spirited conversation and apparently did not see the truck.

Mr. Nesbit was killed instantly and his daughter was taken to the Casualty Hospital at Washington. Her skull was said to be fractured and she was not expected to live.

Following his retirement as president of the Bank of Pittsburgh early this year, Mr. Nesbit gave up his residence in Pittsburgh.

Until about a month ago Mr. Nesbit was president of the Peoples National Bank of Warrenton. He was a member of the Warrenton Hunt Club and had taken an active interest in fox hunting since taking up a part-time residence there.

He and his daughter were on the way to the Laurel field race meet near Winchester when the accident occurred. His son, Scott H., and another daughter, Edith, had driven there earlier in the day.

While the payment of $1,000,000 in insurance benefits to the Bank of Pittsburgh will materially hasten the work of straightening out the institution's affairs, the amount is not large in comparison to total deposits which stood at $46,921,065, according to its statement of June 30.

OUTSTANDING FIGURE

The policies were written by the Union Central Life Insurance Company for $300,000; the Prudential Life Insurance Company for $300,000; the New England Life Insurance Company for $100,000; the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company for $150,000; the State Mutual Life Insurance Company for $100,000, and the Mutual Life Insurance Company for $50,000.

In addition he held private insurance for $250,000.

The policy with the Union Central had been reinsured among other companies to the extent of $254,000.

Insuring of its president and other important officials by a bank has become a common practice, it is pointed out.

Mr. Nesbit for many years was an outstanding figure in the financial world. In addition to directing the affairs of the Bank of Pittsburgh, he was president of the Highland National Bank, an affiliated organization, and served on the boards of directors of many prominent industrial corporations. These included the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, Copperweld Steel Company, H. R. Mallinson & Co., Inc., Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc., and Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation.

BORN IN MISSOURI

Mr. Nesbit was born at Osceola, Mo., in 1875, and married Miss Edith Herron, of Washington, D. C. He was a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the National University Law School of Washington. He practiced law for nine years before entering the banking field.

Mr. Nesbit's son, Scott, resigned as cashier of the Bank of Pittsburgh shortly before it closed its doors September 21.

COUNCIL GRAFT CASE BROUGHT NESBIT HERE

Sent by President Roosevelt To Investigate Bribes by Banks on Voters' Appeal

That Harrison Nesbit, former president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., first came to Pittsburgh under the direction of President Theodore Roosevelt to investigate the banking angle of the councilmanic graft case in 1908 was disclosed today by A. Leo Weil, Sr., president of the Voter's League, which brought the prosecution against the Councilmen.

Nesbit came to Pittsburgh as a representative of the Comptroller of the Currency. He uncovered direct evidence in the records of several banks that bribes had been paid to members of the City Select and Common Councils for the right to handle the city deposits.

PLEA TO ROOSEVELT

The appeal for a government examination of the banks was made direct to President Roosevelt by Weil in the presence of the Attorney General and the Comptroller of Currency.

Roosevelt, after questioning the Attorney General regarding his legal authority to investigate the Pittsburgh banks, made one of the quick decisions typical of his administration. He said:

"I'll do it."

Turning away, he walked across the room and then stormed back at Weil showing his teeth in a familiar gesture. He shouted:

"But if you are causing me to do this thing without just cause, I will get at you somehow, somewhere, sometime."

Nesbit was sent to Pittsburgh and gathered the bank evidence. In the mean time, the Voters' League had collected other evidence of bribery through detectives at a downtown hotel posing as wooden block salesmen. The various details of the street paving arrangements were recorded by dictaphones.

STAR WITNESS

One member of the old council, John Klein, a steamboat captain, Weil said, who was deeply involved and was unable to raise bail, decided to confess. He said; Weil recalled:

"I'll pull out the props and let the whole roof down."

He told a story which involved many persons prominent in public life.

Harrison Nesbit was a star witness before the special grand jury which indicted the Councilmen. Out of those sessions and the trials which followed came 67 confessions and convictions. Later came a legislative reform which wiped out the old Council completely.

Nesbit, remaining in town for months, formed acquaintances which led him to a connection with the Bank of Pittsburgh.

Savings & Trust Company, were unsecured. Search for bonds to that amount said to have been exhibited to Kerr by Arthur G. Burgoyne, former chief investigator of the treasurer's office, proved futile.

Kerr said the surety bond provided by Schooley to protect the city against loss would not be forfeited until the last audit is completed.

Efforts to realize on the bond for Schooley's failure to obtain from the Franklin company proper security for the deposit there woud be unwise before Kerr is sure that the city has suffered a loss on the transaction, he declared. Kerr said:

"So far as I know, no one has lost any money yet."

Kerr announced that the city's $690,000 in the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., which closed its doors shortly before the Franklin bank, is secured by $800,000 in bonds.

Moves to have Kerr make a complete survey of city payrolls continued, as Councilman Charles Anderson declared he would investigate ways to chop "dead timber" from the list. Kerr has said that he has not the time to probe the payroll lists.

Councilman Robert Garland, L. M. Johnston, of the Citizens' Committee, and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, of the League of Women Voters, have already strongly advocated a payroll survey.

Irwin Man Convinces N. Y. Police He's No Gangster

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Bert Miller is returning to Irwin, Pa., pondering the dangers that lie in taking a nap in Gotham.

Miller, 25 and a salesman, lay down Monday afternoon in his top floor room on West Seventy-eighth street. The only ventilation was a skylight.

Shortly before 5 p. m. his landlady awakened him to tell him not to be alarmed because police were walking over the roof looking for gunmen after a shooting, in which a gangster was killed and three detectives wounded.

Miller went back to sleep. When he awoke five guns were pointed at him through the skylight and a detective told him to get his "hands up."

He was taken to hospitals to be viewed by the wounded detectives. He was kept all night in a police station. His fingerprints were taken. His name went skirting over press wires. His father fell ill. His mother neared nervous collapse.

The police released him, satisfied he had no connection with the gunmen. His mother wired him to come home at once.

Miller's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. Miller, of Irwin. His father is a clothing merchant.

GIRL AND CHILDREN PERILED AS POLICE SHOOT AT AUTO

3 HURT AS CAR OVERTURNS IN WILD CHASE

Officers Fire as Driver Fails To Stop After Hitting 3 Machines; Driver Held

A young woman and three children in an automobile were imperiled by police bullets last night during a chase in the River road between South Side and Hays.

The shots were fired by police in a radio cruiser, who said a machine driven by Stanley Ozosky, 31, of 1925 Fox way, South Side, had sideswiped three automobiles near Beck's Run road and did not stop.

The chase terminated in Brady street where the automobile collided with a machine driven by N. G. Peterson, of 7337 Frankstown avenue, and upset, injuring the three children, Irene Kowalski, 10, of 1910 Sidney street; Loraine Walling, 6, of 1906 Sidney street, and Ruth Mathews, 10, of 1911 Sidney street. Ozosky and Minnie Kowalski, 18, a sister of Irene, were uninjured. Ozosky was charged with reckless driving.

Ozosky was held for court by Traffic Magistrate William Soost on a charge of failing to stop after an accident when N. G. Peterman, 7337 Frankstown avenue; Walter Teskey, 407 Hampton avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Manuel Klakis, of 710 Linden avenue, East Pittsburgh, testified he sideswiped their machines and did not stop.

Police said Ozosky had volunteered to instruct Miss Kowalski how to drive an automobile. The children were placed in the rear seat and the machine driven to a spot near Hays, where, police said, Ozosky made advances to the girl, who screamed. Her cries brought the police. At their approach, they said Ozosky sped away.

DR. SCHNITZLER, NOTED WRITER, MOURNED

Vienna Dramatist, Novelist Found Dead in Home While About to Start New Play

VIENNA, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Austria mourned today one of its greatest modern literary figures, Dr. Arthur Schnitzler, novelist and dramatist, who died suddenly yesterday at the age of 69.

He had not been ailing and was about to dictate a new drama when death overtook him. He went to the theater the evening before and took his customary walk yesterday morning, but when his secretary arrived at his study shortly before noon she found him slumped unconscious over his writing table. He did not regain consciousness.

ABANDONED MEDICINE

Dr. Schnitzler was a physician in his early life, adopting the profession of medicine to please his father, a fashionable doctor of Vienna during the city's pre-war days of gaiety. But literature was his real love. He abandoned his medical practice 30 years ago. His novels and plays have been translated into most of the languages of the world.

In his father's drawing room, as a young man, he met many of Vienna's eminent authors and dramatists of the earlier days. When he was 28 he published his first book of verse. It was followed by a volume of short stories and from then on there came from his pen, in quick succession, a number of comedies of the modern German school.

DRAMATIC WORKS

Most of his dramatic works have been performed in English. One of the best known in the United States is "The Green Cockatoo," in which Alexander Moissi, one of Schnitzler's chief exponents, played.

His "Lieutenant Gustl," which was translated into English under the title "None But the Brave," is one of his most popular novels.

Dr. Schnitzler had some noted brushes with the censor in various parts of the world. His "Reigen" was banished from the stage in several countries for a time and his "Casanova's Homecoming" recently won out in a tilt with censors in New York.

BARRYMORE AS 'ANATOL'

John Barrymore played the leading role in Schnitzler's "The Affairs of Anatol" in New York in 1912 and later the play was adapted for the movies, with Wallace Reid playing Anatol.

Dr. Schnitzler's grandfather could not read or write. He was a carpenter and changed his name from Zimmerman.

He leaves a son, who is a stage manager and actor in Berlin. His daughter, who was married to an Italian actor, committed suicide a year ago.

AKRON DOCKED IN PORT AT LAKEHURST

World's Largest Airship Passes Over Pittsburgh; Dwarfs Los Angeles

NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Slipping through a dark clouded sky, the Navy dirigible Akron rode into her home port today, nosed down to her mooring mast at 6:34 a. m. and was docked at 8:35.

Her huge fin grazed the top of the entrance as she was walked into the 800-foot hangar alongside the Los Angeles, now dwarfed by its sister ship. The Los Angeles requires only 656 feet of the hangar's space while the Akron covered all but 15 of the 800 feet when she was berthed.

Only a small crowd braved the wind-swept landing field to greet the latest queen of the air. Among the spectators was Dr. Hugo Eckener, who on several occasions had brought the Graf Zeppelin to the same port.

Circling the business section, the Akron passed over Pittsburgh last night.

As the ship passed over Knoxville, the home of Mrs. Clara E. Rodgers, mother of Lieutenant-Commander Bertram Rodgers, a certain light on the dirigible flickered, to let his mother know he had seen the high powered light which had been set up in the yard at 310 Orchard avenue.

After circling the Cathedral of Learning the ship opened its motors wide and continued in the direction of Lakehurst.

4 OHIO BANKS FAIL TO OPEN

Harter Bank Company, of Canton; the City Savings Bank and Trust Company, of Alliance; the Ohio Merchants Trust Company, of Massillon, and the Farmers and Citizens Bank of Monroeville. Frozen assets was given by the state banking department to be the reason in each case.

The George D. Harter Bank, Canton's largest, had assets September 29 of $23,325,887. Its capital stock was $1,000,000 and its surplus $1,500,000. Deposits totaled $19,520,748. It had been in business since 1866.

GUARD OF HONOR STANDS VIGIL OVER EDISON

Silent Troopers at Grave Decorated With Tributes After Simplest Funeral

By WILLIAM RANDORF
International News Service.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 22.—Six silent state troopers in French blue tunics and riding breeches stood as an honor guard today over a simple, newly made grave in Rosedale Cemetery, Orange.

In the copper and concrete lined vault below lay the body of Thomas A. Edison, giver of light.

At one side of the grave was a wreath of magnolia leaves tied with a green ribbon, a last tribute to the famous inventor from his friend, the President of the United States. On the other was a wreath of orchids, lavender heather and bouvardia. It was from Mrs. Hoover, who had come here yesterday, as had scores of notables, to attend the funeral rites for the man whose magnificent inventions earned him the name of "Friend of Humanity."

NOTABLES AT RITES

Simply as he lived, the great man was buried in the still, purple haze of evening. Only the family and a group of intimate friends saw the bronze casket lowered to its final resting place. Among these were Mrs. Hoover, Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, Charles M. Schwab and Gerard Swope.

Mrs. Edison, who so courageously had borne up under the ordeal of attending her famous husband during his last illness, did not falter at the last rites. As the coffin was about to be lowered, she stepped to the edge of the grave, kissed the casket, then tossed a white rosebud on it as it descended.

SERVICES SIMPLE

A spray of goldenrod shone amidst the many flower tributes at the grave. Only a short while before the burial, Edison's last triumph, extraction of rubber from goldenrod in such a way as to make it of commercial value, had been revealed.

Services at Edison's home, in Clermont, were of the simplest.

Edison's favorite music was played. There was a short prayer read by Dr. Lewis Perry, head of Phillips Exeter Academy, who recited a poem commemorating the passing of Edison and ending with the line:

"He is not dead—such men can never die."

Mrs. Hoover Returns From Edison Rites

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover returned to the White House last night after attending the funeral of Thomas Edison in New Jersey.

Her train reached the capital at 10:05 p. m., eastern standard time, so that she was not at the White House when the lights were extinguished as tribute to their inventor.

Lights Dimmed Here In Honor of Edison

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, stopped over in Seattle for 22 minutes today, long enough to get weather reports before heading for Salt Lake City, their next scheduled stop. They expect to reach New York tomorrow night.

Tribute of Darkness Paid Edison Over Nation

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(Universal.)—For one solemn moment last night, hundreds of millions of lights were turned out throughout the nation in tribute to the memory of Thomas A. Edison.

President Hoover's request that all lights be extinguished from 10 o'clock to 10:01 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, in homage to the inventor, was observed from coast to coast.

William Randolph Hearst, Jr., immediately after Edison's death last Sunday, suggested in a message to President Hoover that such a tribute be paid the inventor.

In New York, Broadway's White Way was dimmed, the torch of the Statue of Liberty was darkened, subway traffic halted and millions of residents sat in silent homage in unlit homes.

At the White House in Washington, lights both inside and out were extinguished, and instead of the usual brilliance, only the lunar glow lighted the executive mansion and grounds.

The voluntary action of those who wished to pay homage to Edison created gloom symbolic of the pre-electric era.

The tribute came on the fifty-second anniversary of Edison's perfection of the incandescent lamp.

Wife's Patience Aided Edison

Below is the second and final chapter of the love story of Thomas Edison and Mina Miller. It deals with the great Edison romance during most of the 45 years of their married life.

By BETTY SHANNON

It was during the long years of watching and waiting for her ever-busy husband that Mina Edison's love for the great inventor was revealed in its rarest form. She was ever patient and considerate.

It was in the year they were married that Mr. Edison began yearning to perfect a machine that would do for the eye what his phonograph had done for the ear. The next year—1887—he and W. K. L. Dickson, whom he assigned to the task, went to work on such a machine. In the two years which followed there were almost insurmountable technical problems requiring countless sleepless hours on the part of both men before the small black box peep-show, the ancestor of the present motion picture, was completed.

GAVE HEART TO 'JOB'

Mina Edison regarded her work of looking after the world's greatest inventive genius as a "job — one in which she gave her whole heart to her work.

Mrs. Edison is today, after 45 years of married life, a great champion of the home—that is the home with women in it.

It was Mrs. Edison's business to see that Thomas Edison's house was run smoothly and efficiently; that there was a minimum of friction; that the head of the house had freedom to use his house away from the laboratory as he wished—and that he had just enough of outside contact with people and things to keep him stimulated but not bored.

She up early to have breakfast with him at 8 o'clock so that he would not have to eat alone, and to sooth his ruffled spirit if anyone had dared to touch his newspaper before he had taken it up from beside his plate. And to kiss him good-bye, to hold his coat, and watch him off to his laboratories.

MANY HOME DUTIES

Busy all morning attending to her household duties and answering her voluminous correspondence, preparing speeches or looking after other matters in connection with the Playground and Recreation Association of America of which she was a member of the board of directors, Mrs. Edison was kept constantly on the go. She personally looked after her husband's simple wardrobe.

One of Mrs. Edison's occasional duties was to walk out to the barn to visit the brown Swiss cow which furnished Mr. Edison's milk diet of two glasses of milk every two hours.

ONE TASK EASY

One difficulty often encountered by other wives it has been Mrs. Edison's good fortune never to meet with. She has never had a hard time awaking her husband in the morning. Edison always was eager to begin a new day.

Mrs. Edison laughingly tells how, when she was a young wife, she became accustomed to having her celebrated inventor husband let their wedding anniversaries and holidays go by without remembering them with gifts. She asked him one day why it was that he never gave her presents of any kind. He looked at her in bewilderment, and said:

"Why, bless your heart, everything I have in the world is yours—why should I buy you anything special?"

He gave her all—the glory in which the world has just enshrined his name.

own light shining upon it, forever, and gratitude in every American heart.

IT WAS A SIMPLE funeral service, that Edison would have liked, and the music, that only his ears could not hear, would have pleased him. There was classical music by Beethoven and by Wagner, including the magnificent "Evening Star" song from Tannhauser, played by violin and piano.

Two other musicians, with old-fashioned organ and a violin, played Edison's favorites "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen" and "The Little Gray Home in the West."

Arthur L. Walsh, who played those songs, once made a violin record for Edison 17 years ago, to be recorded on Edison's phonograph. Then Edison made Walsh vice president of his companies. He said:

"A man who can do one thing well can do other things well."

THE HOUSE is not big, those that brought from Mrs. Edison a request to attend were alone admitted, and all space available was filled. Thousands that gathered without, and stood reverently, should know that to admit them would have been impossible.

During the musical service which lasted half an hour, the old men, white, bent, and tired, and the women with wrinkled cheeks, looked down, in sorrow, as they listened. The young, of whom a few were present, lifted their eyes and looked far away. Their time is distant.

WALSH, WHO played the favorite songs of his benefactor, with so much feeling, was reminded of the Arab who looked upon the tomb of Mohammed at Mecca, and then put out both his eyes, that they might never behold anything less worthy.

It was suggested that the violin should never again be played. Henry Ford, who collects violins, would like to have it for his Edison museum. But Edison would have said to Walsh:

"Nonsense, make it as useful as you can."

WHEN THE MUSIC ceased, two men stood in a doorway near the coffin, dressed in long, dark robes, the Rev. Stephen J. Herben and Lewis Perry, headmaster of Exeter, much liked by Edison, for his help in selecting promising students.

The clergyman read words that are the most beautiful ever written and that have comforted millions.

"I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in Me shall not perish."

"In My father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you."

"He maketh Me to lie down in green pastures."

"Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me."

"There is one glory of the sun and another glory of the moon, one star differeth from another."

THE HEADMASTER of Exeter in a brief, excellent address praised the headmaster of electricity. A brief eulogy written by Edison's old friend, Arthur J. Palmer, was read.

Then came the final prayers, all present, at the last, repeating the Lord's Prayer. Then the announcement, "The interment will be at the convenience of the family," and the services were ended.

ALL LEFT the house that Edison had left, days before. How strange to think that he would never see it again, every inch of it so familiar, never again use the steps that his feet counted automatically, as he started to his work, often at five in the morning.

In days of ancient heroism, many warriors died voluntarily, to accompany their chief on his last journey.

How wonderful to travel with Edison, if any were worthy of the honor, on his mysterious journey to that far country on which his thought dwelt, when he said, in his deep sleep:

"It is very beautiful over there."

You can imagine the powers of nature recognizing and making way for his spirit, on its journey through infinite space.

It is worth while to work for others.

KLEENEX

Disposable Tissues

DURING colds, if you use a handkerchief more than once, you do so at your own risk!

Scientific tests discovered 240,000 germs in a handkerchief used one time! Such a germ-carrier is a menace to your health. Don't touch it to your face! Don't put it in your pocket or in a laundry bag.

Use Kleenex and destroy

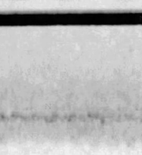
The safe thing to do is this: Use a Kleenex tissue and destroy. Thus you destroy countless germs. You use a clean, safe tissue every time. You avoid self-infection.

Don't think this is expensive. Kleenex is made of a marvelous substance, rayon-cellulose, that costs very little, but is softer than linen, and far more absorbent.

Kleenex comes in dainty squares, handkerchief size. Children like these gentle tissues, and should always use them. Children are particularly susceptible to nose and throat infections — and so careless with handkerchiefs.

A wonderful convenience

Try Kleenex for polishing spectacles. For manicuring. For applying medicines and bandaging minor wounds. Keep a package handy in the kitchen, bath and bedroom—and an extra package for the car.



For removing face creams, Kleenex has no equal. Its absorbency is necessary to blot all dirt and make-up from the pores. Kleenex is sold at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

DISEASE GERMS

that thrive in handkerchiefs used during colds include the Pneumococcus, Streptococcus (pus germ), Staphylococcus, and Catarrhalis, bacteriological tests show.

MISS VERA M'CORD

Rothschild Denies Actress' Claim to $250,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Maurice Rothschild, reputed millionaire from Chicago, insisted from the witness stand, before Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente and a jury, that he is in debt for $78,000 and that his stock holdings are worth but $25,000.

He obviously cannot, he said, pay the $250,000 breach of promise demand made by Vera McCord, former actress. He testified:

"I bear her no animosity, but I did not see her at all from 1923 until 1928. I certainly never investigated her mode of life in 1924, 1925, 1926 or 1927. When I saw her in June, 1928, she told me she was contemplating a suit against her brother, Don.

"She told me the suit was to force him to turn over money she was making on a picture. I advised her against such a move. I wanted to be her friend, and told her so, but I wanted to be a friend of her brother and the whole family.

"At that time, as I said, I hadn't seen her since 1923. But, in 1928, I did not, as she alleges, tell her that I was making plans to marry her and take her on a honeymoon trip to Europe."

Under further questioning as to his assets Rothschild said that in addition to his "vastly depreciated stock holdings," he draws a salary as president of the American-Canadian Properties Corporation, but did not specify the amount of that salary.

LAVAL ARRIVES IN U. S. TO SPUR WORLD TRADE

that the city tug Macom landed him at the Battery, where, for the first time, he set foot on American soil to receive the welcome and freedom of the city and the acclaim of the nation.

The French statesman took time in New York City only for a brief but elaborate ceremony of welcome at the City Hall and a hurried automobile ride to the station where he and his entourage left for Washington at 11:25 a. m. in the business car of George Le Boutillier, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which was attached to a special train.

RECEIVES GREETINGS

The pause at the City Hall however, was long enough for M. Laval not only to acknowledge the welcome extended by Secretary of State Stimson, by Mayor Walker, by Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank and head of the city's reception committee, but also to express confidence in the success of his mission.

In his formal address at the City Hall and in his conversation with reporters aboard the Macom, the Premier displayed an eagerness to assure the people of the United States and of the world that his visit to President Hoover is inspired by a desire to unite France and the United States "in an ever increasing co-operation," that "we may look forward to better things."

That M. Laval hopes to achieve a solution to the ever present problem of "French security" was indicated clearly by his assertion at City Hall that he believed that the American people, "combining their deep sense of reality with their noble idealism . . . will respond if necessary to calls which may reach them from the Old World." He then added:

"I speak in the name of a country which is determined to join its efforts with yours to ward off the dangers which menace our civilization."

EXTOLS FRIENDSHIP

Before leaving the Ile de France, the Premier had prepared a communique, which was handed to reporters. This statement extended greetings to the American people, iterated that "a great and living friendship unites" France and the United States, which "will be signally strengthened by the conversations" which M. Laval is to have with President Hoover. It continued:

"All governments must labor to banish suffering and restore prosperity; they must devote themselves unceasingly to the consolidation of peace, and it is to make my contribution to this noble task that I left my country and have come to confer with the President of your great and friendly republic."

Milk Surplus Feared, Ask Cows Be Killed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Dairy farmers are urged to destroy one-tenth of the country's milk cows to prevent overproduction in a report submitted to the Farm Board. The report, prepared by the Dairy Advisory Committee, an agency of dairy cooperatives, points out that herds have been increasing for four years, which eventually will lead to large surpluses and low prices.

BARR URGES TAX BOARD SHAKEUP

Reorganization of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, including a reduction in the number of members, was urged today by former Senator C. M. Barr, speaking at a noon meeting of the Kiwanis Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Barr is an Independent candidate for County Commissioner.

Three members could do all the work required by the board, Barr said, the personnel having been increased to seven some years ago to provide political jobs. Many of the members, it was charged, do nothing but draw their pay. House-to-house canvasses should be made oftener than once a year by district assessors, Barr suggested, that no persons who wished to be eligible to vote would be neglected.

He reviewed the scandals which have surrounded the tax board in recent campaigns, and charged it was a political agency. He said:

"There is no reason under the present law why the board could could not sit in various places throughout the county, such as McKeesport, East Pittsburgh, Braddock, Homestead, Tarentum, Aspinwall, Sewickley, Bellevue, Coraopolis and at various places in the city so as to accommodate all electors and make all assessments as easy and correct as possible.

"I believe the County Treasurer can and should have district offices for the collection of taxes. If there is co-operation between the Treasurer and tax board people could be assessed in their home districts and pay their taxes there."

TAX CUT URGED BY LAWRENCE

David L. Lawrence, Democratic candidate for County Commissioner, speaking yesterday before a meeting in Bohemian Hall, Port Vue, proposed the extension of the graded tax law into Allegheny County. The law is now in effect in Pittsburgh, Mr. Lawrence said, and added:

"In Pittsburgh the small home owner gets a half rate of tax on his house. This benefit should be extended to the people of the county. The present rate which taxes homes at the same rate as land, should be changed by apportioning the tax burden at the ratio of one-half on buildings. This would give the small home owner a reduction next year of about $3 a thousand assessed valuation."

Poll Charges Hold Homestead Officer

Thomas Gillespie, a Homestead policeman, of 608 Amity street, and Sol Pryel, of 216 East Sixteenth street, were held for court by Alderman Louis C. Wicks, of Oakland, last night on charges of violating the election laws. Kenneth House and Otto Stafford were held over for another hearing.

WELFARE QUOTA INCREASE MET BY INDUSTRY

Companies Accept Task of Raising Greater Amounts, Chairman Phillips Says

Recognition of the seriousness of the economic situation in Pittsburgh is resulting in definite action by the boards of directors of many companies to meet the higher ratings assigned them in the joint campaign of the Welfare and Emergency Fund, according to Frank R. Phillips, corporation committee chairman of the drive, who addressed the committee yesterday in the William Penn Hotel.

Subscriptions totaling $22,200 were reported as follows: West Penn Power Company, $7,500; Standard Steel Car Company, $5,000; Hubbard & Co., $4,200; South Pittsburgh Water Company, $2,000; West Penn Electric Company, $1,500; Diamond Alkali Company, $1,000; American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company, $1,000. Nearly $6,000,000 is the goal set for the drive, which will be held November 9 to 23.

Speaking over WCAE last night in his capacity as member of the President's Committee for Mobilization for Relief Resources, Phillips estimated that 60,000 men and women of the county, who are normally wage earners, will be without work this winter, and that 15,000 families will actually be in need.

William E. Quinby, chairman of the employe division of the campaign, announced the officers of his divisions yesterday. They are: First district, A. E. Oxenreiter, chairman; H. W. Leonard, C. R. Freehafer, F. W. Judy, H. J. Jackson and W. E. Graham. Second district, Charles H. Mathews, Jr., chairman; J. B. Kelly, Joseph McKinley, Malcolm McGiffin, Robert L. Forsythe and W. B. Wolfe. Actor, Cameraman Rescued From Surf

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Cal., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—An impromptu Hawaiian canoe race during a lull in the making of a motion picture here endangered the lives of Reed Howes, film actor, and Gene Johnson, cameraman.

Heavy seas swamped both canoes and plunged the men into the water. A lifeguard swam out and kept them afloat until lifelines were thrown from a nearby pier.

HEIRESS WINS OVER EX-CLERIC

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(INS.)—Betty Randolph, former Follies girl and heiress, yesterday won the $50,000 suit brought against her by the Rev. Bartholomew Chudacek, former Czecho-Slovakian priest, who charged she jilted him twice at the altar. The jury in Supreme Court was out five hours.

The judge had told the jurors they might render a verdict of 6 cents for "technical satisfaction" if they thought that way, but they reported in favor of Betty.

The Rev. Mr. Chudacek, who claimed he spent $600 courting Betty, was not in court when the verdict was returned.

The jury came in for instructions after deliberating almost five hours, asking if a marriage license constituted a contract. The court said they would have to figure that out themselves. The verdict came a short time later.

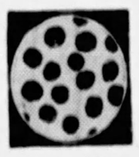
"clear road ahead!"

It's great to feel that way . . .

and you do . . . when the blood has the "feel" of enough rich red cells

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

It is a great protection to health and physical well-being to keep the red-blood-cell count up to normal. These cells build and sustain—they also remove impurities.



(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

REGARDLESS of age—be fortified with plenty of "red blood." That s-p-e-l-l-s happiness.

So frequently work, worry, colds and sickness reduce the red-cell count in the blood . . . then our spirits go down as the blood cells are lowered.

The process may be so gradual that we wonder "what is the matter" with us.

It is well to give thought to those invisible—yet precious red-blood-cells—the "ships," if you please, that "sail" in the blood, carrying nourishment to all parts of the body.

"That tired feeling" may be a warning . . . to are pimples, boils and paleness.

Why not take steps to overcome this trouble? A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

You should know that S.S.S. has the distinct advantage of being composed of fresh vegetable medicinal ingredients in concentrated form . . . it is Mother Nature's formula.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

ALPERN 'SQUIRE' TITLE FOUGHT

In an effort to restrain Louis E. Alpern, independent candidate for County Commissioner, from conducting his campaign under the title "Squire," members of the Minor Judiciary Association of Western Pennsylvania last night passed a motion requesting he be notified to stop using the title. The association held its annual meeting and election of officers in the William Penn Hotel, with A. W. McMillen, president, presiding. The latter said today Alpern was a former city alderman and if he wishes to use a title it should be in that sense.

Officers elected were: President, McMillen; treasurer, Margaret M. Morgan; corresponding secretary, George B. Shields, and vice presidents, Frank Halloran, E. T. Griener, C. B. Burns, J. McGinley, Arthur A. Davis, Edward Cassidy, J. Clyde Miller and J. E. Baer.

Speakers were Judge John P. Egan, District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Attorneys Thomas F. Garrahan and Robert B. Ivory.

A motion carried that the organization contribute $25 to the Welfare and Emergency Fund.

SLUMP BLAMED ON PARTY RULE

Declaring that the major issue in the campaign is economics, Donald C. Anderson, Democratic candidate for District Attorney, declared yesterday at a women's meeting in Democratic headquarters, that the depression in Allegheny County is directly traceable to uncontrolled Republican domination. He added:

"The outrageously wasteful Republican administration now in force has robbed the treasury of Allegheny County and the treasury of the City of Pittsburgh. In spite of newspaper headlines and the half-hearted efforts of the Republican District Attorney, this robbery continues and the daily revelations of its extent have merely touched the surface."

A number of other Democratic candidates also spoke.

The date of the sale is Tuesday, November 24, with hours from 11 in the morning to 5:30 in the afternoon, and the scene of the party will be the Hotel Schenley ballroom.

In charge of the card party will be Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Mrs. George D. Macbeth and Mrs. William Zang.

Mrs. Steim Gets Chairmanship For State

Of especial interest to the clubwomen of the southwestern district is the appointment of Mrs. Joseph M. Steim, of New Kensington, as chairman of juniors for the State Federation, succeeding Mrs. Maurice Snyder, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Steim, who was formerly district chairman of juniors, is planing an early November conference of southwestern junior presidents to meet their new district chairman, Mrs. E. R. Davis, who was county chairman.

One innovation which Mrs. Steim has already introduced is the appointment of a junior publicity chairman—Miss Clara Terwilliger, who has been doing such satisfactory work as chairman for the Tri-Borough juniors and for the district. Through Miss Terwilliger will go all publicity for the State Federation "Messenger," which, by the way, is to be enlarged and in which the juniors are to have an entire page each month. Mrs. J. E. Sickler, of Scranton, is the new editor.

The juniors of the state have contributed $1,000 to the American Foundation for the Blind to assist in the publication of a monthly magazine in Braille.

JANE REGNY SHOWS NEWEST MODE IN SPORTS CLOTHES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—It is interesting to note how certain houses excel in certain clothes, although every garment displayed is both wearable and smart. But usually it is either wraps, or sports clothes, or afternoon dresses, suits or grand evening ensembles in which each house excels. And to these houses we look for leadership in their respective specialities. Then, too, there are houses that are noted for conservative clothes, while others won't call it a season unless they come through with an amazing, even bizarre dress or wrap. Fashion is an amazingly interesting game as it is played here, with every house, however conservative or exclusive, striving to attract attention to its output. On the shrewd directrice rather than on the designer, falls the task of whipping up interest in her house and its products. And one can go from showing to showing without wearying of the pastime, for although the clothes are all designed for the same season and occasions, there is generally something different about them all and it is fun identifying certain characteristics of the house.

PRE-EMINENT in the field of sports clothes is Jane Regny, so much so that this house is the recognized leader in this division. And this year's collection sustains the supremacy of the house, as will be evidenced by a glance at the ensemble dubbed "Forestiere." The coat is quite suggestive of the autumn hunting season—animals, not clothes, and there is a grand casual, country air about the whole outfit. Mme. Regny has made the coat in rust and brown shades, in a medium weight woolen mixture. Especially good is the low-placed, double breasted closing with its air of drawing in the silhouette at just this part of the garment. The wide collar and wider revers may be turned up and buttoned high about the throat.

WITH THE COAT is worn a skirt and jumper of the same material with a tucked lingerie blouse in a deep ivory shade. Cuçular cut godets set in as vertical panels at the center front and back give width to the skirt. The deep collar and pointed pockets decorate the front of the jumper with pleasing effect.

To Avoid Grease Scum on Glassware

BY MARY LEE WORK

An easier way to do dishes and 2 other hard jobs. Try it yourself and see

Most women are troubled with a cloudy, greasy film on dishes and glassware no matter how carefully they wash them.

You can avoid this entirely with a preparation called Climalene—used according to the directions below. It's the same preparation that smart shops use to make the china and glassware you see on display shine and sparkle so marvelously... And in addition, it cuts dishwashing time in half and keeps one's hands lovely.

It makes two other hard jobs easier too—family washing and cleaning silver. You can get a package for 10 cents (12-oz. package) at any grocery store.

Women who use it save themselves hours of needless work. You too, can find time to enjoy life—shop, go to the movies, do many of the things you now think only a woman with servants can do.

To Make Dishes Sparkle Like Jewels

Add one teaspoonful of Climalene to a dishpan of water, use only ¼ the amount of soap you now use. It instantly cuts the grease from dishes and cooking utensils, makes glassware sparkle and china gleam. The Climalene-softened water, plus certain bland cleansing agents, cuts your dishwashing time ¼ or more—saves ¼ or more the soap you now use.

To Avoid Faded Gray Washings

Use 2 tablespoons of Climalene, and ¼ the usual amount of soap. Clothes emerge soft, spotless, utterly without fading. For soap fade and soap eat are ended this way. In recent tests men's blue shirts were washed 75 times without noticeable fade; sheerest French hosiery 100 times or more—to prove the blandness of this way.

To Clean Silver Without Rubbing

Add one teaspoonful of Climalene to 2 quarts of water in an aluminum pan. Immerse the silver—bring it to a boil. Then rinse silver, and wipe dry. That is all. All signs of tarnish disappear. Even the most intricate and highly embossed silver patterns are perfectly cleaned.

Why It Cleans

Climalene instantly takes all the harshness out of Lake water, medium hard water, and hard water. Makes it soft and gentle as rain water. So soft it does the work with ¼ the soap you now use. At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all grease, dirt and grime, and thus cuts your working time ½ or more, in washing, cleaning and in the dishpan.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

For coughs due to colds, the best remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes the inflamed membranes. At the same time part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SPAN COST CUT SEEN AT PARLEY

A figure "considerably less" than the $498,025 which it would have cost the county to build the Allegheny River boulevard through the property of the Pennsylvania Water Company at Nadine station will be the basis of the agreement expected to be reached at a meeting soon of the County Commissioners and representatives of the water company.

No details of the proposed settlement could be obtained from the County Department of Public Works.

The Allegheny River boulevard, which County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern charged was "an engineering bungle," precipitated a controversy about a year ago which never was settled. It is now to be adjusted by the building of a viaduct at the water plant, the estimated cost of which has not been made public.

TEST CITY'S AIR FOR GAS POISON

A survey to determine percentage of saturation of carbon monoxide in Pittsburgh's air is now under way and will be continued throughout the city for several months.

Dr. Charles B. Maits, city health director, disclosed today the city smoke regulation bureau was making exhaustive tests, separate from a survey being conducted here by the United States Public Health Service. The federal survey is being made in 14 cities throughout the nation.

The survey, according to Maits, was started to determine whether health of traffic officers was affected by their duties in automobile exhaust fume filled areas. Another survey is to determine the amount of dust, smoke and other foreign matter which keeps ultra-violet rays out.

INQUEST LINKS RACKET DEATHS

The racket slaying of Joseph Siragusa, 49, shot to death in the basement of his home, 2523 Beechwood boulevard, September 13, was linked with the murder of Morris Curran, bootleg supply dealer, at the inquest into the former's death today.

Testimony disclosed both men sold liquor supplies to the same persons.

Mary Lehner, 19, of 6673 Forward avenue, testified to seeing three men enter the Siragusa home the morning of the slaying. She could identify them, she asserted. Siragusa's wife and daughter were at church and found his body on their return.

The Coroner's jury recommended the slayer, unidentified, be apprehended and held on a murder charge.

Raider Shot Dead, Rum Suspect Flees

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Grappling with a man who was alleged to have fired at a state trooper, Claude Hamilton, 47, Nicholas County deputy sheriff, was shot and killed at Curtin's Ferry last midnight.

Hamilton, William Coleman, state trooper, and W. C. Smith, federal agent, were planning a liquor raid at the home of Lemon Hamrick, 18, at Curtin's Ferry. The officers said Hamrick began firing at Coleman and Hamilton grappled with him. As they rolled down a hill together, Hamilton was shot in the mouth. Hamrick fled into the underbrush.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

IT'S A TYPICAL Lew Brown notion, the story I give you today. If it seems a bit daffy I ask you merely to consider the columnist who gives it to you. Then, I am sure, you will nod your head and make your own excuses.

Suppose we go back about 20 years and find a little country gal who has been done wrong by the handsome chap from Broadway. Outside it is snowing fiercely. On the man's lips is a heavy smirk—and in the gal's arms a tiny infant wails lustily. If you have sneers, prepare to shed them now.

"But, Horace," the girl cried hoarsely, "how can you leave me with this child in my arms?"

"That," he smiled, "is for you to figure out. I did not ask you to fall in love with me."

The child-wife wrung her hands. "But, Horace," she pleaded, "how am I to live?"

"That," he replied softly, "is for you to decide. As far as I'm concerned, I'm through. You always suspected that I loved someone else. I did.

"I'm going to her now. My solicitors will send you sufficient money for your immediate needs. But beyond that—nothing."

The unwilling father gave his mustache a definite pat and strode toward the door. He slipped into his fur coat, placed his hat upon his head. The door closed with a bang.

The gal verged on hysterics. Her mouth opened. Her mouth closed. Her hands opened. Her hands closed.

"You," she muttered to the child, "shall be my revenge. Some day, somehow, you will repay Horace for this horrible thing he has done to me."

We cover the next fifteen years in a hop, a skip and a short jump. It is now the Fall of 1926—and we find our little Sam developed into a tremendously husky youth.

And small wonder. The unsophisticated, little gal whom we met in the first part of the story devoted all her energy toward an effort to turn her son into a perfect physical specimen.

He boxed. He ran. He swam. He tennised. He golfed. He played polo. No time was wasted. As soon as school was out, he raced to the gym.

And the kid knew what it was all about, too. As soon as he was old enough to understand, his mamma had told him about his father.

"He ruined our lives," she told the child.

"I swore that you were to be my revenge, Sam, and that's what will happen if you love your mother. Some day, when I think you are ready, you will walk into Horace's office. You will remove your coat and tell him why you are there. And you will give him such a beating as no man has ever had before.

"But your father is a strong man, son. So you must work and exercise and develop. I want to be well qualified for the task in hand. You must remember that in your strength lies the only revenge for the both of us."

For a long time, the professional fight managers were after the lad. Joe Gould and Pete the Goat fairly begged his mother to permit the lad to enter the ring—but mamma was steadfast in her refusal.

"No, gentlemen," she told them firmly, "I'm afraid that I cannot permit such a course. Sam would undoubtedly become a world's champion immediately, but I have no such desire. I have turned him into an athlete only because he has a mission to perform. He is a fighter—not by instinct, but because it is his duty. Good day, gentlemen."

Outside, Pete the Goat ventured a deeply, significant diagnosis.

"The dame's crazy," he observed . . .

One morning, while Sam was punching the bag, his mother took his arm. She looked deep into his eyes.

"My son," she said, "you are ready now. Go to your father's office and do the thing we have always planned. And remember, my son, revenge is sweet."

The boy fairly leaped into his street clothes. He kissed his mother fervently.

"At last," he breathed. "At last I can pay my debt to him—and to you, dear mother. Goodby, mother."

An hour later, Sam opened the door of his father's office. Outside there was havoc and consternation. The youth had knocked out two guards and placed his father's secretary in a closet. Now his path was clear. His father looked up.

"Who are you?" he asked.

Sam removed his coat and revealed his bulging muscles.

"I am your son," he replied simply. "Twenty years ago you deserted my mother and me. I have trained for our revenge. Now you must pay."

His father sighed.

"I wish you wouldn't annoy me," he said. "Please go away. I am busy. Go away, I say."

The boy stepped closer.

"Not until you have had your thrashing," he cried. "Stand up."

The father sighed again. He stood up, rolled back his sleeves, smacked Sam on the jaw, threw him down three flights of stairs, called an ambulance and then returned to his desk.

"A nice kid," he murmured to himself as he sat down. "I wonder which one his mother was?"

WAR ON AMOS 'N' ANDY :-: Chewing Gum Sponsor Prepares Battle

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

A BIG CHEWING gum man from Chicago has been disclosed as the sponsor of the million dollar program that will be pitted on CBS against Amos 'n' Andy starting Monday, November 2. . . . "Myrt and Marge," radio newcomers with a dramatic real-life story from behind the footlights, will furnish opposition for the Fresh Air Taxicab Company every night but Saturday and Sunday at 7 o'clock over a nation-wide network that will include WJAS in Pittsburgh . . . "Myrt," more completely identified as Myrtle Vail, is author of the radio serial . . . Donna Damerel will take the role of "Marge. . . . the sketch will deal with realistic bits from the lives of those sometimes comic, sometimes tragic "ladies of the chorus" . . . William Wrigley, Jr., has exhibited his usual wise judgment in booking femininity for this series.

Question a Day:

What is the name of the theme song used by Dave Rubinoff's Orchestra Sunday nights? — Georgette T., Columbus, O.

Answer — "Give Me a Moment," from the motion picture "Monte Carlo."

Studio Lights:

Things in the offing—Chauncey Parsons in a new program, KDKA Sunday at 2:30; Father Coughlin on "Prohibition," Sunday at 4, WJAS; Premier Laval, of France, in his first radio talk this side of the Atlantic, WJAS next Monday night at 10:30; Dennis King on WCAE Friday, October 30. . . .

Pitt and Notre Dame songs are to be sung by Billy Joy on WJAS Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, just previous to the Philco broadcast of the big game in South Bend, Ind. . . . tomorrow night at 10:30, Jock Sutherland, Pitt's coach, speaks on WJAS . . .

WLW plans a salute to the City of Pittsburgh for next Thursday night at 11 o'clock . . . why not send one or two of our better artists to Cincinnati as guest soloists on the program?

The sponsors of Arthur Pryor's Band haven't decided yet whether they'll give Bing Crosby a dance band or retain the present outfit when Bing goes commercial on Monday, November 2 . . .

The football situation took a sudden twist on KDKA today when the program department elected to take the Ohio State-Northwestern contest this Saturday at 1:45 in place of the Navy-Princeton game . . . Wallace Butterworth at the microphone . . . Percy Boyd announced also that KDKA, with Bill Farren announcing, will carry the Tech-Notre Dame game from Pitt Stadium on Saturday, October 31, independent of the NBC red network, which will be fed by Graham McNamee through WCAE . . .

Lou Abel's initiative in taking a microphone backstage tonight at 7:45, KQV, to pick up an interview with Walter Hampden and Fay Bainter, is commendable, and, we hope, an incentive for others to try the daring and unusual once in a while . . .

Sisters of the Skillet were only fooling when they suggested that movies might be projected on the ceiling to entertain customers sitting in barber chairs, but an executive of a children's home in Far Rockaway, N. Y., happened to be listening in and got the idea of throwing pictures on the ceiling so that sick youngsters can see them from bed . . . the "Sisters" have been invited to dedicate the installation . . .

Merle Alcock is to sing on WJAS next Wednesday night at 10:15 . . .

The new CBS announcer, Fred Uttal, got his start in motion pictures at the age of 10 . . .

There's Jimmy Joy, Bill Joy—and still more Joy for radio listeners in a new program planned for NBC-WCAE next Monday night at 7:30 . . . Alice Joy, an Illinois girl, has a low pitched voice hard to classify . . . it is neither contralto nor mezzo-soprano . . . just "low, sweet and vibrant" . . .

Ginger Rogers was successful in persuading her superiors that she be allowed to stay in New York another week . . . so she's booked for WCAE's Theater of the Air tomorrow night at 10:30 and with Rudy Vallee next Thursday night. . . .

What local production man turned red and purple the other night when (the script calling for the crashing of a light bulb) he threw the globe into a waste basket and it bounced out again unbroken and under a music stand where he couldn't retrieve it in time for the sound effect?

G. W. J., Ben Avon—Your memory is exceptional . . . the new hostess on Leo Reisman's program is Betty Council, who has played parts in "Mary and Bob" and the same girl you saw with Elsie Ferguson in "Scarlet Pages."

Today's Tid Bit:

Eddie Cantor, radio's small but active candidate for president, has signed to stay with Rubinoff until the latter part of December, when he will go to Hollywood to make more movies. Assured of an audience for some weeks to come, Eddie has been looking into the Chinese situation for the benefit of his campaign followers. He says he has the motion picture rights on the next war, and advises everyone to be in line when the queue comes.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Newest kind of broadcast is the airing of greetings between members of front-paged families separated by the width of the continent.

First family to exchange such greetings—members of the house of Bennett. Bennetts know how to say "yes, darling" and "oh my dear" with charm and feeling. It made pleasant, if pointless, eavesdropping . . . And wouldn't you know that such telephone conversation would be sponsored by the telephone poohbahs . . . Strange, radio doesn't cultivate more the spirit of eavesdropping. Family secrets, terms of endearment are seldom aired . . .

Automobile makers are crowding closer to the microphones. One company plans a parade of the states, airing music suggestive of or originating in each state The company will have an easy time with Virginia, Kentucky, Texas, Tennessee, Carolina. Wait 'till it hits North Dakota and Rhode Island.

Most expert piano team now on the air: Fray and Braggiotti. Nothing daunts them, not even "Yankee Doodle" played in the style of Debussy. . . . Wonder why broadcasters don't lead Zez Confrey and his dizzy fingers to the microphones? . . . It remained for Margaret Anglin to make of Longfellow's "Evangeline" something more than a school room sing-song. . . Book reviewers are massing in the studios. Best known book reviewer now on the air: Thomes L. Masson. . . . They say Ravel, of "Bolero" fame, is an ordinary pianist.

He may not know how to play notes exceptionally well, but he knows how to make them . . . Earl Carroll takes "Bolero" out of its chili con carne coating, makes of it a barbaric orgy. . . . Network broadcasters, watching their rivals, didn't even wait for Laval to reach America, aired his voice from Paris before he sailed. . . . Big symphony maestros are now beginning to stuff their wallets with radio money. Aren't we all? Who is left, unmicrophoned in America, outside of the gangsters?

Pittsburgh to Aid Washington Pageant

Pittsburgh and McKeesport will have a part in the celebration next year of the George Washington bicentennial, according to plans sponsored by Congressman Clyde Kelly.

The proposal is that each of the 75 cities which had post-offices in operation in 1789 arrange a pageant, depicting the advancement in transportation since creation of the postal service in that year. Pittsburgh was one of these cities and McKeesport received mail through the Pittsburgh office by stage coach. The first wagon route over the Allegheny Mountains constructed in 1774 ran through McKeesport.

The drive will begin November 9 and will have the co-operation of the civic groups of the several districts.

CITY, BOROUGHS SPEED BUILDING PROGRAMS

250 Men Rushing Completion Of New Trafford Road; Mine Contracts to Be Let

Construction work totaling approximately $500,000 in the East communities district is either nearing completion or has been provided for in recent contracts. Two hundred and fifty men are rushing to completion a three-and-a-half-mile stretch of pavement between Trafford and Larimer, costing $450,000. In order to construct this road, it will have been necessary to remove 250,000 cubic yards of earth from the "cuts."

According to District Engineer Kloss, of the State Highway Department, a $150,000 pass will be built later under the railroad tracks at Larimer. He points out that the new roadway has necessitated construction of $100,000 worth of culverts and bridges.

Public Works Director Lang last week awarded $20,000 worth of contracts for improvements in East End, and requests have been made to Council for an appropriation for a sewer in East Liberty and paving of Van Croft street.

Projects already provided for include:

Paving and curbing of Iowa street, from Cherokee street to Ewart drive, $10,431, awarded to A. F. Jordano Company.

Work on Twenty-eighth Street Bridge, $7,470, awarded to Cement Gun Company.

Fence to inclose Lewis Playground, Hazelwood, $1,588, awarded to Cyclone Fence Company.

Repairs to sewer in Passage way and Allequippa street, $667, James & Rocco Veryl Company.

An appropriation of $50,000 also has been asked from Council for the improvement of dirt roads within the city limits, many of which are in the East End district.

Rankin Council has approved an ordinance providing for the improvement of a second section of North Holland avenue, between Comrie and Corey avenues. Work of grading and paving, at a cost of $4,000, is expected to start soon.

North Braddock Council has voted to repair Poplar way from Willow street to Sheridan way.

MIFFLIN DENIED STATE AID

Commissioners of Mifflin Township have been denied financial aid in constructing a sewerage system in Kenmore Manor by the State Department of Health. The state department suggested in a letter to the commissioners that the 200 residents in the district install the improvement at their own expense.

The commissioners are prevented, they say, from carrying out the project because of their inability to issue certificates of indebtedness.

Nurses Pay Tribute To Departing Chief

Sixty graduate nurses, representing every class from 1910 to 1931, of Braddock General Hospital, attended the farewell party held in the home of Mrs. G. F. Long, Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, Friday night for Miss Amy Linsenmayer, directress of nurses at the Braddock General Hospital since 1926.

Miss Linsenmayer left Braddock Tuesday to take up her new duties as superintendent of the Latrobe Hospital.

N. Braddock Civic Club Seeks Charter

The North Braddock Civic Club last week applied for a charter in Common Pleas Court, giving as its purpose an attempt to better civic conditions in the borough. Officers are Edward McMullen, president; James Labelle, vice president; Charles Kramer, secretary, and John T. McGough, treasurer.

Pupils to Hear Band Of Braddock Firemen

Under the direction of Joseph H. Roney, the band of Hose Company No. 1 of Braddock, will present a concert October 29 at the Hartman Junior High School. Vocal selections and short sketches also will be included on the program.

SCOUT TEAMS TO COMPETE

Fifty Boy Scout teams of the East Boroughs Council will compete for honors at a council-wide first-aid meet Saturday night in the gymnasium of the Westinghouse Club at Wilkinsburg. The meet will start at 7:30 o'clock.

The contest will be held under the supervision of John Danton, Scout executive, and O. F. Rowe, commissioner of the East Boroughs Council.

Dr. R. R. Jones, chief medical examiner of the Bell Telephone Company and chairman of the medical advisory committee of the council, will be present.

Former Hotel Man Dead in Braddock

Funeral services were held Monday for Joseph W. Behr, 66, Braddock resident, who died in his home, 418 Braddock avenue. He was secretary for several years before North Braddock was incorporated in 1897. Now the present Hill town has a population of 17,000. SQUIRE, OFFICER AWAIT RESULT OF HEARING

Decision Withheld After Suit Buyer Accuses Pair Of Extortion Attempt

Decision was reserved by Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan in the case of Justice of the Peace John Metz and his constable, Jacob Esau, both of Pine Hollow road, Kennedy Township, at a hearing yesterday.

The two were arrested on a charge of conspiracy to extort on information by Lester Franks, of Taylor avenue, Avalon, who testified Constable Esau arrested him September 14 for failure to keep up payments on a suit he had obtained from a credit establishment. He said he had paid $8 on the suit, valued at $38.

Unable to post $500 bond, Franks was committed to jail and released the next day after bond had been arranged by Attorney Harry I. Miller. Franks averred he wanted to give up the suit, but his offer was rejected. When he asked Metz when he would be arraigned he was told, Franks testified, there would be no hearing and all that was necessary was a payment.

Decision was reserved when counsel for Joseph Cramer, credit manager of the store from which Franks obtained the suit, demanded why the prosecution had implicated him with Metz and Esau.

The attorney was of opinion his client had been arrested because the prosecution believed he had signed the information against Franks. Attorney Miller demanded Franks be given a hearing to learn who caused his arrest.

A Cold

Colds are common because people are careless. Prompt use of aspirin will always check a cold. Or relieve your cold at any stage. And genuine aspirin can't hurt you. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin at the first indication of a cold, and that's usually the end of it. If every symptom hasn't disappeared in a few hours, repeat. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. Take enough to give complete relief. And if your throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in water and gargle away all soreness. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for colds, headaches, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis. Millions who used to suffer from these things have found winter comfort in aspirin.

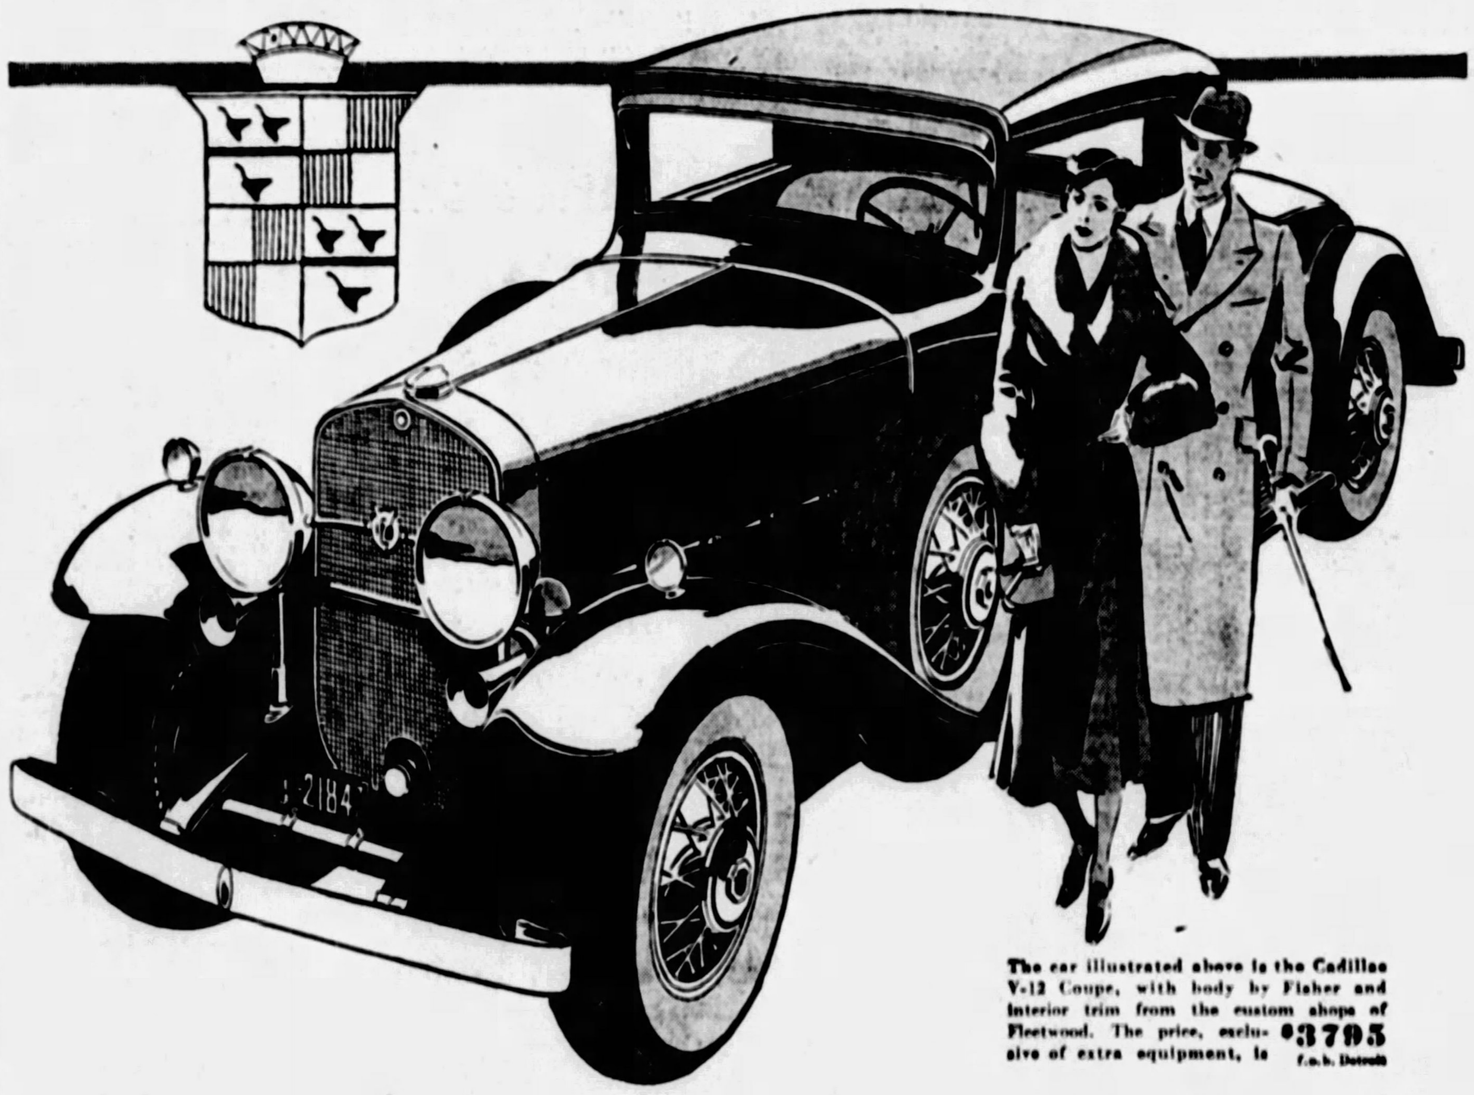
EVERY BUYER IN THE FINE-CAR FIELD SHOULD EXPERIENCE 12-CYLINDER PERFORMANCE



The car illustrated above is the Cadillac V-12 Coupe, with body by Fisher and interior trim from the custom shops of Fleetwood. The price, exclusive of extra equipment, is $3795 f.o.b. Detroit

The Cadillac V-12 represents such a tremendous advancement in every phase of its performance that it should have the careful consideration of every buyer in the fine-car field.

Never in the history of the motor car industry—with the one exception of the Cadillac V-16—has a motor car offered the type of transportation now available in the Cadillac V-12.

Multi-cylinder performance is, in fact, so entirely different that it simply must be experienced to be appreciated.

Have you ever, for instance, driven an automobile that was almost completely quiet—at every speed you cared to drive?

In the Cadillac V-12, you hear only the drone of the tires against the pavement and the swish of the wind rushing by.

Have you ever driven a motor car in which you were unable to detect even the slightest trace of engine vibration?

In the Cadillac V-12, you find it difficult to realize that your power is being supplied by an engine.

Have you ever driven an automobile that made you feel as if you were being carried along through space without the aid of anything mechanical?

People feel that way when they drive the Cadillac V-12.

These are unusual statements to make about a motor car.

Consequently we should like you to come in and learn for yourself that they are more than justified by the facts.

Teeth 3 Shades Whiter in 3 Days!

Now there's absolutely no excuse for stained, yellow, discolored or decayed teeth or sore, spongy gums. For science has discovered the way to remove the cause of most tooth and gum troubles—the millions of germs that swarm into the mouth with every breath—and make teeth gleaming white. It's called the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique.

Start using this technique—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush. Overnight you'll note an improvement. In just 3 days your teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades whiter. Gums will feel firmer and look healthier. Breath and taste will be clean and sweet. Kolynos is unique. The very moment it enters the mouth this highly concentrated dental cream becomes a refreshing FOAM which permits the use of a dry brush, thus making KOLYNOS 10 times more effective.

This penetrating FOAM gets into and cleans out every tiny pit, fissure and crevice. Kills millions of destructive mouth-germs, 190 million in the first 15 seconds. Erases tartar and stimulates the gums.

THUS TEETH ARE QUICKLY AND EASILY CLEANED AS THEY SHOULD BE CLEANED—RIGHT DOWN TO THE BEAUTIFUL NAKED WHITE ENAMEL WITHOUT INJURY.

Now if you want sound, dazzling white teeth and firm, coral pink gums start using the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Buy a tube of Kolynos.

MINERS GUILTY IN FATAL RIOT, BAIL DOUBLED

Communist Union Worker, 18 Others Held Pending Appeal in Wildwood Case

Thomas Myerscough, National Miners Union organizer and Communist party nominee for district attorney, together with 18 Wildwood miners, found guilty in Criminal Court of inciting to riot after a trial lasting two days, are to be released under double their former bail, pending their motion for new trials.

The 19 defendants, including one woman, were remanded to jail by Visiting Judge C. M. Culver, of Bradford County, late yesterday afternoon, after the jury had returned its verdict. The jury acquitted five men, under direction of the judge, because deputy sheriffs who had made the arrests failed to identify them as participants in the riot at Wildwood last June 22, when one man was killed and 13 persons injured, after many shots had been fired by both deputies and strikers.

Myerscough's bail had been $5,000, while 16 of the other defendants had posted $1,000 each. Three had been released on their own recognizance. Myerscough will have to post $10,000 and the others, including those who had not posted bail, $2,000 each. Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson, in asking the Judge to double the bail, requested Judge Culver to commit all the defendants to jail until they furnish the bail, and this was done.

The jury reached its verdict after deliberating for one hour.

Those found guilty were Myerscough, Mrs. Kitty Priselac, Joe Bluey, Anthony Chiplavich, Fred Miller, Paul Brasnk, Joe Koncilja, John Sherwood, John Lackovis, Mike Federoq, James Prescelac, George Halich, Joe Soich, Robert Young, Charles Adamick, Mike Hodak, Louis Hodak, George Knesovich and John Olrowski.

Those acquitted were Joe Rosetti, Gus Ignazzi, John Testa, Bil Chlmnoff and Stanley Miklowski.

Pittsburgher Talks on Buhl Foundation; Golfers Start On Annual Competition

By EDWARD W. GOSS
Real Estate Editor

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Oct. 22.—An address by L. W. Monteverde, vice president and sales manager of the Real Estate Company of Pittsburgh, opened the second day of the eleventh annual conference of the Pennsylvania Real Estate Association being held at Skytop Lodge near here. Monteverde discussed the Buhl foundation.

The convention opened yesterday with an address of welcome by J. W. Cree, junior president of the association and a member of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board.

BANK DISCUSSED

Of apparent interest to real estate men was a discussion led yesterday by Marcus Nagler, assistant director of the Institute of International Finance, New York. The subject was "A Central Urban Mortgage Bank." Nagler explained how such a bank could be organized under federal supervision as an aid to the average small home owner or prospective owner. The proposed bank, Nagler said, should be formed and operated in such a way as to offer long term mortgages and low rate of interest, instead of the present short term mortgages. The bank, it was claimed, would immediately appeal to the small real estate owner. The same subject was discussed at the last meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in Baltimore.

GOLFERS START CONTEST

The annual golf tournament of the association got under way yesterday afternoon over the 18-hole Skytop Lodge course. The Pittsburgh board's hopes of winning the tournament apparently depended on C. C. C. Stotler, secretary-treasurer of the Title Guaranty Company. Stotler posted a score of 78 for the first 18 holes. Eighteen holes will also be played this afternoon and tomorrow.

Last year's tournament was won by Robert Sellis, another Pittsburgher.

ERIE MAN FAVORED

When the nomination committee of the Association makes its reports this evening realtors believe that Harry Swenson, of Erie, will be proposed by the committee for next year's president, succeeding Cree. The Pittsburgh delegation has hopes of getting one of the vice presidencies as well as several committee appointments.

It was announced this morning by J. Ronald Graby, executive of the Pittsburgh Board, that Thomas C. McMahon, chief assessor for Pittsburgh, will be unable to attend tomorrow. McMahon was scheduled to speak on the assessor's problem.

Roy R. Cappe, president of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, was also absent.

The convention will end tomorrow evening with an address by L. T. Stevenson, president elect of the national association of real estate board and a member of the Pittsburgh Board. His topic will be "Views on 1932."

All were held for court at a hearing before Magistrate James J. O'Connor in Center Avenue Police Court today.

Merchants to Aid City Traffic Study

Remedies for traffic conditions in the downtown district were to be discussed by representatives of 20 business organizations and members of the Better Traffic Committee in Council chamber, City-County Building, at 1:30 p. m. today.

In a letter announcing the meeting, City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre pointed out possibility that traffic in the downtown section may be seriously tied up on Saturday afternoons when there are football games, unless corrective measures to prevent congestion are taken.

Many Broken Hearts Caused By Bootleg Liquor

Patsy's mamma liked her booze—

And Patsy, who longed to love her and respect her . . . who longed to live joyously and proudly like other girls—and couldn't, because of the terrible shadow that hung over her from day's end to day's end—poured out her sorrow and humiliation—

"I can't even entertain a friend," she sobbed, "because I never know how my mother will be. And she is slowly but surely killing herself. No one can know how my heart aches for her!"

Maybe you think that's a rare picture in this day of prohibition—but it isn't. It's a picture that most of us have seen all too often . . . a picture that's getting commoner all over these United States.

OPPORTUNITIES RUINED

Why? "The bootlegger is why!" says Christine, whose own mother is traveling the same dreadful road.

"Dear Sally:

"This letter is really to Patsy, although I can't say that it will help much. You see I have been through the same experience, and I know just how terrible it is. So my heart goes out to her.

"Maybe my story will help her. We lived in another country, and my father came to America when I was quite small. Mother started the same as Patsy's mother, and ever since I can remember, I have had to put up with booze.

"It got so bad that I never could go to school after I was 11 years old. Can you imagine that? All my opportunities in life were ruined by booze. We moved to another city. War broke out. Mother didn't bother me. And at 12 I had to put on my apron and go to work. I was big for my age, so I could. I worked hard all day, then came home to a house jammed with dirt and unwashed dishes—no one home. I would get my own supper . . . Then mother would come home very late—drunk. I'd put her to bed, and the next morning get my own breakfast. When I was only 16, she left me to shift for myself entirely.

INSULTED BY DEALERS

"Then I married the wrong man because I was so eager to get away from the hard things in life. I am nearly 30 now, and have a fine son, 10. My father is with mother now. But she is worse than ever. It breaks my heart. I go to her often and help her because I can't see poor dad suffer . . . no meals cooked, nothing—but booze.

"I have tried to stop her. I have even gone to bootleggers where I knew she got it, but I have only been insulted for my pains. If it weren't for bootleggers something could be done with her. But there's one on every corner. You can't keep her away from them. So now I can only pray. I hope that my story may help to change things. Do you think anything can be done about bootleggers?

"LOUISE."

There you have the whole terrible story. What's your answer? What can be done? Don't dodge. It's a question for all of us to ask ourselves . . . and to do something about. Are you ready to get going?

And now we've heard the dark side, here's a brighter one.

"Dear Sally:

"I am writing because I think I may help Patsy. I am not the daughter, but a mother, in a story like hers. Some years ago I started hitting the bottle and, believe me, it got a terrible hold on me. It went on till one day my only child, a daughter of 15, threatened to leave home if I didn't stop.

"Then I realized that to hold her love and respect I would have to stop . . . and I stopped. Now nothing in the world will induce me to take even one drink, for I know one would mean more. That was quite a few years ago, and now my girl and I are chums . . . and I am really happy.

"Maybe if Patsy will have one more talk with mother, and threaten to get up and leave, mother will wake up, as I did. It may take a little time, but I know that nothing but a hard jolt will do it.

OTHERS RESPONSIBLE

"I go out to parties, and have a lots better time than I ever did when I drank. Maybe some people won't believe that, but it's true. And when drinks are served, I have lots of ways of avoiding them. Patsy's mother can do what I did, if she will. Here's luck to Patsy . . . and a big hope that things straighten out for her. MRS. G. J. H."

The bootlegger—

Yes, he's to blame, Louise.

And selfish, spineless mothers—they're to blame, too, Mrs. G. J. H.

But someone else is also to blame. Someone who doesn't touch a drop of liquor or break a single law . . . someone who is sincere and honest and decent and loyal to his country, is to blame—

The fanatical prohibitionist who says that there "isn't any liquor problem" . . . that "drinking is on the decrease" . . . that "prohibition is a success" . . . he is to blame most of all.

For he is holding this country back from real action. And what is real action? Real action means facing the truth . . . Real action means looking at the prohibition law as we look at any other law . . . seeing if it is working or it isn't working . . . revising it if it isn't working . . . putting a better more practical law in its place.

The Fanatical Dry thinks the Prohibition Amendment mustn't be touched "because it has been made a law." But laws can be made—and unmade. There is no guaranteed permanency for any law. If there were, America would still be an English colony—

The bootlegger is bad. He is the worst thing that ever happened to America. But the Fanatical Dry, who refuses to acknowledge that there is a bootlegger or a bootlegging problem, is just as responsible as bootleggers for little Patsy's broken heart.

Fay King Stresses Disappointments of Girls Seeking Fame in Cities

By FAY KING

Countless girls with beauty and charm who live far from New York and Hollywood are consumed with the thought of fame and fortune that would be theirs if they could go to these cities of great opportunity.

They do not think of the thousands of girls just as lovely and with the same ambition who did manage to reach New York or Hollywood, only to find disappointment and failure.

They do not consider how comparatively few reach the top, and of these few, fewer still stand foremost.

It is human nature to always imagine that we have unluckily missed the best, and never that we have luckily escaped the worst. But alas! it is the sad story that is most often the true story.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Disagrees With Madge

Lillian glanced apprehensively at the door as I asked her to tell me what I was going to do if I did not "get that letter back," then sat down with a little sigh of relief at seeing it closed.

"I locked it after us," I said as I drew a chair near to hers. Then on the verge of disclosure, I hesitated.

"I don't believe I was ever so ashamed of anything in my life as I am of that letter," I said.

She flashed her gamin grin at me.

"I may be clairvoyant, old dear, as you so often tell me, but really I'm not the Delphic oracle. Suppose you tell me what all the shooting's for."

Swiftly I made a decision upon a point which had been troubling me.

"I'm going to tell you the whole story," I said, "because I know that when a suitable opportunity arises Katherine herself will tell you of the letter, which is the primary reason for all my worry."

She stretched herself comfortably in her chair and put her hands behind her head.

"Go ahead. Shoot the works," she said, and I obeyed her. I told her of the venomous letter Ruth Allen had sent to Katherine, asking her to give up her husband, of Katherine's refusal to write to Jack anything concerning it, of my promise not to send the Allen woman's letter back to Jack, and of my evasion of that promise by writing to my brother-cousin and telling him of the contents of the letter without giving him either the original letter or a copy of it.

"I inclosed the letter to Jack in one to Miss Halkett," I finished, "asking her to inclose it in one of the company envelopes and mark it 'personal.'"

"And you typed your envelope to Jack, I suppose," Lillian said.

"Yes."

"Then I don't see any reason why he shouldn't receive it without any interference by the Allen cobra unless the letter was true, and he's on such terms with her that she would dare to open mail marked personal."

"I can't believe that of Jack. I can't."

"Neither can I," Lillian said quickly, "but," with a little moue, "you never can tell. Men are kittle-cattle, the best of them sometimes, and a wilderness isn't exactly the best background for Victorian standards."

"I know," I said, despondently, "nevertheless——"

"Don't mind me," she said quickly. "I'm just exercising my pessimistic inhibitions. I'll take 'em indoors now and store 'em away for another year. I haven't the slightest doubt in the world that your letter will get to Jack without Ruth Allen's interference—that is, if you can't flag it, as I infer you want to do from your raucous outeries."

She wrinkled her nose at me and her facial expression as well as her tone told me that she did not sympathize with my attempt to get back the letter.

"Can't you see that I must get it back, that I never ought to have written or sent it?" I said, doggedly.

"I see that you believe that premise, therefore you would better get busy."

"But you would not try to get it back if you were in my place."

"I certainly should not," she returned emphatically. "I—don't know—if you had asked my advice before writing the letter I might not have had the courage to say 'go ahead' after the express prohibition Katherine gave you. But now that it's gone without your meaning it to be mailed, I consider that it's out of your hands, and in your place I should sit down, fold my lily-white hands across my peaceful breast and contemplate the 'lap of the gods' with speculative interest. But, of course, you'll do nothing of the kind. You'll move heaven and earth and the other place in order to get it back. Well, here's wishing you luck and praying you won't have it. I suppose you'll try to flag Martin Halkett first thing in the morning."

"Yes, but I can't do it from here. I'll have to find some excuse to get away from the house before nine, when she reaches the office. That letter will be on her desk when she gets there."

"Leave that to me," Lillian's voice was crisply efficient. "If you're dressed and through your breakfast by half-past eight I'll guarantee to have an all-wool and yard-wide errand for you which nobody but you can do. I haven't any idea what it will be now, but I have an inventive mind, you know."

"No one knows it better," I answered, trying to smile at her nonsense, "and I'll rest on your promise."

"All right. And now suppose you get dressed for dinner. You've been tearing around so much you haven't had a second to primp. I'll stand guard while you do it and turn the machine guns on man, woman or child who tries to disturb you."

She straightened herself in her chair and folded her arms with a belligerent air which sent me into a spasm of laughter. Then I hurried through my dressing, for it was near the dinner hour, and I expected every second to hear the telephone ring with the message which Dicky had promised to give me.

It was not the telephone bell, however, but Dicky's auto horn which marked the last fastening of my dinner frock. Katie had been right. He had forgotten to telephone.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Letter Form

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. In sending a personal or social letter, is the sender's address required?

2. If so, is it placed at the top, as in this letter, or at the end of the letter opposite the signature? B.

1. In the case of most letters we write it is usually necessary to put our address either in the heading of the letter or at the end of the letter. But, of course, if it is just a note or letter to someone to whom we write often, someone thoroughly familiar with our address, it is, naturally, not necessary to include the address.

2. Either the top of the first sheet—to the right—or at the end of the letter is correct for the address. It depends on which position you consider more artistic in the general spacing of your letter.

And please let me congratulate you on the excellent form of your letter, on your extremely good-looking handwriting and on the general artistic appearance of your letters. I wish now that I could urge you not to use any abbreviations on your envelopes. If you do not, your letters will be perfect.

Parents of the Engaged

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me whether the mother of the young man, whose engagement has been announced by the young lady's mother at a lovely tea, should invite the young lady's family to dinner, or should the young lady's mother extend the first invitation. I am very fond of the family. D. E.

It is correct and gracious and hospitable for the young man's mother and father to be hosts at a dinner to the parents of the young lady. The young lady's parents will be delighted to have this first recognition of the union of the two families.

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Opening Bids of 1-No Trump

As yet we have had little to say about opening no-trump bids. While not as popular as they once were, no-trumps are an important feature under every system of bidding. In a very general sort of way evenly divided suits (4-3-3-3) urge no-trumps more than suit bids. Trump declarations are best with unevenly divided suits, especially when one void suit, a singleton or low doubleton is held.

The minimum requirements for an opening bid of 1-No Trump are: 2½ quick tricks (or the equivalent); at least 3 guarded suits, and between 4 and 5 probable tricks.

Minimum guarded suits are: A-X, K-X, Q-J-X, J-10-X Q-X-X-X, J-10-X-X, J-9-X-X, or any suit of five cards, unless adversely bid.

Many players differentiate between three and four guarded suit as follows: They open with 1-No Trump to show four guarded suits; in case their partner supports that make they shift to their best biddable suit, allowing partner to choose the final declaration. These players open with a suit bid to show only three guarded suits; when their partner supports their suit the shift to no-trumps to show that they have bid a short suit, because they held only three suits guarded for no-trumps.

Hands like these shown below must be opened with bids of 1-No Trump on account of lacking a biddable suit,

The first hand shown should be bid 1-heart. In case your partner raises you to 2-hearts, shift to 2-no trump, to show that you have bid a suit of only four cards,

♠ J-9-6
♥ A-K-10-5
♣ K-9-7
♦ A-J-6

Having opened the next hand with 1-no trump, to show your four guarded suits, shift to your ragged spade suit over your partner's bid of 2-no trump.

The next two hands call for quite different handling. You may open with a weak bid of 2-spades on the first hand below, or you may bid 1-spade and then rebid that suit. On the second hand first bid hearts, then show your spades. No-trump is the last resort of such holdings,

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Know What and How to Feed Your Baby!

Beginning today and continuing in a series of eight articles, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, noted health authority, discusses every phase of that vital problem of every mother, the proper feeding of infants. The articles will be published on this page twice weekly, Monday and Thursday. If clipped and preserved they offer an excellent source of complete information on this all-important subject.

Dr. Copeland

An old friend of mine used to say that babies are like watermelons—just so many are born every year, and we are glad of it. No home is complete without a baby.

One of the great problems of motherhood is to know exactly what and how to feed the baby. As a matter of fact, there is little choice in the matter.

With all the many varieties of foods at our disposal, have you ever thought what a small number of food elements there really are? In the last analysis everything we take is included in four food elements. They are the protein, the carbohydrates, the fats and the mineral salts. We subdivide the carbohydrates into starches and sugars.

It is true, of course, that in the form of various combinations these food elements include almost all the chemical substances known to man. In one form or another, these chemical substances must be had if the body is to thrive.

It is not possible to mix together the right proportion of these chemicals and take them in a capsule. How simple life would be if there should be a gong in the house attached to a time-clock, so that its sound would announce to the household that it was time to take a capsule. Then the mother could run to the container and carefully place the appropriate capsule in her baby's mouth.

Needless to say, the eating problem will never become so simple as this. As a matter of fact, those of us who enjoy our food would never want it to be so simple. The pleasures of the table mean too much for us to calmly accept such an innovation.

But there are other elements which are not so clearly understood, elements which are essential to our well being, and particularly important to the growing baby. I refer to those mysterious substances known as vitamins. It may be that they will be resolved sometime into their chemical elements. With present knowledge they are beyond the ken even of the modern scientist.

With grown persons, the matter of "roughage" is important. Certain parts of our food, particularly from the vegetable world, are indigestible things. Yet they have an important part to play in the activity of the digestive organs.

With the baby the problem of feeding is less complicated, but its food must be prepared with far greater accuracy than is demanded in the feeding of the adult. Nature prepared for this necessity by providing milk, the most wonderful and valuable of all foods.

When we study the composition of milk we find it contains all those food elements which I mentioned as the essential ones in human feeding. Also it is rich in the mysterious vitamins which have to do with the growth of the baby.

Fortunately, most mothers can give their babies that most desirable form of feeding, breast milk. There are mothers, however, who for one reason or another, cannot feed their babies. Then it is necessary to resort to cow's milk. When this happens, that milk must be given certain treatment which I will discuss in my next article on Infant Feeding which will appear on this page next Monday.

Actors and Brides Praise 'Little Church Around The Corner'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

If there's any church in these United States which might be called the Chapel of the Theater, it's the famous "Little Church Around the Corner" which has been the scene of so many last acts in the lives of famous players. When this church was opened in 1850, it was in a country lane. When Joseph Jefferson in 1870 gave it the name by which it is now best known, it was still up-town. It has since become famous not only as the scene of 50,000 weddings, but as the church from which more eminent actors have been buried than from any other.

George Seibel

It is full of historic theatrical relics. In the Guild Hall the bride may adjust her veil before Kate Claxton's pier-glass or write a note on Richard Mansfield's oak table. Booth, Jefferson, John Drew, Lester Wallack and many others were communicants.

It's real name is "The Church of the Transfiguration in the City of New York," How the church got its popular name has often been told, yet is unknown to many people of the present day.

GEORGE HOLLAND'S FUNERAL

George Holland had died an actor nearly 80 years old whom Jefferson considered "the merriest man he had ever known." It was necessary to bury him and Jefferson undertook to find a clergyman and a church. He went to the Church of the Atonement, at Madison avenue and Twenty-eighth street, where the rector said "he would be compelled, if Mr. Holland had been an actor, to decline holding the service at the church."

In this dilemma Jefferson asked whether he knew of no other church from which his friend could be buried. The reverend rector replied, there was a little church around the corner where Jefferson might get it done. Jefferson answered:

"If this be so God bless 'the little church around the corner.'"

He left the house and since that day the Little Church Around the Corner has hardly been known by any other name. Also it has become the church of the actors.

FAMOUS FACES IN PEWS

The rector who looked down from his pulpit any Sunday morning might see the noble face of Edwin Booth. Jefferson rarely missed a service when in town. Lester Wallack and Lawrence Barrett were among the communicants. Dozens of touching poems have been written about the little church.

Among famous stage people buried from its altar were Dion Boucicault, the versatile Irishman who produced over 400 plays, and Edwin Booth, the greatest Hamlet of the past century.

The story of this church in East Twenty-ninth street is now told in a beautiful folio volume by Ishbell Ross entitled "Through the Lich Gate" (published by William Farquhar Payson) a book that will interest both churchmen and playgoer. While the theater was still the subject of bitter vituperation from most pulpits, this little church was open to the actors.

The title of the book will raise in many minds the question as to the meaning of "Lich-Gate." It comes from an old Anglo-Saxon word—"lich," a corpse, the same word as the German "Leiche." The Lich-Gate was the gate through which the corpses were carried for burial.

O. HENRY FUNERAL

Besides the eminent players whose funeral services were held in this church, it was also the scene of the memorial service for O. Henry, who mentioned it in "The Romance of a Busy Broker." That story winds up with the words: "Don't you remember, Harvey? We were married last evening in the Little Church Around the Corner." The busy broker had forgotten that his secretary was now his wife. In the story of "The Cop and the Anthem," O. Henry has also described the church, though he does not name it.

O. Henry's last words were, "I don't want to go home in the dark," a characteristic utterance. And his own funeral was all of a piece with an O. Henry story. The service had been set for 11 o'clock a. m. A bride was coming to say her wedding vows at the very hour set for the funeral. In the excitement of preparation this conflict was overlooked, and when the bridal party arrived they had to be detoured to the Holland House for an hour until the funeral was over, and the fragrance of wedding bouquets took the place of the O. Henry wreaths.

CHURCH OF TOLERANCE

It has always been the church of tolerance, showing it toward the actors when their profession was still under a cloud. Its theatrical following has made the church remarkable. The rector once said:

"I have known so many actors and actresses as fine ladies and gentlemen that I cannot believe that any man who condemns them all really knows them."

His utterance seems anachronistic at the present time, when actors are among our most highly esteemed fellow citizens.

Today dances, musical programs, play discussions, and teas are regularly held in the Guild Hall. At these teas popular Broadway stars, whose names have long been twinkling in electric lights, are usually at the candle-lit table pouring tea for their admirers. Mrs. Fiske, the Barrymores, Elsie Ferguson, Jane Cowl, Katharine Cornell, and many others have been enthusiastic members of the guild. No wonder this church is called "The Little Pantheon of the Theater."

It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients. It doesn't sicken or weaken you. But its action is thorough. It carries off the sour bile and poisonous waste. It does everything you want it to do. It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Give some to keep little bowels open during colds.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this [illegible] prescription (all druggists keep it) in big bottles; and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Well, after all these years on Broadway, I finally got myself a genuine thrill . . . I mean, my heart actually thumped when that Broadway Gun Squad surrounded five of us the other 4:30 in the morning . . . We were parked in front of a restaurant boosting our contemporaries—and out of nowhere, it seemed, pounced the Gun Squad . . . "Stick 'em up!" they groaned, as they fell on us all for a quick frisk of our pockets and "artillery" . . . "Oh," I said after I caught my breath, "we're newspapermen, whats 'the big idea?" . . . So they explained that an hour before they had bagged some baddies, after getting a tip . . . And that they received another tip that some gangsters were "loaded" in front of a restaurant in the 50s . . . Personally, I felt awful to think that they didn't know me—but I didn't know them, either, so there! . . . It ought to be more exciting around the Canyon now, with these fearless fellows looking for trouble . . . I won't have to motor over to the Jersey side anymore looking for some excitement after midnight . . . Over in Jersey the detectives, armed with "Tommy-Guns," which are submachines, stop every car with a N. Y. tag . . . And search the occupants and car for guns, etc. . . . Whenever I feel like frightening a guy I take him over there for a ride between 4 and 5 in the morning and watch him get scared stiff when the coppers give us That Business . . . I'm tired of seeing it on the screen and Broadway is so listless . . . Imagine—having to go to Jersey, which I've poked fun at—to get a thrill! . . . Some fun.

I would have laughed loud, I know, if I had been to the Mayfair opening in the Ritz and heard Monte Brice say it . . . Monte looked over the same group of starched shirts and aging ingenues, and humphed: "The evacuation of Moscow!" . . . Heheheh . . . Walter Donaldson's next song hit, "Evening In Caroline," will be a best-seller . . . I'll wager it will even make that collitch professor whistle . . . To hear them groan about it, the Seabury investigation is costing the taxpayers more coin to investigate matters than might have been thefted by cheating officials . . . And that the only people who were removed from office or jailed were those that Kresel prosecuted . . . All that Mr. Seabury has revealed is that several politicians have amassed huge fortunes . . . But we know that! . . . Seabury is too honest—they tell me—and they argue that it takes a thief to catch one.

I'll wager that the gals who went platinum are plenty sorry. . . . The upkeep, I hear, is terrible and every treatment ruins the hair a little more . . . Wonder how many people will remember her—I mean "Little Egypt," famed as the greatest torso-tosser of her time . . . She was the Big Riot during the 1893 Chicago World's Fair, and she liked Chicago so well she remained there and married a Greek restaurant impresario on Halstead street . . . Now, if you mention "Little Egypt" to her, it is murder . . . In a recent talk she was asked what she thought of modern dancing, whereupon she proceeded with a verbal hemorrhage . . . "It is disgustingly vulgar!" thundered the one-time champion abdomen-quiverer, and she thanked Providence that she had no daughter in these wicked days, to be exposed to the shameful and sinful dances which are "an every day indulgence in the parlors of the so-called best homes of the town!" . . . Oh, well. We all make mistakes. . . . That's why there are so many people in the world to point them out.

Well, I like the way the Booth Theater programs naively list the very English A. E. Matthews' birthplace as "Bridlington, Yorke, England," instead of his native Milwaukee . . . You have to expect little slips like that, I suppose, when a show boasts of an "all-except-Eleanor-Woodruff" English cast . . . I see that Antoine, who arrives with the Lavals on the Ile de France this week, is to be taken up socially . . . They tell me that he is the only hair-dresser who ever is wined and dined by the Vanderbilts and the uppah-clahsses.

There must have been the deuce to pay over at the World-Telly and the Post . . . Forrest Davis, a grand reporter for the W-T, sent some copy to his rag by a Western Union boy, who delivered it by error to the Post . . . It happens that both papers have a Davis working for them—and Forrest's story was received, accepted, edited and set by the Post before they discovered it was meant for another paper! . . . The Smahtt people, they will tell you, will soon play a game called Camelot, a merger of chess and checkers, instead of backgammon.

Swell idea Clare Boothe Brokaw has for that yarn in her new book, "Stuffed Shirts" . . . She relates how a Broadway columnist, ever on the alert for exclusive news, scooped the town by reporting that his newspaper publisher was going gay with a chorine from one of the shows . . . The same day he received a memo of praise from his boss . . . It read in part: "I have long admired your scoops. You certainly lead them all when it comes to news, and because I want you to keep astounding your readers, here is another scoop. Just put in your column that you are fired!"

Arno's Show Here Next Week

Plays, Players and By-Play

—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS—

Among the early attractions in the Alvin will be Mme. Schumann-Heink in the Gilbert and Sullivan light opera classic, "The Mikado." This will be seen the week of November 2. On the sixteenth day of the same month Helen Hayes will come to our fair city, Alvin being the bright particular spot, to give us a view of "The Good Fairy." This will be the second production of the Professional Players series.

Coming to the Nixon directly following the appearance of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," booked for the week of November 2, there will be a presentation of some of Mr. Shakespeare's plays. The Bard will be interpreted by Stratford-Upon-Avon Players, an organization that we expected last season, but which did not arrive.

Mr. Al Jolson Not Through With Films After All; New One in 1932

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, Premier Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.

Hollywood's rumor-hounds will have to guess again. They said Al Jolson was through with pictures, but Al now is definitely scheduled to do a United Artists talkie in February. It will be either "Wunder Bar" or "Sons o' Guns." Al favors the former, because he has an interest in the show. On the other hand, United Artists already own "Sons o' Guns."

The singing star will bring his road tour of "Wunder Bar" to a close in Los Angeles somewhere around the first of the year.

Al Jolson

Between now and then, to quote another and seemingly authentic rumor, the United Artists studio is due for a shut-down of several months.

Hearing that musicals are back in favor, an amateur song-writer succeeded in meeting Buddy De Sylva. Before Buddy could stop him, he spilted off a lyric in which "mountaineer" was made to rhyme with "far and near."

"Well, Mr. De Sylva," he said, "how much would you give me for the lyrics?"

Buddy looked suggestively towards the door. "Five yards start," he snapped.

GOSSIP I HEAR

Ann Harding says she has resigned herself to the studio's will, and, hereafter, will do any story they want her to. It is no secret she has opposed "Prestige" . . . Margaret Livingston will build a bachelor's apartment house in Hollywood. She already owns part interest in one . . . Wynne Gibson's mother and father have come out to live with her. . . . Maritime tragedy. Two of John Miljan's fancy gold-fish, valued at $150 apiece, were gulped down by a marauding seas-gull . . . There's a gas station operator in West Hollywood named William Fox . . . Julanne Johnson opens a dancing engagement at the Roosevelt Hotel today.

Ann Harding

SENSATION DUE

Paramount's football picture, "Touchdown," is due to create a stir, because it deals with professionalism in colleges. Dick Arlen plays a coach who goes out and buys players. Some of the sting is removed by vindicating the college authorities themselves of any knowledge of the affair. The alumni in general also comes in for a white-wash. From preview reports, this film is Dick Arlen's best in years.

PITT GOES WEST TONIGHT

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Delay Naming Buc Pilot. Weakening on Gibson. Passing Up Rival Loop. Pitt's Irish Experience. Clymer High to Fore. Dad's Fame Handicap.

SEEK NATIONAL LEAGUER FOR PIRATES

SINCE THE DEVELOPMENT that the owners of the Pittsburgh baseball club have weakened on the idea of bringing George Gibson back from his Canadian farm to manage the Pirates next year, a matter which a month ago was within figurative inches of being closed, about the only thing even close to being certain in connection with the Buccaneer managerial situation is that the new skipper will be a man who has gained all, or nearly all, of his big show experience in the National League.

George Gibson

At least, that is the aim of the club heads in seeking a pilot to succeed Jewel Ens, and they will stick to that course if possible as they continue their quest. They were not satisfied with the results they got when they tried American League men on the job, first Jimmy Callahan and later Donie Bush, and they figure that there will be a better chance to get the Rovers up in the race next season if the team is placed under the direction of a leader who is thoroughly familiar with the league in which he will be called upon to work.

PIRATE OFFICIALS TAKE the view that, regardless of baseball experience or ability, a man schooled almost exclusively in one of the big leagues is under a handicap if he undertakes to manage a club in the other major loop. He doesn't know the batters, the pitchers, the peculiarities in the style of play or in the construction of the parks, they contend, and for a long time he must work in the dark or depend on the advice or suggestions of others.

True, not all have been unsuccessful in making the shift. George Stallings won the world championship with the Braves and Joe McCarthy finished second in his first year with the Yankees, but that's a small percentage out of a list that has included, besides Callahan and Bush, Clark Griffith, Johnny Evers, Branch Rickey, Pat Donovan, Wild Bill Donovan, Jack Coombs, Jimmy Burke, Stuffy McInnis and more.

DAN HOWLEY, who landed the Reds seventh and eighth in his first two years in the Heydler organization after coming over from the junior circuit, is the latest exhibit in support of the Pirate owners' theory.

The local men say they want a manager who will know what he is doing from the start without having to grope his way, and for that reason, in making a selection, they will lean toward a National Leaguer, probably one who will manage from the bench.

BEYOND THAT THE whole thing is still wide open, according to the club officials. It looks as though Gibson is practically eliminated, but while several have been considered, and applications have been received from a far greater number, the bosses declare that they are not yet even close to making a definite selection. They insist that the numerous names published to date in the big guessing bee as to the identity of the next manager were all wrong, in as much as nobody has been picked. President Dreyfuss says he couldn't give out the name of the pilot right now, even if he wished to do so, because he won't know himself who is going to get the job until a number of things have been considered. He does not expect to make a choice until he returns to Pittsburgh from Atlantic City next week.

Warren Heller

DESPITE THE FACT that Jock Sutherland has eleven lettermen back from last year's Pitt football team, only six players who started against Notre Dame in the 1930 game at the Stadium will grace the Panther lineup Saturday in South Bend.

The six are Warren Heller, Ralph Daugherty, Mike Milligan, Jim MacMurdo, Jess Quatse and Paul Collins. Of these, MacMurdo will have his first chance at the Irish while playing tackle, the position at which he is at his best. He was at end last year.

OF THE FIVE players who will be facing Notre Dame for the first time at the kickoff, three never played in even a part of a game against the South Benders. They are Johnny Luch at fullback, Hart Morris at right guard and Bobby Hogan at quarterback.

Paul Reider and Eddie Hirshberg both saw action last year, but not at the start of the game. Hirshberg was in the lineup less than three minutes, but Reider was in long enough to score a touchdown.

THREE OF THE Panthers who will be riding the bench Saturday got a chance to work against the Irish in 1930 as reserves, two of them performing in a highly creditable manner. The three are Jimmy Clark, fullback; Ted Dailey, end, and Joe Tormey, center. Both Clark and Tormey won the plaudits of the crowd by their play against Notre Dame when they replaced Franklin Hood and Ralph Daugherty, respectively. Clark twice crossed the Irish goal line for scores. So, in all, 11 members of the Panther squad have some first-hand knowledge of Notre Dame's style, and it's an item that may help the Pitt cause a bit on Saturday.

IN A LETTER from Clymer, Pa., Andy Pazora tells of some achievements which show Clymer High School to be exceptionally strong in athletics. He reports that the school baseball team, under the coaching of John T. Gramley, won 39 consecutive games before it was beaten, the defeat suffered in the fortieth game being its first in three seasons.

In basketball, too, Coach Gramley has turned out unusually successful teams. During the 1929 season, the Clymer High passers lost only two games out of 20, and in 1930 they made an even better record, losing only one game out of 20, so that in two straight years they have been defeated only three times in 40 contests.

BEING THE SON of a famous father in football, far from helping the youngster who is trying to make a career of his own in the same game, is the toughest kind of a handicap, according to Willie Heston, Jr., son of Michigan's all-time all-America halfback.

Willie Heston, Jr.

Young Heston, who has quit the Michigan grid squad, was assigned last Thursday to go with the Michigan B team to Columbus to play the Ohio State B team on Saturday. He did not make the trip and has not donned his uniform since.

IF HE HAD had a name like Smith he'd have been far better off for football purposes, opines Willie, Jr., who says the name of Heston was a handicap to him even in his high school days because it led to more being expected of him than he was able to deliver. "It's great when the boys talk about dad, tell me how good he was, and ask me how he made touchdowns and what he thinks of so-and-so as a football player" says young Heston. "Then I'm proud of the name of Heston. But when I get on the field—believe me, it's hard. Everybody on both sides and everybody watching seems to be thinking: 'There goes Heston's son; that's young Willie Heston.' And they expect to see in me dad's qualities as a football player. I play halfback, the same position he played, but that's as far as the resemblance goes. When they give me the ball they expect me to make a touchdown every time, just because my name is Heston. If my name were Smith it would be a lot easier."

DUKES TO FACE SPECIAL ATTACK OF TERRORS

Dick Harlow, the wizard of Western Maryland who piloted the Green Terrors through some 27 consecutive wins in the last few years, a string broken by Albright last year, moves into Pittsburgh today with a strong contingent of gridders bent on downing the Night Riders of Duquesne University. The visiting team is scheduled to arrive at the P. A. A. at 6:15 tonight and will work out at Forbes Field at 8 o'clock.

Harlow has schooled his Green Terrors in a special attack for the Dukes when the two teams trot out under the Forbes Field floodlights tomorrow. Likewise Layden has shifted his plays about, and has brought forth two or three things which a wet playing field prevented last week against Georgetown. Western Maryland will have 25 players, managers, trainer and coach in its party.

It is probable Layden will start the same Duke team which went so well against Hoyas a week ago. Armand Niccolai is to remain at right end for the game tomorrow, and probably for the rest of the season. The possibility of a slump in the new fighting spirit of his squad is the big worry of the Duke coach.

A large attendance appears to be assured for tomorrow's nocturnal tussle, John D. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics for the Dukes, reports. The colorful playing style of the Western Maryland team and the fact that the Green Terrors and the undefeated Wash-Jeff team played a 13-12 game last Saturday, had added interest. Alumni groups of both institutions will be represented. Children under 16 are again to be admitted at a special price.

BOND CLUB ON LINKS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Members of the Bond Club of Pittsburgh are playing at the Shannopin Country Club this afternoon in their final tourney of the season.

Play was continued today in the mixed foursome Helping Hand tourney at the South Park County links, and an increased entry was indicated when officials of the competition threw out the score registered by Professional H. G. Olson and Mrs. Carrie Josephson, which left Miss B. Guentner and Edward Kreamer with a tally of 100, leading the small procession. Olsen and Mrs. Josephson had scored an 87, and Mrs. Josephson will be permitted to replay her round in the company of a bona fide amateur.

Professional Al McBride still is receiving entries. The entry fee consists of old clothing suitable for children between the ages of 6 months and 16 years.

The crazy costume tourney held by the women of the Country Club of Pittsburgh yesterday, was a huge success. Louise Vilzack was in charge.

Dr. D. A. Ashcomb, prominent Highland amateur, and E. Vincent Eldred, Highland professional, are more or less heroes among the Kilties today. Yesterday Ashcomb joined the mythical Hole-in-One Club by dropping an ace on the 250-yard, sixth hole, while Eldred established a new course record of 65 on the par 71 layout. Playing with Charley Wolff, Jr., Eldred and Wolff scored a record-breaking best ball of 59. Eldred was out in 34 and home in 31.

John Ashcomb, Doc's son; Dr. F. W. Joyce and Dr. T. N. Adams were present at the hole-in-one act.

A full quota of Tri-State P. G. A. members is expected to be on hand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for the first district match play championship, to be staged over the Highland links. An 18-hole qualifying round is to be followed by three match play rounds at 18 holes each.

Tech-Purdue Game On Tap For a Dime

Thousands of boys and girls will attend the Carnegie Tech-Purdue football game at the Stadium Saturday afternoon for a dime, and they'll all sit in the section that costs others 75 cents.

The 10-cent admission is made possible by an arrangement the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has made with the Stadium management by which thousands of exchange tickets distributed by this newspaper will be good for all 75-cent seats when presented at the ticket windows for Gate No. 18 with 10 cents.

These Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph exchange tickets may only be used by boys and girls under 16 years of age.

PANTHERS SET FOR HARD TILT WITH IRISH

By JESS CARVER

Pitt leaves tonight for Notre Dame, and absolutely the toughest assignment a Panther varsity has been called upon to face in a decade, if not longer.

Paul Reider

Meanwhile, two other local varsity squads are awaiting major assignments, scheduled to be fought out before home and sympathetic crowds. Tomorrow night Duquesne meets Western Maryland at Forbes Field in a night game, and on Saturday, Carnegie Tech tackles its first Western Conference opposition in the formidable Purdue Boilermakers in the Pitt Stadium. Western Maryland was due to pull into town this afternoon and Purdue will detrain here at 8:45 a. m. tomorrow morning.

Jock Sutherland's Panthers held their final strenuous drill yesterday afternoon. They'll work out today, of course, before departing for the vicinity of the battle tonight, but today's workout will not be nearly as long or arduous as was yesterday's. The squad will not go directly to South Bend, but will head for Niles, Mich., where it will spend tomorrow night. Niles being only some 15 miles from Notre Dame, the Panthers will work out tomorrow afternoon in the Irishers' stadium.

TEAM SET TO GO

The squad leaves tonight at 11:40, and unless one of Al Becker's best hits a cow or runs off the track, will arrive in Niles about 7 o'clock in the morning, entirely too early for me to get out of that lower. I'm no ball player.

What a workout the Panthers were given yesterday. Whew! Jock hammered and yipped at 'em, barked when they were running plays and when they drilled against Notre Dame formations. Nothing was right. The team looked bad, which is a good sign, for I've seen a lot of ball clubs go like a million bucks in workouts and then fall flatter than a pancake in the ball game. Something like gymnasium fighters, you know.

Reports from South Bend have it that the Irish are worrying about Bulldog Reider. I have a more or less sane operative out there who tells me that Notre Dame fears Reider more than any other man on the Pitt squad. They remember how tough he was to stop a year ago and figure he at least hasn't gone back any since.

"The boys are hot. I've never

FRENCH LEADS IN ENDURANCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

In view of the superb performances given by Pirate sharpshooters through most of the championship race, followers of the club will not be surprised to learn that two members of the Buccaneer staff were out in front of all National League competitors in the matter of innings pitched.

Larry French

Larry French, who was willing and anxious to go to the slab early and often, led the circuit in the spirit of industry, while Heinie Meine, another loyal toiler of the slab, was a good second. Larry spun off 276 innings, Meine being only three rounds below the youthful lefthander. The unofficial figures show the two Buccos to be in front in this connection and these records doubtless will be borne out when the official averages are given out a few months hence.

Meine's winning record tops Larry's by a comfortable margin, yet the youthful Larry was one of the most feared pitchers in the league. Heinie just missed the coveted 20 mark with his string of 19 victories and 13 defeats. Larry copped 15 and dropped 13.

HALLAHAN TWELFTH

It is of more than passing interest to note that no member of the crack Cardinal slab staff appears among the first 10 pitchers of the league in the matter of endurance.

Lefthander Bill Hallahan ranks twelfth with 239 innings of pitching to his credit. The fact that Gabby Street has so many high-class regulars would appear to account for the absence of Redbird flingers among the leaders.

Hallahan, by the way, led the league in striking out batters as he whiffed 154 foemen. Bill also led in bases on balls, as he issued 102 passes. The American League, however, had several pitchers who were more generous than the miscalled "Wild Bill," in dealing out free trips to first base.

Red Lucas, of the Reds, pitched more complete games than anyone in the Heydler circuit. The clever sorrel-top started and finished 24 battles.

PURDUE'S BRIGHT IRISH TINGE

NOBLE KIZER — FRANK CARIDEO — MAL EDWARD

Three distinct eras of Notre Dame football are represented on the coaching staff of the Purdue University Boilermakers, who arrive here tomorrow for their game with Carnegie Tech at the Stadium the following day. Noble Kizer, head coach, was a star guard on the Four Horsemen team of 1924. Frank Carideo, backfield coach, was the all-America quarterback for the undefeated teams of the past two seasons, while Mal Edward, line coach, played under Jess Harper in 1913-14-15. Harper is back at Notre Dame as director of athletics.

Oglethorpe Named To Oppose Haskell

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Oglethorpe University of Atlanta, Ga., has been selected as the opponent of the Haskell Indians for the charity football game for the benefit of the disabled veterans of th World War at Soldier Field, November 21.

Comiskey's Condition Improved, Son Says

EAGLE RIVER, Wis., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—The condition of Charles A. Comiskey, 73-year-old owner of the Chicago White Sox, who has been ailing at his summer home near here for some time, was reported as "fair" last night by J. Louis Comiskey, a son.

BURKE LEADS LONG RUNNERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—The ball is in kick-off position on Alabama's 40-yard line in the big stadium at Tuscaloosa. Spread out across the field, defending their own goal, are the players of the University of Mississippi. The stands are quiet.

The referee's whistle shrills. The Crimson Tide rolls forward, and the ball goes whizzing far down the field. Dashing back nine yards behind his own goal line, Edmund Burke, Old Mississippi back, squeezes the ball to his chest, and heads for the other goal line 109 yards away.

Ten, 20, 30 yards he goes, 'Bama's players swarm in on him, but he fights his way clear. White line after white line passes under his flying feet, until Alabama's goal line is crossed. The run proved to be only a gallant gesture in a losing cause as the Tide rolled over Ole Miss, 55-6, but it gained Burke the honor of making the longest run of the year to date in a football game.

Burke's 109 run, however, is only one of 10 made by college football players from the kickoff according to statistics gathered by Parke Davis, national football statistician of Easton, Pa.

Abraham Eliowitz, Michigan State's plunging fullback, ran only six yards less in registering a touchdown on Alma in his team's first game of the year.

Long runs for scores made by college football players to date this year, either from the kickoff, from punts or from scrimmage, follow:

Runback of kickoffs for touchdowns—Burke, Mississippi, 109 yards; Eliowitz, Michigan State, 103; Deacle, W. and J., 97; Stuber, Missouri, 96; Reider, Pittsburgh, 95; Linfor, Wisconsin, 96; Bush, Massachusetts State, 95; Buanano, Brown, 90; Pearcek, North Carolina, 85; Wilson, Springfield, 75.

Runback of punts for touchdowns—Bush, Massachusetts State, 97 yards; Knauf, North Dakota, 86; Grossman, Rutgers, 86; Hewitt, Columbia, 80 and 40; Panze, Oklahoma, 80; Drachs, Gettysburg, 80; Hutterman, Clarkson, 55; Cavanaugh, Villanova, 55; Chappelle, Alabama, 40.

Runs from scrimmage for touchdowns—Wheaton, DePauw, 97 yards; Wilcox, Heidelberg, 90; Heiter, Pittsburgh, 80; Wadlow, Trinity, 85; Marrion, Villanova, 85; Woods, Maryland, 80; Feathers, Tennessee, 80; Bach, Kentucky, 80; Ebert, Olivet, 80.

MONONGAHELA HIGH OUT TO UPSET CLAIRTON

WILKINSBURG TO BE TESTED BY TARENTUM

By JULIUS LEVIN

Surprises galore are in store for the dopesters of scholastic football next Saturday, if the reports emanating from the various battlefronts in Western Pennsylvania can be taken seriously.

Monongahela High School under the coaching of Tuffy McMillan, former Wilkinsburg and Pitt star, is not making any rash predictions as to the outcome of its fray with George Woodman's powerful Clairton machine, but the Big Red eleven nevertheless is going to be represented by a determined band of football fighters when the two teams line up next Saturday at Monongahela. Whether Mononsahela can check the championship drive of Clairton remains to be seen. Neither team has suffered a defeat in four games so far.

DONORA ON EDGE

Donora, its attack built around Jesse James, is confident it will take the measure of its old rival, Charleroi, at Donora Saturday. This battle looms as one of the best in the Monongahela Valley ranking second only to the Clairton-Monongahela fray. While both teams have been defeated, Charleroi bowing to Clairton, 13-0, and Donora to California, 13-7, the keen rivalry between the two clubs is intense and it should reach a fever heat by game time.

The Tubers of McKeesport High, face one of their hardest tests of the season in their attempt to register their fifth straight victory. The rugged Cokers, of Connellsville High, will be the opponents of the McKeesporters next Saturday afternoon and anything can happen when these two clubs clash.

Tarentum, while its record does not appear impressive, nevertheless will prove a worthy opponent for Coach Elmer Carroll's undefeated Wilkinsburg combine. This game will be played at Tarentum and will test the mettle of the Holy City eleven. Wilkinsburg enjoyed an open date last week and should be in the pink of physical condition.

BAR-BRAC STRONG

Carl Glock's New Kensington eleven, undefeated in the Allegheny Valley, cannot afford to take anything for granted in its battle with Har-Brac. Har-Brac gave valley fans an indication of its prowess by the manner in which it snapped Ford City's five-game winning streak last Saturday. Rochester is the only club to defeat Har-Brac, winning 19-12. Stowe Township, Ted Marmen's smooth-working machine, managed to hold Har-Brac to a scoreless tie in the opener.

Midland, Coach Lomond's undefeated Beaver Valley team, will leave the state in quest of its sixth successive victory, meeting East Liverpool at East Liverpool, while Ambridge, also undefeated, is not expected to have much trouble in its battle with Bellevue.

California and Burgettstown battle at Burgettstown in a contest between undefeated elevens. Both have won three in a row.

Sharon High seeks its fifth straight triumph by engaging Grove City at home. The Shenango Valley championship contenders appear to have the best team in their history.

HOMESTEAD AT SCOTT

Tomorrow's schedule is headed by the night battle between Scott High, of North Braddock, and Homestead. Scott enjoyed an open date last week and as a result all cripples have recovered and will be in shape for the clash with Bill Campbell's machine.

Edgewood will make a bid for its fourth straight victory by engaging Aspinwall at Aspinwall. This game looms as one of the biggest barriers facing Coach Pickett's eleven.

Stowe is slated to tangle with Etna. Etna has not been scored upon and boasts three victories in four games.

Four City League games also are carded tomorrow. In Section 1, Westinghouse plays at Peabody in the feature attraction, while Allderdice and Fifth Avenue, both seeking their first victory, clash at Malone Field.

Oliver is at Allegheny and Carrick at Langley in the Section II contests.

Perry meets South Hills at Langley in a Section II contest today.

Sport Vignettes

There's no such thing as overemphasis in college football . . . All Coach Lou Little did was to break his back making a winner out of Columbia . . . With all of the tributes being paid to the memory of Thomas Edison, no one has mentioned until now the fact that, if Edison hadn't lived, the Dukes would not be playing night football . . . We read a lot about the great backs of Pitt and Notre Dame, but don't be surprised if their game at South Bend Saturday is fought out by the opposing powerful lines . . . Remember that 35-19 classic of last year at the Stadium? . . . And Marchy Schwartz's ballet dancing touchdown run? . . . There was a spectacle!

Time was when New York football fans had to attend games between outside college elevens if they wanted to sit in on a real dish . . . Now they have giants of their own in Columbia, New York University and Fordham . . . Harvey Harman's Penn team gets its first real test of the year Saturday, when Wisconsin invades Franklin Field, Philadelphia . . . The Quakers have been brought along slowly and have been satisfied to win by comparatively small scores against teams they figured to outclass and should be ready . . . Young Jack Thompson, Negro holder of the world welterweight championship, has two sisters on the stage and is a fine clogger himself.

Izzy Kaplan, New York welterweight, is a brother of Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion . . . Charley Baxter, who defeated Johnny Dunn in a fine exhibition of boxing at Motor Square Garden a few nights ago, says Dunn is the hardest fellow to fight he ever has been called upon to face . . . It was Dunn's first start in six months, following an operation for appendicitis, and Baxter was loud in his praise of Johnny at the finish . . . Hockey rules are changed, the headlines tell us . . . But they still stick to their ridiculous playoff series plan, which enables them to get one season out of the way almost in time to open another one.

Among the West Point Cadets who will come here for the Pitt-Army game on November 14 is Cyril Letzelter, former Carnegie Tech and Army backfield star . . . Letz probably holds the record for individual scoring against Notre Dame in two games . . . Back in 1926, he scored a touchdown and kicked a touchdown goal in the memorable 19-0 triumph of Carnegie at Forbes Field, and, two years later, when Tech won, 27-7, at South Bend, he scored two touchdowns, for a total of 19 points in the two starts.

Bernard Kelly, Jr., kicks in to deny that his Benny McArthur was knocked out by Lou Petrone, who boxes at McKeesport tonight, as published . . . It was a technical kayo in a bout in Erie, with Kelly himself halting the bout because of a cut on one of Benny's eyes . . . Ralph Minnich, of Lorain, O., press correspondent at Kiski School, had to write his own story for the papers when he won the school tennis championship, defeating Bob Scallan, of Cincinnati, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4, in the final round . . . Bill Mercer, of Avalon, won the golf laurels with a 3-and-2 victory over Foster Meyers, of Pittsburgh, in the final round.—HARRY KECK.

Wesleyan Cuts Gate, Admits Children Free

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Oct. 22.—The lowest price for gridiron games ever to be charged by West Virginia Wesleyan College here will be in effect when the Bobcats meet Glenville State College, Saturday. Fifty cents will be the top price for adults, with all children free.

Bank failures in the Buckhannon section have so tied up money that Athletic Director C. B. Ross lowered prices in order to allow local fans to watch the Bobcats, with Cliff Battles, perform.

BRANNON TOPS M'KEESPORT FIGHT CARD

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Eddie Brannon vs. Lou Petrone, 10 rounds; Lou Saunders vs. Lou (Kid) Wallace, 8 rounds, and Charley Blazevich vs. Joey Bazzone and Chuck Zelnack vs. Gene Campbell, 6 rounds each, McKeesport.

Willie Baxter vs. Joey Dragon, 10 rounds, and Tat Gino vs. Buddy Columbo, 6 rounds, Clarksburg, W. Va.

Spike Webb vs. Richie Martell, Herb Brandon vs. Johnny De Marco and Calvin Reed vs. Hughey Chalfe, 8 rounds each, Philadelphia.

Jim McGirr's second bargain-priced boxing show is on the agenda at the Palisades Roller Rink, McKeesport, tonight, with Eddie Brannon, Negro lightweight, of the Hill, boxing Lou Petrone, of Erie, and formerly of Boston, in the 10-round windup.

With his prices cut in half last week, McGirr drew his largest crowd in many moons and doubled his receipts of the preceding show. Thus his policy of putting the prices within the reach of the fans in these times appears to be working out quite satisfactorily.

Brannon is an earnest worker and a good right-hand puncher, and Petrone comes here with a record of having boxed Steve Halaiko. Andy Callahan and other good ones, so that their affair may develop into an interesting setto.

Lou Saunders, of Beaver Falls, battles Lou (Kid) Wallace, of Youngstown, in the eight-round semi-final; Charles Blazevich, of St. Michael's, and Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, are in the second bout, and Chuck Zelnack, of Glassport, and Gene Campbell, of Ohio, open the program.

Between Rounds

The preliminary card for the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Belmont show at Motor Square Garden next Monday night is chock full of boxers who have appeared in wind-ups in this section. Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, and Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, who meet in the eight-round semi-final, both have boxed often in headline spots. Jackie Wilson, whose most recent start was on top against Johnny Datto at Hickey Park, tangles with Young Chaney, of Philadelphia, in the second bout, and Billy Flanagan, Braddock middleweight who meets Lloyd Clements, of Swissvale in the opener, recently has fought a couple of feature bouts in Johnstown.

Pittsburgh Zivic and Terry Wagner may be matched for one of the bouts at the Garden one week from next Monday. The club is trying to line up a main bout for that date to take the place of the Battling Silerz-Sammy Dorfman event, which has been set back a couple of weeks. Ben Jeby and Buck McTiernan are signed for November 9.

Red Rush, Cumberland middleweight, now is under the management of Mike Harding of the North side. He has bested Chuck Zelinski, Harry Martinez, Joe Bonavic, Ralph Barbara and Bruno Sala, among others.

Bill Hood, of England, will make his American debut against Tommy Sullivan in the 10-round semi-final to Benny Leonard's bout with Victorio Lovan at Boston next Tuesday night.

Johnny Judich and Lew Massey have been remunbered for the 10-round windup at the Arena in Philadelphia next Monday night, after having recently fought a draw there. Young Firpo boxes Hermann Perlick, Steve Halaiko meets Jack Portney and Sammy Dortman engages Young Patsy Wallace in the other 10-rounders.

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, boxes Eddie Dunn, of Akron, in a 10-round bout at Akron, O., next Monday night. Two nights later meets Paul Oger at East Liverpool, O.

Flanagan at 'Mike' For Pitt-Irish Tilt

Pat Flanagan, famous for his announcing of the Knute Rockne funeral services, will be at the microphone for the Pitt-Notre Dame game at South Bend, Saturday. Arrangements for the broadcast have been made with Station WBBM, in Chicago, and the program is being sponsored by the C. R. Rogers Company, Philco distributors. WJAS is the local station. A relay of the broadcast at the Carnegie Tech-Purdue game at the Stadium has been agreed upon.

The Ohio State-Northwestern game at Columbus, O., will be broadcast through Station KDKA, with Wallace Butterworth at the microphone.

JONES FAVORS IRISH TO WIN OVER PITT.

By TAD JONES.
Member All-America Board of Football.

Harvard, Cornell, N. Y. U., Colgate, Syracuse, Brown, Columbia and Pittsburgh remain at the top of Eastern football.

Tad Jones

Harvard's impressive victory over the Army, Cornell's overwhelming defeat of Princeton, Columbia's stellar performance against Dartmouth, and Florida's setback at the hands of Syracuse were the outstanding features of last week's games. Just how long these teams will be able to maintain their positions remains to be seen, but it is certain that for some the tenure of the office will be very short.

It seems quite unlikely that Williams will be able to stop the onrush of Columbia. With exceedingly strong ends and a backfield the equal of any in the East, the Morningsiders are making a strong bid for a position in the front rank. The line, adjudged below par before the season opened, has also performed creditably. Columbia is safe for another wek.

Either N. Y. U. or Colgate must drop by the wayside and become just another football team. Here are two elevens with very impressive records to date, and the contest between them should be one of the outstanding games of the week. Colgate, with an unusually strong team, was victorious last year, but the Violet aggregation of 1930 and that of 1931 are quite different in more ways than one, while Colgate at present can hardly boast the strength of last year's team. If called upon to make a choice, I should say, that N. Y. U. will be returned the winner after a close, hard-fought struggle.

SYRACUSE FAVORED

The Syracuse-Penn State affair has developed traditional features, that make anything possible, but in as much as the present Syracuse eleven appears to possess real class it should turn back the State College men without great difficulty.

If scores alone would tell a correct story, Navy would be a favorite to win over Princeton. Princeton, after an impressive showing against Amherst, slipped badly against Brown, and then ran into a crushing defeat by Cornell. But the Navy team has not hit its stride, and therefore a choice becomes difficult. Navy will, I believe, show greater improvement this week than the Orange and Black and should be able to administer a third successive defeat to Princeton.

PITT FACES BIG TEST

Pitt faces a tough one in Notre Dame, but will be in very much better condition both mentally and physically than was the case last year. The experience gained in their previous engagement also will prove invaluable to Pitt. Notre Dame is powerful — more powerful perhaps than last year—but lacks the finesse and polish in the backfield possessed by Carideo, Brill, Savoldi, Mullins and Schwartz. Pitt has a veteran team and will make the going mighty rough for the boys from South Bend, but even so, can hardly be considered the favorite. The game should produce the most brilliant football of the day, with Notre Dame having a slight edge.

While Pitt is facing Notre Dame, Carnegie tangles with Purdue. Purdue features the Notre Dame style of play, and this year has Carideo helping Noble Kizer in the capacity of backfield coach. Wisconsin's surprising victory over Purdue leaves the Boilermaker's real strength in doubt, but I believe the Westerners will be able to establish their superiority over Tech. In veteran experience and reserves Purdue has the call and should be able to work out a very close victory.

Accepting five mounts at Hawthorne, Lewis drove four of them in winners. Three of his victories were in succession, while the fourth was achieved in the sixth event.

D. & E., BOBCATS FAVOR RELIEF GRID GAME

GRAFTON, W. Va., Oct. 22.—A committee headed by Charles O. King, Mayor of Grafton, and composed of Capt. W. H. Arnold, Salvation Army; E. G. Kuhn, and J. L. Evans, Jr., has conferred with athletic officials of West Virginia Wesleyan and Davis and Elkins College regarding a post-season charity football game between the two schools, to be played here December 5.

Cecil B. Ross, Wesleyan coach, and Cam Henderson, Davis-Elkins, said they were willing to play and will make a final decision this week-end. Ross will take the matter before the Wesleyan athletic board Friday night, and Jennings Randolph, D. & E. athletic director, will consider action on Saturday or Sunday at a board meeting in Elkins.

Wesleyan and Davis-Elkins have not met in any athletic sport since 1928, when Wesleyan severed relations over eligibility.

BURNS, OLYMPICS PLAY TIE IN THRILLER

STULGINSKI BREAKS ANKLE; PENDRO HERO

By TOM BIRKS

Staging a thrilling rally in the final minutes of play, the Dan Burns gridders, of New Kensington, came from behind to tie the Beahr Olympics, of McKeesport, 7-7, in the West Penn Football Conference last night at Parnassus High School field.

The hardest-fought Conference game of the season got away to a thrilling start, and probably had a more thrilling finish. With 7,000 fans packing the stands, Boyer's outfit scored its only touchdown on the first play of the contest.

PASS INTERCEPTED

The Olympics punted to Burns, and, with the ball on the Burns' 40-yard line, Stanley Berkman called for a lateral pass. While the ball was in the air, from Gillas to Morbito, Pendro, Tuber end, intercepted it and cleared the field to run for a touchdown. Hooks Carroll booted the extra point.

In the final minutes, Berkman heaved a 40-yard pass to Mercurio, on the one-yard line. Gumball Sharkey was called into action and over went the touchdown, for the thrilling finish. Jones kicked the extra point.

The game was disastrous to Stulginski, Tubeg tackle, who suffered a broken ankle in the third period. Andy Minnich suffered a severe lip laceration.

TRIBUTE TO EDISON

The lights went out for one minute at 10 o'clock in honor of Thomas A. Edison, and, while the field was in darkness, a bugler sounded taps. Burns outplayed the Olympics in the matter of first downs, eight to five, but it was easily the finest game played in the Conference this season. The lineup:

Burns—7.		Olympics—7.
Mercurio	L. E.	McCurdy
Herrington	L. T.	Highberger
Jones	L. G.	Sapp
Blackstone	C.	Minnich
Ewing	R. G.	Sullivan
Redman	R. T.	Stulginsky
Barbero	R. E.	Pendro
Berkman	Q. B.	Godberg
Beahar	L. H.	Carroll
Gillis	R. H.	Benedict
Morbito	F. B.	Halpale

Burns	0	0	0	7	7
Olympics	1	0	0	0	7

Substitutes—Burns, Sharkey, Seyburn, Ford; Olympics, Boyer, Edwards. Touchdowns—Pendro, Sharkey. Goals from touchdown—Carroll, Jones (placement). Referee—Friesel. Umpire—Mackey. Head linesman—Bell. Time of quarters—15 minutes.

PANTHERS GO WEST TONIGHT

seen 'em so set to go, especially this year. They are clicking on the attack and are murder on the defense. Maybe we'll give Purdue a shock. Wait and see."

Station Bob Waddell broadcasting. Bob Waddell the football coach out at Tech. He cracked that way yest'day as his Tartans went through a snappy drill in preparation for Purdue.

For the first time this year, Carnegie has a capable sub ready for every position. Ostrosky and Potts are set to go at the ends. Young Henry Dresher can serve at either tackle, if anything happens to Fletcher or Forsman. Seigel, who was a third-string center until a week or so ago, has been converted into a wow of a second-string guard. Red Jones is a capable understudy for Duke Ducanis at center.

Jerry O'Toole is to be ready to take Pouncey's job at fullback; Johnny Sayles is understudying Kavel at one half and Johnny Graveno or Capt. Murray Armentrout at the other. The outlook is very bright.

PITT PLAYS BREAK IRISH

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—A freshman team using Pittsburgh formations scored with a long forward pass on Notre Dame's varsity, and Coach Hunk Anderson immediately started the hardest workout the Irish have had this season. The freshmen threw more passes and the regulars ran themselves ragged knocking them down. The line also failed to operate to Anderson's satisfaction, and he kept the forwards at work until dark.

"Yes, we may lose by at least two touchdowns Saturday," said Hunk Anderson, Notre Dame coach.

The idea was not his own, but was suggested by a "staunch Notre Dame supporter in Wilkinsburg, Pa., who has seen Pitt play every game for four years and wrote Coach Anderson to that effect.

This letter, which points that Pitt scored very easily three times in the last half of last year's 35-to-19 Irish victory, but nevertheless scored against the Irish shock troops who are regulars this year, drew a frown from Anderson.

"It's probably true," he said, after reading the letter aloud to newspapermen.

PURDUE OFF TONIGHT

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—The work of several sophomores gave a brighter hue to Purdue football prospects yesterday, despite the long list of injuries.

BERT METZGER NOW DELIVERS MORNING MILK

One of the phenoms of the football season last year was Bert Metzger, 150-pound guard of the champion Notre Dame eleven. Now he's delivering milk in Chicago. The trick of it is, though, that he's learning the milk business from the ground up and hopes to be a big milk baron one of these days.

Fred Hecker, Paul Pardonner and Dixie Moore continued to shine in the backfield during a spirited session with the freshmen. A squad of 35 men leaves for Pittsburg tonight to engage Carnegie Tech.

BRANDYWINE HUNT TODAY

The Brandywine Hunters' trials are being held today at Sewickley, with a select field of horses on the lists.

Among the entrants are: Modesty, Miss Lepper, Rapidan, Candidate, Young Dictator, Mitre, Brown Betty, Nancy Lou, Jerry, General Wayne, Question Mark, Leap Year, Bob White, Sargon, Queen Bess, Billy Arnold, Imp, Gayety, Big Ben, Dragoon, Mad Anthony, Griselda, Strike Away, Harkaway, Blazeola, Listen Lester, Canadian Lad, Wavelett's Pride, Carry On, Vixen, Acola, Sandow, John C. Stone, Happy, Drambule, Buddy, Byrd, Rose Marie and Delcanter.

NATIONAL CUP TIE CARDED

With one National amateur cup game, and three interesting games scheduled in the Central League, soccer followers will have some real entertainment Saturday.

The newly-formed Morrys, of Castle Shannon, will be the attraction at Leslie Park, meeting the Pittsburgh Rovers in the first round of the National competition.

It is too bad the game conflicts with the Celtics-Douglas game at Sanders Field, for both the Celtics and Rovers are from Lawrenceville, and the home fans would like to see both contests.

Jimmy Dunlop was anything but satisfied with the showing of the Rovers Saturday against the Germans. Mills and Thompson were a capable pair of backs, but the forward line gave the Rover supporters little to write home about.

The Douglas-Celtics tilt outcome is a tossup. The Celtics flashed great form Saturday in beating the Switch eleven, and Douglas is expected to be just as tough.

Switch will meet National Tube at Swissvale, and Jack Campbell probably will have the boys back in their winning stride. The third game in the loop finds Westinghouse clashing with German Sport at Sullivan Field.

Sunday's outstanding game finds Cecil and Morgan putting on a national amateur fight. Morgan appeared good against Curry. Buff Donnelli will be on the side lines, however, this week, and another center forward will have to be used. Buff is a professional and cannot play in the amateur.

COTTON HOLDS STEADY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 3 points on overnight buying orders. Some buying had been reported to have come from the south and commission houses, but the market eased off slightly after the initial demand had been supplied.

December sold off from 6.81 to 6.72 and March from 7.07 to 6.98. The offerings were absorbed by continued trade buying or covering, however, and prices steadied up again with active months ruling within 2 or 3 points either way of yesterday's closing quotations at the end of the first half hour.

The market eased again later in the morning under a little more southern selling, while the more urgent demand seemed to have been supplied during the early trading, and there was some selling for a reaction or liquidation. December eased off to 6.66 cents and March to 6.93 cents, with the active months showing net declines of about 7 to 12 points at midday. A private report was published estimating the ginnings for the period October 1 to 18 at 4,098,694 bales and the total ginned prior to October 18 at 9,506,694 bales.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 22.—Cotton—Spot good business done; prices 8 points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 5.63; good middling, 5.28; strict middling, 5.08; middling, 4.98; strict low middling, 4.83; low middling, 4.63; strict good ordinary, 4.43; good ordinary, 4.13. GRAIN AVERAGE SHOWS LOSS

CHICAGO, Oct. 22. — Grain prices averaged lower today after an irregular start. Liverpool wheat quotations showed comparative weakness, despite reports that by the end of this month Italy would allow millers to use 25 per cent admixture of foreign wheat compared with 5 per cent at present. Opening ¼ cent off to ¼ up, wheat later sagged all around. Corn started at ⅛ to ¼ decline to ¼ gain and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Resistance to price setbacks in wheat developed in connection with trade reports that Russia was now expected to ship 40,000,000 to 80,000,000 bushels less than last year, and that world demand might exceed last year by 80,000,000 bushels. It was not expected that shipments from Russia would cease abruptly, but a gradual decrease was looked for.

For the first time in some years, world's wheat available supplies fell below those of a corresponding period of the previous year. A September decrease in United States stocks of wheat and in the amount of wheat afloat for importing countries was an offset for increases in Canada and Great Britain.

Stocks Drift Off — Local Market Quiet

STOCK MARKET DRIFTS OFF STEADILY

Rails Conspicuously Heavy, Coppers Rise Momentarily In Sluggish Trading

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP.)—The stock market drifted somewhat lower today, as Wall street was preoccupied with the arrival in this country of Premier Laval, of France, the meeting of railway executives in Atlantic City, and the possibility of a further change in the rediscount rate after the close.

Save for a momentary upturn in the coppers, the market drifted almost steadily lower, with rails conspicuously heavy. But trading was extremely sluggish, and the market seemed to reflect little save neglect. Losses of 1 to 3 points were numerous, but on the whole the movement was narrow.

In the coppers, such issues as Anaconda, Kennecott, Inspiration and Granby rose a point or so, but these advances were not well maintained. Among shares declining 2 or 3 points were New York Central, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Santa Fe, Eastman, Coca Cola, Johns Manville, American Telephone and Consolidated Gas, General Electric, General Motors, United States Steel and others lost a point or so.

The two increases of 1 per cent in the New York rediscount rate in the past two weeks, lifting it to 3½ per cent, has left Wall street in a mood to expect almost anything from the Thursday meeting of the Reserve directors, but in the main, bankers seemed to feel today that the present rate was high enough. Nevertheless, it was acknowledged that it is still considerably below the average for the past several years.

The runup in the copper shares was another effort based on the conversations here of leading world producers.

News from the steel industry gave some fresh hope that a belated seasonal upturn would result from automotive, railroad and structural requirements. Republic Steel Corporation has resumed operations of four furnaces which had been idle for a few days, bringing the aggregate rate of operations in the Youngstown area up to 26 per cent of capacity, from 22.

The money market gave no inkling of any further advance in the rediscount rate. Call money was offered outside at 2 per cent, against the official rate of 2½, and some maturities of time money were slightly easier. Bankers' acceptances were unchanged.

Dole for Weak Corporations From Strong? Has Rail Commission or Railroads Fallen Down On Job?

—By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.

MUST A CORPORATION become its brother's keeper?

"Yes."

Isn't this a brand new business philosophy?

Is it likely to be accepted?

B. C. Forbes

The answer will very shortly come—probably in no uncertain language and tone—from our railroads.

BRIEFLY, THE railroads have been denied (not unexpectedly) their request for a 15 per cent rate increase calculated to yield $500,000,000, but have been offered various increases on various commodities (except farm products), estimated to yield between $100,000,000 and $125,000,000, provided every penny of the increase is put into a pool to be used in whatever amount may be needed to take care of the fixed obligations of weak roads.

CAN YOU IMAGINE the United States Steel Corporation being ordered to help out weak sisters in the steel industry? Can you imagine the leading department store or stores in every city being ordered to hand over money to keep tottering stores alive?

Can you imagine the strongest newspapers being ordered to meet the deficits of second-rate sheets? Can you imagine the trolley company in one community being ordered to make good the losses of trolley companies in other communities?

Can you imagine the American Telephone Company being ordered to supply funds to myriads of small telephone companies unable to paddle their own canoes?

GOVERNMENTAL DECREES seeking to compel strong enterprises to bolster up weak ones haven't fizzed, but fizzled, in the past.

Recall what happened when numbers of states passed laws guaranteeing bank deposits. In effect, strong, well-managed institutions were ordered to bear the losses incurred by weak, poorly - managed — sometimes dishonestly managed—institutions. Such legislation was lauded by its misguided sponsors as idealistic, as in harmony with the golden rule.

But it didn't work. It militated against the capable, the honest, the industrious, and encouraged the inefficient, the lax, the unscrupulous. The result was that state after state had to repeal the guarantee law. None now exists.

WHAT OF THE Interstate Commerce Commission itself? Congress conceived the beautiful idea of "recapturing" half of the earnings of any and every railroad succeeding in making better than six per cent. "recaptured" money to be used to help out roads unable to earn their own keep.

Lo and behold, the very same Interstate Commerce Commission that now tells the strong roads they must pony up to help impecunious roads, recently urged Congress to abandon the whole "recapture" principle!

Having only recently urged the abolition of the strong-must-help-the-weak principl they now propose exactly the same principle!

WASHINGTON HAS invariably expressed horror whenever the leaders in any of our major industries have proposed getting together for the purpose of co-operating to eliminate [illegible] and bring about more stable, more profitable conditions. The Department of Justice has been most finicky on this score.

Cut-throat competition might be ruining an industry and playing havoc with the well-being of the wage-earners engaged in it; that was O. K. in the eyes of the Department of Justice, but there must be no laying heads together to improve prices or "restrict" disastrous competition.

Yet, from this same Washington now comes the proposal that the railroad industry follow that proscribed principle through pooling of traffic.

THE INTERSTATE Commerce Commission was expressly charged by the transportation act of 1920 to see to it that the railroads of this country were given opportunity to earn 5½ per cent (or six) on their property investment.

But, thanks to continual interference by the commission, thanks to its perpetual meddling with railway management, thanks to its unsound whittling down of rates, the railroads have never been able to earn as much as 5½ per cent even in their most prosperous years—this notwithstanding that admittedly there has been a tremendous improvement in operating efficiency and economy.

THE QUESTION is: Which has fallen down on the job, the railroads or their dictators, their masters, the Interstate Commerce Commissioners?

THE COMMISSION having taken the stand it has taken, the country may as well become reconciled to a battle for railway wage reductions.

Broader Reserve Powers to Be Suggested

This is the final article of a series describing the workings of the Federal Reserve System and discussing the changes in its operations which probably will be suggested at the next session of Congress.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

CHANGES IN THE FEDERAL RESERVE Act, which have been under discussion this year, would materially increase the types of securities suitable for collateral for member bank borrowing.

At the present time only one kind of bank asset can be discounted at Federal Reserve Banks. This is commercial paper. Banks can also borrow with United States government securities as collateral. These limitation were originally placed upon Reserve powers in order to keep the system in a thoroughly liquid position.

When business is booming the banks usually have plenty of eligible commercial paper on hand but, when times are hard, business borrows less money and bank holdings of discountable paper are limited. At present only a small part of the outstanding commercial paper has been discounted but this is due to the fact that most of the undiscounted portion is in the hands of strong banks while the weaker institutions in need of help find their money tied up in other quarters.

Credit Corporation Formed

THE NATIONAL CREDIT Corporation is being formed as a temporary remedy for this situation. It will be able to use its funds for loans to banks on collateral which the Federal Reserve is not allowed to accept. When President Hoover announced his bank relief plan he also proposed that the Federal Reserve Act be changed to give the board powers to meet emergency conditions without the necessity for forming special relief organizations in the future.

Banks have large portions of their money invested in the bonds of corporations, in mortgages and in loans of types other than commercial paper. They usually have money loaned to individuals with stocks or bonds as collateral. Companies engaged in financing installment payments on automobiles and other products also have been making increased use of bank credit.

Collateral Loans Considered

THE REDISCOUNTING OF COLLATERAL loans may be one change to be suggested in Reserve operations. This may be subject to severe criticism, however, since the indirect use of Federal Reserve money to finance stock operations was under fire during the last bull market. Rediscounting of collateral loans would be desirable since the security can be immediately liquidated. It would be necessary, however, to place restrictions on this type of business to prevent the use of large amounts of credit for the inflation of stock prices.

Provisions for bank borrowing on real estate mortgages and on holdings of investment securities may also be suggested. Mortgage discounting would be particularly helpful in the Western states but they have the objectionable feature of not being liquid.

The extension of Reserve credit facilities to notes with installment accounts as collateral will be another suggested reform. It is possible that this type of paper might be eligible for rediscounting without making changes in the existing law.

Bankers are proceeding with extreme caution in considering Reserve changes. They feel that the extension of the list of eligible paper may be extremely helpful in times of emergency but they realize that there will always be a danger of destroying the liquidity of the system. Many banks might have been saved this year by broader Reserve powers but this would have been a doubtful help if the system had been burdened with an excess of frozen assets.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The bond market was irregularly higher today as trading continued at a moderate pace. Railroad loans were generally lower. United States government issues gained moderately and foreign and public obligations were fractionally higher as a rule. Most foreign bonds were much less active than usual.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

THE LOVE TRAP

Story of a Girl's Struggle For Love and Happiness

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

Prominent Sportsman Takes Fancy to Motherless Girl in Park

she was not worried about a job, but she was a little worried—about life—

Right after her mother's death, Harold Bailey had proposed to her. He was a nice-looking boy who called himself an accountant and earned $40 a week as a bookkeeper. What he wanted, he said was a cozy nest and a dream-girl like Mary. She had known Harold two years, and he was a steady, clean-cut boy. Only . . .

She realized, a little grimly, that her mother had been right. Very gently, but firmly, she rejected Harold's suit. In this particular case, at least, she had no intention whatever of being a young man's slave. Nor an old man's darling, exactly. The idea of marriage was not at all pressing, anyway.

What she liked best to do in these first few days of her freedom was to enjoy her new sense of privacy.

There was a feeling that some strangely pleasant form of existence was about to dawn upon her. It was nice, for instance, to sit in Central Park afternoons and luxuriate in the dreams of youth. She saw great terraced hotels and apartment houses rising like cathedrals to the sky. She had long, unhurried hours filled with the subtle thrill of facing the world unafraid.

In the back part of her mind she knew this could last only a few days. For the first time in her life she was having a real vacation.

TALKS TO STRANGER

One thing that Mary learned in Central Park was to cultivate a cold, malevolent stare that was sufficiently tinged with contempt to drive off the males who sauntered hopefully past her bench. Her mood was not romantic; besides, she had an innate pride that would never permit her to be "picked up."

A more than middle-aged man, who scarcely seemed to notice her, dropped down on the bench. Mary did not deign to notice him, but a corner of her eye gathered that he wore a stylish gray felt hat and carried a cane.

He lit a long cigar and again the tail of her eye discerned more about him. Obviously, he was not trying to flirt with her—not in the usual manner, anyway. His whole preoccupation was with the cigar; his face was stern and hard, with a stony mouth. That was one attractive thing about him—it was plain that he was perfectly sure of himself in everything he did. Mary knew immediately that he was a definite man, that he was not squeamish about things. His ego radiated faintly from his person and carried with it a cool thrust of power. A man like this, she found herself speculating, would never be in doubt about anything.

Before she realized it, she was talking to him.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Landers."

FRANK WITH HER

Landers nodded to him; he did not smile but his eyes were amiable. He said to Mary:

"Well, I reckon that proves I'm respectable and it won't harm you any if we get to talking."

His eyes were gray, like flint; there was nothing of youth in his colorless face. His long body had a bony strength. Mary decided he interested her, but did not attract her.

"Why do you want to talk to me?" she asked him, unruffled.

"Mainly because you're a pretty girl, I suppose. You wanted a straightforward answer."

"How do you know I want to talk to you?"

He smiled for the first time, with a touch of condescension. "Well, a lot of people think I'm worth talking to. A lot of important people, too. Sometimes my conversation is worth money; did you think I was just a common masher?"

"No."

They gazed at each other, warily yet frankly.

"I'm not a man that falls for many girls," he said slowly. He drew on his cigar and emitted a cloud of fragrant smoke. "I saw you sitting on this bench when I was a hundred yards away and I thought you looked dependable. I seemed to know that, even before I saw you were a good looker."

She could feel the approval of his gaze; but there was a frankness about him that put her at ease. Men who admired a girl openly were not dangerous; besides he was so much older. Fifty, perhaps. With older men it was always easier for the girl to retain the upper hand, and, undeniably, he had a keen personality that she liked. She knew, instinctively, that he would not try to hand her a line, to put out any bunk flattery.

"Are you in the habit of speaking to strange girls?" she inquired, pleasantly malicious.

"Not in recent years," he returned calmly. "I got my fill of that long ago."

"Then, I suppose I am to feel flattered?" she said.

A PROMINENT PERSON

But trying to ruffle his feelings was as futile as pecking at a granite ledge with a tack hammer. He ignored her small gulle.

"No, I just thought I'd like to talk to you, because I sort of liked you. The fact is, you look restful to me. I've just come away from one of the other kind—one of those beauties that's all fireworks."

"Your wife?"

"Not exactly. I'm not married to her, thank God. She was just threatening to stick a knife in my ribs."

Mary's brows lifted in surprise. She wondered how his dignity had held up under such a scene!

"You poor man—tell me more," she murmured half-mockingly.

There was a silence, as he puffed on his cigar, before he spoke again.

"It's a funny thing that I should start in spilling this stuff—to a strange girl like you. Do you know I'm supposed to be the most closed-mouth man in New York?"

"I don't know anything about you."

"Well, if you ever read the sporting page in the papers, you should know who Buck Landers is. That's me. I've been in the public eye promoting prize fights, owning a racing stable and operating amusement rackets for 20 years. Done right well at it, too. Stop the first man you meet—stop a newsboy even, and he'll tell you who Buck Landers is. Mean to tell me you never heard the name before?"

LIMELIGHT TIRESOME

A thrill came over Mary. It occurred to her that she knew Buck Landers by reputation! She had heard his name mentioned dozens of times by men discussing sporting events, and she remembered a rotogravure picture of him last winter, taken at Miami with a group of millionaires. He was as famous as Jimmy Walker, almost.

"I never thought I'd be talking to anyone as prominent as you, Mr. Landers," she said honestly.

"Yes, I may be prominent, but sometimes it gets a little tiresome to live in the spotlight," he declared. "It gets lonesome sometimes, it does for a fact. Maybe that's why I felt a hunch that I'd just like to sit down and chat a while with some nice sweet girl. As a rule, I never open up to anybody, but I suppose we'd all be better off if we'd spill the works once in a while. What do you think?"

Mary nodded. "I suppose we all have our troubles, but with all your money—I shouldn't think you'd have to worry about anything."

"That's what I used to think myself, in the old days," Buck Landers declared, a far-away look in his steady eyes. "I've learned different. I got a thrill out of pulling off something big, but a man can't live on excitement alone; he needs something quieter. Take New York—I can have practically anything I want in this town. Anything that money and pull can get. But those things are not enough to make me happy. Take women—the most beautiful women on earth are in New York. I know one of them."

OFFERED POSITION

It struck Mary that the same words coming from a lesser man would have sounded silly. But, already, she was beginning to feel the full force of Buck Lander's personality. Imperceptibly, he drew from her a peculiar allegiance. He was the strangest man she had ever met, and somehow his strength exuded and fortified her. It pleased her, too, that he could so easily be frank with her, a stranger. She felt a little important.

"But haven't you a lot of friends?" she queried.

"How do I know? I've never needed friends. A lot of guys hang around me because they hope to get something out of me. When I want something I pay for it. If Buck Landers happened to wind up in the gutter, I don't know how many friends he could count on. None maybe."

Mary looked at him closely. No, there was little of happiness in his face. He looked as mechanical as a cash register.

"I've heard it said," she remarked, "that you could not have much friendship unless you give out a lot of it in return."

His mouth formed a hard, straight line.

"I pay my debts in life. Sometimes, maybe, I do a little more; how about you?"

"People like me don't matter much, in places like New York," Mary said philosophically. "I'm just a stenographer."

"Got a job?"

"No."

Landers got upon his feet. His hat, his cane, the polish of his shoes gave him an almost aggressive smartness.

"Any time you want a good job, you call me up at the Metropolis Hotel and I'll put you in a good spot," he said abruptly. "That's not a bluff. Maybe you and I could be friends—maybe not. Think it over."

Without a word further, he turned from her and walked down the graveled path, his cane hooked in his arm, and the blue fragrance of his cigar trailing behind him. For a half hour Mary sat there pondering—wondering if she had the courage to take advantage of his offer.

He smiled. "Well, a lot of people think I'm worth talking to."

The Road Back

By ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Just outside the village we find a little beer garden where already there are a few tables standing out in the open. Though Valentin is due back at his swing-boats in an hour, we still sit ourselves down for a quick one, to make the best of our time, for who knows when we shall be together again.

A pale sunset is coloring the sky. I cannot help thinking still of that scene back in the woods. "My heavens, Willy," I say, "here we are alive still and only just out of it—how is it possible there should already be such people to do that sort of thing?"

"There will always be such people," answers Willy, unusually earnest and thoughtful. "but don't forget us, we are here, too. And there's a lot of people think as we do. Most of them, probably. Ever since then—you know, since Ludwig passed away—all sorts of things have been going around in my head, and I've come to the conclusion that everybody can do something in his own way, even though he may have nothing but a turnip for a head. My holidays are over next week, and I'll have to go to the village as a school ...r again. And, you know, positively glad of it. I to teach my youngsters ...at their Fatherland really is. Their homeland, that is, not a political party. Their homeland is trees, fields, earth, none of your fulsome catchwords. I've considered it all on and off a long time, and I've decided that we're old enough now to do some sort of a job. And that's mine. It's not big, I admit. But sufficient for me—and I'm no Goethe, of course."

FEAR VANISHES

I nod and look at him a long while. Then we set off.

The chauffeur is waiting for us. The car glides softly through the slowly gathering twilight. We are already approaching the town and the first lights have shown up when there mingles with the crunching and grinding of the tires a long-drawn, hoarser, throaty sound. In an easterly direction across the evening sky there moves a wedge-shaped flight—a flock of wild geese!

We look at it—Kosole is about to say something, but then is silent. We are all thinking the same thing. Then comes the town with streets and noise. Valentin climbs out. Then Willy. Then Kosole.

I was the whole day in the wood. Weary now, I have turned in at a little country inn and taken a room for the night. The bed is already open, but I do not want to sleep yet. I sit down in the window and listen to the stirrings of the spring night.

Shadows flit about among the trees and up from the woods come cries, as though wounded were lying there. I look quietly and composedly out into the darkness, for I am afraid of the past no longer. I look into its quenched eyes without flinching. I even go out to meet it. I send my thoughts back into the dug-outs and shell holes—but when they return they bring back neither fear nor horror with them, but only strength and will.

ROAD OF TOIL

I have awaited a storm that should deliver me, pluck me away and now it has come softly, even without my knowledge. But it is here. While I was despairing, thinking, everything lost, it was already quietly growing. I had thought that division was always an end. Now I know that growth also is division. And growth means relinquishing. And growth has no end.

One part of my life was given over to the service of destruction; it belonged to hate, to enmity, to killing. But life remained in me. And that in itself is enough, of itself almost a purpose and a way. I will work in myself and be ready; I will bestir my hands and my thoughts. I will not take myself very seriously, nor push on when sometimes I should like to be still. There are many things to be built and almost everything to repair; it is enough that I work to dig out again what was buried during the years of shells and machine guns. Not everyone need be a pioneer; there is employment for feebler hands, lesser powers. It is there I mean to look for my place. Then the dead will be silenced and the past not pursue me any more! it will assist me instead.

How simple it is—but how long it has taken to arrive there! And I might still be wandering in the wilderness, have fallen victim to the wire snares and the detonators, had Ludwig's death not gone up before us like a rocket, lighting to us the way. We despaired when we saw how that great stream of feeling common to us all—that will to a new life shorn of follies, a life recaptured on the confines of death—did not sweep away before it all surviving half-truth and self-interest, so to make a new course for itself, but instead of that merely trickled away in the marshes of forgetfulness, was lost among the bogs of fine phrases, and dribbled away along the ditches of social activities, of cores and occupations. But today I know that all life is perhaps only a getting ready, a ferment in the individual, in many cells, in many channels, each for himself; and if the cells and channels of a tree but take up and carry farther the onward urging sap, there will emerge at the last rustling and sunlit branches—crowns of leaves and freedom. I will begin.

It will not be that consummation of which we dreamed in our youth and that we expected after the years out there. It will be a road like other roads, with stones and good stretches, with places torn up, with villages and fields—a road of toil. And I shall be alone. Perhaps sometimes I shall find someone to go with me a stage of the journey—but for all of it, probably no one.

LIFE GOES ON

And I may often have to hump my pack still, when my shoulders are already weary; often hesitate at the crossways and boundaries; often have to leave something behind me, often stumble and fall. But I will get up again and not just lie there; I will go on and not look back—Perhaps I shall never be really happy again; perhaps the war has destroyed that, and no doubt I shall always be a little inattentive and nowhere quite at home—but I shall probably never be wholly unhappy either—for something will always be there to sustain me, be it merely my own hands, or a tree, or the breathing earth.

The sap mounts in the stems, the buds burst with faint sound, and the darkness is full of the noises of growth. There is night in the room, and the moon. There is life in the room. It creaks in the furniture, the table cracks and the wardrobe also. Many years ago someone felled these and split them, planed them and worked them into things of utility, into chairs and beds—but each springtime, in the darkness of the sap, it stirs and reverberates in them again; they waken, they stretch themselves, they are mere objects of use no longer, no longer chairs for a purpose; once again they have part in the streaming and flowing outside. The boards under my feet creak and move of themselves, the wood of the windowsill cracks under my hands, and in front of the door even the splintered, decaying trunk of a lime tree by the roadside is thrusting out fat brown buds. In a few weeks it will have little silken green leaves, as surely as the wide-spreading branches of the plane tree overshadowing it.

"Pleased to meet you," murmured Lucy, blushing and noticing that Gadwall wore no shoes. "Merciful heaven!" muttered Freemantle Gadwall, staring with a look of horror on his face over Lucy's shoulder. A Deserved Rebuke Usurpation of Authority by Police Court Magistrates Is Responsible for Many Evils.

Judge Frank P. Patterson took Police Court Magistrate J. J. O'Connor to task in Criminal Court yesterday for assuming jurisdiction in a robery case and letting the defendant off with a $25 fine instead of holding him for the grand jury, as the law requires.

The rebuke was deserved.

Such unlawful usurpation of authority by police court magistrates and other petty judges has long been a weak spot in our system of dealing with criminals and has been responsible for many evils.

The effect has been particularly bad in cases involving commercial vice, operation of speakeasies, gambling houses, slot machines and lotteries.

Where prima facie evidence is given of the violation of the laws forbidding these things it is the magistrate's duty to hold the accused for the grand jury. Only too frequently, however, the magistrates have assumed jurisdiction themselves, made the charge "disorderly conduct" or "suspicious person" and either discharged the culprits or let them off with light fines.

It has amounted to the licensing of vice.

It is to be hoped Judge Patterson's rebuke and his statement that magistrates thus usurping authority are liable to prosecution for misfeasance will stop the practice.

The Election Inquiry

Judge Patterson's Charge to the Grand Jury No Doubt Will Prove Stimulating.

With 58 persons already indicted on charges of fraud and intimidation of voters in the primary, investigation of the election was reopened yesterday by another grand jury.

Judge Patterson delivered a stimulating address, calling attention to the grand jury's broad powers and emphasizing the importance of a thorough inquiry into the manner in which tax receipts were issued for election purposes.

Coupled with District Attorney Park's unflagging zeal, Judge Patterson's charge no doubt will result in continuation of the praiseworthy work already done in this inquiry.

The investigation must go on until the conduct of every ·ion official, every politician and every gangster against ·here rests the slightest suspicion of wrongdoing has ·oroughly examined.

·his is the most important work that lies before the public prosecutor. The very foundations of the government rest on the honesty of our elections, and so long as there is doubt of the citizens' ability to put into office the candidates of their choice there can be no hope of improving conditions.

It is true that the dishonest political organizations suffered a defeat in the primary. But it was not a severe defeat, and to make them realize that their dishonesty is not profitable it is important that their election crooks and thugs in every district, as well as their leaders who were responsible for these methods, shall be brought to book as promptly as it lies within the power of the District Attorney to bring them.

Arbor and Bird Day

Tomorrow Is an Appropriate Occasion to Plant Trees and Learn Something About Nature's Ways.

As provided by law Gov. Pinchot has designed tomorrow as Fall Arbor and Bird Day.

The public schools are required to take cognizance of the day by devoting attention to the study of trees and birds and the benefits they confer on mankind. Many women's clubs also observe the day. It deserves everyone's notice.

Gov. Pinchot's proclamation is a little different this year. He reminds the people that the Legislature at its last session designated the hemlock as Pennsylvania's state tree and the ruffed grouse as our state bird, and recommends that they be studied as "outstanding types of the hundreds of species of trees and birds that grace our Commonwealth."

He also recommends that shade trees be planted in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

It is interesting to note in this connection that 30,000 Washington memorial trees have been planted by the prisoners at the Rockview Penitentiary and have been registered on the national honor roll of the American Tree Association, which sponsored the idea of commemorating the bicentennial with trees.

It would be a splendid thing for Pennsylvania if 10,000,000 trees should be planted tomorrow—one for every citizen—as Pinchot urges.

Edison and the Schools

Pittsburgh Should Have Commemorative Exercises for the Children's Benefit.

Unlike the school authorities in some of the great American cities, the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education has made no arrangements for exercises in honor of Thomas Alva Edison.

This is a regrettable omission.

The illustrious inventor was one of the world's greatest men, and it should be impressed on all American school children that he was their fellow-countryman and died during their lifetime.

Just think what pride children who heard Edison on the radio are going to have years hence in telling of it. It will be scarcely less thrilling to be able to recall having attended commemorative exercises at the time of his death.

Pittsburgh schools should have such exercises. They can be made highly educational.

Police Identify Notorious 18th Amendment Gang

(Copyright, 1931.)

They're identified all right, and old man Prohibition is responsible for the sorrow of that dear little girl, "America's Prospects," and his helpers, racketeers, bandits, bootleggers, child-killers.

But what's the good of mere IDENTIFICATION if nothing is done?

Mr. Business Revival would like to see old man Prohibition attended to. But "liking" and "doing" are different.

These new additions to the Rogues' Gallery are evidently there to stay. Old Prohibition has created the rackets and the bootlegging for his criminal crowd. And the criminal crowd will see to it that nothing is done to interfere with HIM. Does he need money? He can have a roll big enough to choke a dinosaur.

It is said that "every people gets the kind of Government it deserves." We must deserve prohibition government, since that is what we're getting.

Marry-Go-Round

The Weak Spot in Man's Make-Up

You may question a man's sincerity, doubt his veracity, argue about his religion and even disapprove of his politics—but never question his JUDGMENT!

A woman doesn't have to "take anything" from the man she marries, these days—not even his name or his money or his family crest.

But if she wants to live happily and serenely with him, she had better take his ADVICE. And LIKE it!

The one infallible way to win a man's admiration, if not his heart, is to ask him for his ADVICE.

It's like feeding peanuts to the circus elephant. You can't overdo it—and they DO love it so!

Beg him to explain the gold standard to you, or persuade him to help you mold your political opinions. Ask him to help you pick out your new car, or tell him that you have a queer headache, and let him prescribe for it. Let him "tell you all about" something, no matter how much you know about it!

After that, there is nothing more to do except tie the ribbons on his leash and teach him to catch bonbons on his nose.

There is nothing on earth that a man prizes so highly and cherishes so devoutly as his own counsel! You may scorn his love, trample on his heart and outrage his Victorian notions of propriety—but beware how you trifle with his "advice."

As long as you remember his wise and wonderful counsels, to "hold them sacred," you are on the safe side of his friendship, and on the right road to his heart.

Even a waiter melts and becomes human when you look up at him confidingly and inquire, "What would YOU advise me to order, Francis? YOU always know what's best!"

And if you want a nice, safe, smooth ride in a taxi, don't start by telling the taxi-driver to take you through Maple street and up the boulevard. Win his mercy and approval, first, by asking him what he THINKS of the Maple street route.

The average woman spends at least one-quarter of her life in listening to masculine "suggestions." If she should carry around all the gratuitous advice she receives, she would have to pay excess baggage, wherever she went.

Telling a woman how to do things is an ingrowing weakness in the masculine make-up. Whether it's about cooking, finance, carpentry, politics, or philosophy, ALL men have wonderful judgment. Ask them.

* * *

The quickest and surest way to a man's heart is not through his stomach, but through his love of dispensing wisdom to the female of the species, and scattering pearls of thought.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

This "high standard of living" we Americans boast about . . . I never can decide whether it's the peak point of human achievement or just a bad pipe dream.

Whichever it is, it certainly has raised Cain with our affairs. For the last 10 years we've been living high, wide 'n' handsome. Acquiring Things. Beautiful, expensive, convenient, powerful, amusing, exciting things. And the more Things we acquired the more Things we wanted to acquire. Until the whole country went loco over things. Those who weren't buying them, were making them.

Then something happened and we got Depression. And now we're all belliakin. Some of us have good reason. Some of us are starving. But most of us aren't within a hundred miles of starving. We aren't even facing any actual hardship. We'll just have to live cheap and simple again, as our grandmas did—wear last year's suit, cut out the parties, wash our own dishes—put the famous High Standard of Living in cold storage for a while. But, to hear us yell, you'd think we were being murdered. For we're convinced that we are failures, nationally and individually, unless we can keep up Our Front.

Do you think that's so? Do you think it's good or necessary for a big nation to base its culture on Things . . . to depend for its comfort and livelihood on Things?

Lately I've been ranching in a country where folks get along without Things . . . Scattered ranches in mighty wild mountain land. Poor families, mostly. Chances are that most of them haven't $50 in actual cash to winter through on. No sales this last season. Didn't pay to pick the apples or dig the potatoes, except for home use. Cattle in poor shape because of the dry spring. Pork only bringing 7½c. Not an encouraging prospect—but they're not grumbling. Long as you have a roof over your head, enough grub and a box of shells, what more do you want?

Maybe you wouldn't think much of either the roof or the grub. Beans, salt pork, coffee, corn meal, bacon, a few sacks of turnips, parsnips, beets, potatoes, apples—some home-canned fruit. And the house—a ramshackle pile of—bits of tin patching the roof—paper pasted across the broken windows. Not very ritzy? No.

But take it on a rainy night. Rabbit stew bubbling on the old stove . . . kerosene lamp light shining warm on the rag rug and the potted geranium. Pa and the boys oiling traps, or cleaning guns with the old hound dog watching them through a sleepy eye. Ma patching overalls—gossiping over the party line with Mrs. Allen, who lives four miles down the road and Miss Brown who lives up over the ridge. Kids doing "home work." Some talk going on about whether they'll sow the south field to barley or oats this year. Or figuring how maybe at last they can pipe the spring into the kitchen. Long about eight, everybody beginning to yawn—

Not very exciting. No city lights. No movies. Nothing but a shabby room and a saggy bed, with the rain pattering on a patched old roof—Bet you, stranger, you'd get the jitters if you had to stand a winter of that. But they stand it—stand years of it, with never a touch of the High Standard of Living, unless maybe it's the party line or a fifth-hand flivver. Of course, they'd like the trimmings—if they could have 'em. And they'd become just as excited and extravagant, stuck-up and discontented as the rest of us. But suppose they had Things . . . WOULD THEY GET MORE OUT OF LIFE THAN THEY'RE GETTING NOW?

Ignorant? Lazy? Not ambitious? Maybe they're all of that. But they've leisure. And they're leisure. And they're contentment and health—something that plenty of us lack under the H. S. O. L.

Totaling up the two records—

The city man's, whose life depends on having Things or making them—

The country man's, who gets along without Things, and gets his makin's out of the soil and himself—

How Cope Opposed Darwinian Theories

By Archibald Henderson

In the history of science, from time to time, there emerges some figure who seems to enlarge with the field of his inquiry. As his scope of study increases, he develops correspondingly to meet it; and eventually becomes a master in some great domain of scientific investigation. Study and research stimulate such a man to the higest reaches of which his mentality is capable.

Such a man was Edward Drinker Cope, one of the great figures in American science, whose biography has only recently appeared. Cope was a native of Philadelphia. After receiving a primary education in private schools, he took a course in anatomy at the University of Pennsylvania. Owing to his competent knowledge of biology, he became associated with a group of young naturalists at the Smithsonian Institution under Prof. Baird. Beginning in 1859, he made contributions to scientific publications on the subject of reptiles.

As early as 1693 an attempt at a system of classification of reptiles had been made by the English naturalist, Ray. Although the principle of classification was correct, the knowledge of reptiles at this time was too limited to give great value to Ray's results. The system of Linnaeus was faulty, and was finally abandoned. Cope made an exhaustive study, not only of living forms, but also of the remains of extinct forms. In 1863 he went to Europe and examined the reptilian collections in the great museums there. By his persistent study and wide research, he made an unexampled collection of reptiles, living and extinct.

After his return to this country, Cope was professor of natural science at Haverford College from 1864 to 1867. Stimulated by his European studies, he widened the field of his research and began to devote himself to paleontology. The result was his appointment as survey of the region west of the hundredth meridian. In 1872 he received an appointment as vertebrate paleontologist to the United States Geological and Geographical Survey of the Territories, under Dr. F. V. Hayden.

The range of his discoveries regarding fishes and reptiles was immense, many new types of which he discovered. The first of his important works was Vertebrata of the Cretaceous Formations of the West, published in 1875. Eight years later appeared his Vertebrata of the Tertiary Formations of the West. It is a remarkable proof of the great value and originality of his that of the 349 species which he described, he was the discoverer of all but 32.

After 30 years of exploratory work in the fossil-bearing regions of the western parts of the United States, Cope was appointed professor of zoology and comparative anatomy at the University of Pennsylvania where, upon the death of Leidy, he became professor of geology and paleontology.

Cope was a leader in America of the evolutionists of the neo-Lamarckian school of thought, as opposed to the Darwinian view that natural selection was the guiding principle in differentiation. Cope contended that effort or use exerted by the living being on its own body is the reason why variations occur for natural selection to play on. These views were expressed in two notable scientific works.

Evils of Capitalization Show Need of Supervision

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE drastic decline in the last two years of the general level of commodity prices, which may be described as an appreciation in the value of gold, has upset the expectations on which the capitalization of American corporations was based.

Specifically, the rise in the purchasing power of money has added to the real burden of all corporate fixed charges, including interest and rent.

Furthermore, the capacity to pay dividends on a 1929 boom stock capitalization has been altered by the fact that at the lower price level company transactions involve fewer dollars, and the opportunity for profits, measured in dollars, has likewise diminished.

Accordingly, if business is to be stabilized at the present low price level, the financial clothing, or capitalization, of American corporations, is too large, and will have to be scaled down.

THIS statement is not really as alarming as it sounds because the security markets have already accomplished this painful process of writing down values.

As a matter of fact, security prices at present make no allowance for the fact that business may ultimately—and doubtless should—be stabilized on the basis of a higher commodity price level than now prevails.

Moved by greed and by a desire to exploit market opportunities up to the hilt, investment banking firms, with few exceptions, in bringing out new issues, based calculations on the assumption that boom earnings were normal earnings. They even went further and overcapitalized boom earnings in accordance with the "new era" doctrine that there would be an uninterrupted progression of increases in profits from year to year.

As a result, two types of dangerous overcapitalization took place, and for the last two desperate years the market place has been engaged to a large extent in liquidating the earlier blunders.

THE first type of overcapitalization may be described as pyramiding. This entails having an unbalanced capitalization, with a disproportionate amount, sometimes 90 per cent in bonds, and as little as 10 per cent in stock. As a result, in good times, the per share earnings on the common stock were exaggerated, whereas in periods of acute depression the common stock would show little or no earnings.

The second type involved the overissue of securities in companies which nevertheless continued to maintain balanced capital structures as between junior and senior securities. This method entailed a riot of so-called melon cutting, stock splits ups, rights and stock dividends.

Technically, a 5 for 1 stock split-up, for example, involves only exchanging five nickels for a quarter, but psychologically it puts a burden on management to try to show adequate earnings on the new and larger amount of shares outstanding.

As a result, there was a disposition to divert too large a share of the proceeds of improved management and of labor saving machinery to profits on capital. Experience in the last two years has demonstrated that it would have been wiser to have shared such benefits more fully with consumers in the form of lower prices and with labor in the form of higher wages or shorter hours.

THE practice of running companies with an eye on the stock market, rather than in a scientific spirit based on an analysis of consumption markets, built up an unsound business structure.

The question before the American people is whether they are ready to leave investment bankers unhampered to go through a similar period of reckless overcapitalization in the next period of good business.

To do so would be to render the whole welfare of society subject to the whims of speculative financiers.

The so-called blue sky laws do not meet the situation because they seek to deal mainly with the fraudulent fringe and exempt listed securities.

A model for dealing with the problem of overcapitalization was the war-time capital issues committee, which supervised all new security offerings.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Every restaurant, small and large, cheap and high priced, faces the problem of handling "walkers"—the term for those who stroll out without paying the check. The loss by such deceptions is in thousands and mounting daily.

In opulent times the remedy is comparatively simple—arrest and prosecution. But with many actually hungry, proprietors are reluctant to act. Especially so when any number eat their fill and when caught confess frankly inability to pay.

One hashery on the Bowery collects when food is served. A tea room on Lexington avenue requires patrons to buy luncheon or dinner checks upon entering which are collected by waitresses before serving. Yet the gyping is not confined entirely to modest places.

Indeed it is accomplished the easiest in expensive Mayfair cafes where no rigid watch is maintained. One well dressed fellow nabbed exiting on Fifth avenue confessed he had been lunching for several months in the very best dining rooms free.

"I just walk in, eat and walk out," he said. "Until today no one ever stopped me." However, in many instances, hardships fall on the waiters. They are held strictly accountable for checks not settled.

Senator Henry J. Allen, famous Kansan, and Frank Phillips, equally famous Oklahoma oil magnate, began careers as small town barbers. And are proud of it, as they should be. I somehow thought of them today in meeting the rich scion of a Middle West junk dealer. "My dad," he was telling a group, "spent most of his life collecting antiques."

Incidentally, Frank Phillips is the only white man to be adopted and become a chief of the Osage tribe. His warrior name is Hulah Kihekah (Eagle Chief).

I have been trying to think, while doing today's chore, of at least one person utterly unaffected by trying days through which all have been passing. The nearest to this anomaly is a night elevator man I pass on walks with my dog after midnight. He tilts in a chair in the rear of his building, always calling out some cheery message. Not once have I heard a note of gloom. Even in his last talk, when he told me he had been dismissed, he said: "But times are going to improve and I'll soon have a better job."

O, yes, and Lisle Bell finds a note of cheer in the fact hundreds of ex-truck drivers are now walking the streets.

During an interlude, too, I picked up the phone and became en-rapport with a crossed connection. A soft feminine voice purred: "Naturally I don't expect the things I used to have—. Nor do I expect to starve either. You don't have to come to see me but you are—and get this!—going to send me a check every month or be smeared all over the tabloids."

* * *

The most exciting eavesdropping on the telephone, however, was in a West 72nd street hotel years ago. Shortly before dawn a phone in a bedroom adjoining mine rang. In the stillness the answers of a woman could be heard clearly. "You mean he knows," inquired her excitedly shrill voice. A few moments later a blood-curdling scream, a bustle in the halls and eight floors below a crumpled body on a flagstone court. It developed a philandering wife had been warned by a sister-in-law that her husband had traced her to this hotel. And was outside with private detectives.

Daughter Is Advised Against Marrying Into Poverty By Dying Mother

CHAPTER I.

The voice of the dying woman was faint and dry like the faint rustle of an autumn leaf. All of the others except Mary, in grievous hush, had been excluded from the small bedroom at the request of Mrs. Kennedy herself.

"Mary—do you remember what I always told you about—"

"Yes, mamma. Only you mustn't tire yourself out worrying. The doctor's orders were for you just to rest all you can, right now."

Mary Kennedy sat on the side of the bed, her two warmly vital palms clasping the thin, work-worn hand of her mother.

"You always was the dearest of the lot to me, child—" The words were but faint whisperings and the young girl had to bend her head to catch them. "I couldn't bear to die if I thought you would have to endure the same life I've had to live. Promise me you won't—"

Slowly the eyes closed and her head moved slightly to one side. For an instant Mary thought her mother had dropped asleep, as indeed she had . . . forever.

A giant hand, charged with some terrific electricity, clutched and squeezed Mary Kennedy's heart until she was stiff and numb throughout her whole young body. It was the end of a humble, inconspicuous tragedy. Just for a minute, before she called the others, Mary sat there remembering with acute intensity the bitter plaint of her mother's last years. From constant repetition it had assumed the authority of a creed. Just by closing her eyes, even now, she could hear her mother repeating the passionate advice of a frustrated life—the grim legacy of the vanquished.

"Don't you ever marry yourself into poverty and drudgery, child." Her mother's voice, usually so tired, had always become charged with fierce energy when she talked thus secretly to Mary.

"Love is beautiful, but if you marry a shiftless man it will make your life a hell on earth. You'll be his slave instead of his wife—and it ain't worth it, child. Your youth and beauty will be gone before you know it. You'll be looking at life behind a stack of dirty dishes. Don't tell me poverty is honorable—poverty is a wild animal that will claw the soul out of your body. Don't give your life to a shiftless man because he'll use you for a doormat all your days. It's just as easy to love a rich man as a poor man, and only fools and liars say different!"

END OF THE HOME

Why ever since she could remember Mary Kennedy had been hearing the same thing from her mother—but now she'd never hear it again!

With her face dead white, Mary Kennedy walked into the stuffy parlor of the Brooklyn flat that was her home and told the others that death had arrived. Only then did grief openly assail her and, with the rest, she wept. Even in anguish, she was beautiful, small, round-limbed, piquant of face. Deep blue eyes and gold hair . . . smooth, fragrant skin. . .

It was the end of the home. Her whole life, within two short weeks, had released itself from the old groove. Her father had welcomed the offer of a room in the apartment of Mary's sister, Kathleen. Jack Osborne, Kathleen's husband, had pointed out that the three-year-old twins, both girls, would occupy a lot of the old man's attention and keep him from grieving. Mary's father was an outside man with a big insurance company, and such portion of his meager salary that would go for his board and room with Jack and Kathleen would come in handy for the young couple. Kathleen, like her mother, had married poor. Jack was employed by an electrical firm and devoted his evenings to tinkering and puttering with radios. Already Kathleen's eyes—she was still young—had begun to dim. They had neither servant nor car and, burdened with the twins, her once supple body had started to take on a racky loseness. By the purchase of a davenport (on a dignified system of a deferred credit) it would have been possible to establish Mary in the radio-strewn room.

SISTER'S GAYETY GONE

"Of course you'll always be welcome in my house, sister," Kathleen had said, "and you can keep your clothes in my closet. I know it will be kind of crowded with the children and all, but it would mean keeping the family together."

There was a weary goodness about Kathleen that set up a tingle in Mary's heart. Poor Kathleen! The biggest thrill she could look forward to was a Saturday night visit to a crowded movie house. Jack Osborne was kind enough to her, but this crowded little house was his limit. Mary remembered him in his courting days, a slim youth with natty clothes and a Panama hat. He had taken Kathleen on Sunday trips up the Hudson and once they had gone with a crowd of young people to spend the week-end at Lake George. But it was all gone now, that expectant gayety on Kathleen's face and his. Oh, perhaps they weren't less happy than any other poor young married couple, but—

"It's awfully sweet of you to want me to live here with you, Kathleen, but I'm not going to impose on you," Mary told her sister definitely. "I'm going to get a room over on the Manhattan side closer to my job. But, of course, we'll see lots of each other."

The truth was that Mary Kennedy had no job at all. During her absence from the office throughout her mother's last illness, another stenographer had taken permanent possession of her desk. What she did have was a few nice clothes, a hundred dollars in a savings bank and now that the shock was wearing away, a lifting sensation in her heart. For the first time in her life she was on her own—she was free!

REJECTS SUITOR

On West Eighty-sixth street she found a tiny cubicle of a room for $8 a week. The future held no immediate economic terror. She was a highly competent stenographer and therefore always sure of employment in a city where stenographic competency is a miracle. No,

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I can't answer all the telegrams and letters, but I want to take this means of thanking the most people that ever wired or wrote me on anything, asking for copies of my little speech over the radio for the unemployed. I will send them copies as soon as I can think of what I said. Dozens of community chests want to use it as an ad. Sorry it wasn't the usual "hooey" on the subject, for some paper would have published it and saved me all the trouble. What made me feel kinder proud was that while I got after the "big men" yet it was the big men that sent me the fine wires. Mr. Gifford and Owen D. Young said: "It was the best speech ever would be made on the subject." Edsel Ford wants a copy for his father. Not forgetting Senator Borah. I am going over the flying field to get my good friend, Pat Hurley. Going to try and make him stay all night with me. Yours, WILL.

ROBBER HUNTED IN HOSPITALS

Swissvale police today are checking all hospitals and doctors in that section for a Negro robber who was wounded early this morning by Police Lieut. Andrew A. Farina after an attempt to break into a chain store at Monongahela and Burton avenues. The officer reported he was certain the bandit was struck by one of his bullets.

Two other places were also robbed.

From the Home Circle grocery store at 1822 Braddock avenue, 158 pennies and keys were taken from the register. A camera, two revolvers and groceries were stolen from the store of Sam Daddaro, 1711 Monongahela avenue, police said.

Permit for the new $1,500,000 Presbyterian Eye and Ear Hospital to be erected as a part of Pittsburgh's new medical center, in Lathrop street, near Pitt Stadium, was issued yesterday by H. L. URGE COMBINED DELIVERIES

Advantages to the customer through a combined delivery service of local department stores were being discussed by retail management experts before the closing sessions today of the annual conference of the Research Bureau of Retail Training, University of Pittsburgh, in William Penn Hotel.

Customers would benefit through the combined delivery service while the stores would reduce operating expenses, it was pointed out. Advantages to the customers would be in increasing delivery from 30 to approximately 70 miles thereby reaching a greater number of people; extension of two-a-day delivery service and faster service.

Other vital problems dealing with the rendering of service by the stores included discussions on returned goods and alterations on low priced articles. The discusions were carried on by local executives including Howard E. Lovett and Joseph M. Myers, of Kaufmann's; H. M. Phifer, Joseph Horne Company; C. A. Marsh, Gimbel Brothers, and R. R. Grubbs, McCreery and Company.

Methods of presenting changes in management systems to gain the utmost benefits were discussed under the leadership of Miss Natalie Kneeland, executive secretary of the bureau. The conference, which has been in session since Tuesday closes tonight with a banquet. Paul H. Nystrom, professor of the School of Business, Columbia University, will be the principal speaker. Phillip J. Reilly, of the Retail Research Association, New York, will be introduced as toastmaster by A. H. Burchfield, president, Joseph Horne Company.

That the department manager and the publicity director should know how to present items to the public just when they are wanted was the keynote of a talk at yesterday's session by Arthur C. Kaufmann, vice-president of McCreery and Company. Emphasizing the importance of these two executives, he said:

"A department manager must possess the ability to find the most-wanted item in his department and have plenty of it at the price people wish to pay. Then the publicity director must be able to sense not alone news value but selling possibilities in these items in which the department manager may not recognize these two important essentials."

3 OTHERS HELD IN HOMESTEAD VOTE ROWS

Decision Delayed on Claim Intoxicant Was Given to Poll Officials on Duty

Otto Stafford, Homestead borough councilman, is at liberty under $1,000 bond today following a hearing before Alderman Louis Wicks, of Oakland, in which he was charged with incapacitating two election boards of the borough on the night of the primary election by giving them wine.

Alderman Wicks reserved decision in the case last night after Attorney Joseph Pasaflume, representing Stafford, contended that no proof had been submitted that the liquid which councilman gave the election board members was wine.

INTIMIDATION CHARGED

Stafford also was charged with soliciting votes and intimidating voters.

Three other Homesteaders were arraigned with Stafford.

Thomas Gillespie, a Homestead policeman, charged with harrassing and intimidating voters, was held for court under a $1,000 bond.

Albert S. Pryel was held for court under similar bond, charged with assault and battery in connection with the alleged ejection of Mrs. Elizabeth Schmidt from a polling place in the Third Ward, Homestead.

Frank Cosgrove, arraigned on a charge similar to that against Gillespie, was placed under $1,000 bond for a later trial when Frank Riordan, a detective employed by supporters of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, informed the alderman that his witness could not appear until later in the week.

The witnesses testifying against Councilman Stafford were William McGettigan, John Roberts, Hughey White and William Ackerman, all of Homestead.

BOARD 'AFFECTED'

They told Alderman Wicks Stafford entered the polling places in the First and Second Districts of the Fifth Ward and gave board members drinks from a glass jug half-filled with a liquid which they believed to be wine.

After drinking, the witnesses testified, the election officials were "visibly affected," some of those in the Second District deserting their posts with their work unfinished over the protests of the judge of election, who finished the tabulation of votes with volunteer assistants.

Budget Paring Revives That Old Shell Game

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Balancing the budget is the old shell game played with three derby hats and a grape fruit.

Instead of borrowing from Peter to pay Paul you borrow from both and pay nobody.

Our national pastime is budget whittling. Chipping a little here and a little there gives us a grand total of a little.

The process is what the racketeer defines as chiseling. In comparison with picayune diplomacy we must class robbing the poor box as grand larceny.

Premier Laval rates a salute of 19 guns. If he is smart he will count them. We are liable to economize and give him 18 guns and a razzberry.

In an effort to cool off the adding machine we have skeletonized the Army, dehydrated the Navy and mummified government bureaus.

Come to think of it, no administration has made a dime since we stopped fooling the Indians with printed gingham and glass beads.

Non-Support Not Ground For Divorce, Court Rules

Non-support of a wife by a husband is not ground for granting a divorce, Judge Samuel H. Gardner ruled in Common Pleas Court in denying a decree asked by Mrs. Mae Richter, of 144 Dithridge street, from Albert Richter.

She worked and provided household expenses and he spent his money on himself, refusing to help pay for the furniture, she said, also declaring:

"He came home and ate the things I worked for and wouldn't provide for me."

They were married July 16, 1916, in Connellsville, and she left him in September, 1924, she said. Her only claim to a divorce, in addition to non-support, was that Richter stayed out all night on occasions, Judge Gardner pointed out.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Eaton, 1641 Suburban avenue, averred her wedded life lasted less than two months, in her divorce suit against William Ross Eaton, of Chicago, filed in Common Pleas Court. They were married December 28, 1927, and he deserted her February 26, 1928, she alleged.

ALPERN PLEDGES FIGHT ON OAKLAND TOWN HALL SITE

DELAYS SCORED BY LIBERAL CANDIDATE

Project in Schenley Farms Seen as 'White Elephant;' Residents' Protests Cited

Louis Alpern, Liberal candidate for County Commissioner, has pledged support to locating the proposed Town Hall either on the North Side or Downtown, if the Supreme Court overrules the present selection of a site in Oakland.

In making his pledge, Alpern said that he could never understand why "after the voters had authorized the Town Hall by their approval of the bond issue, there should have been so much delay in picking the site and getting started." He declared:

"I could never understand the reasoning and logic of the present board of Commissioners in arriving at a decision on the Nicola site.

"The present Commissioners asked the public for suggestions. Numerous sites were suggested. Public hearings were held. The only selection of the city where the majority of taxpayers and residents protested against placing of the Town Hall in their midst was the Schenley Farms section.

"It seems to me very plain that the Town Hall in Schenley Farms is bound to be a 'white elephant' and a burden on the taxpayers."

MORRY BOOTERS MEET ROVERS

By TOM BIRKS

East End fans following the fortunes of soccer football will have their first National Amateur Cup game to become enthused over on Saturday afternoon. The Morrys, of Castle Shannon, clash with the Pittsburgh Rovers at Leslie Park.

In Central League warfare, the outstanding battle finds the green-clad Celtics, cocky since their victory over the Union Switch and Signal team, hooking up with the Clan Douglas outfit at Sanders Field in Aspinwall.

The meeting of the champions and Celtics probably will flash one of the finest soccer games of the season. Both clubs are still in the undefeated class.

Fleming and Farra, of the Celtics, got loose in the final mnutes of the game and Brown, together with Clough, were caught flat-floot and, before any of the Swissvalers could realize what was happening, Farra flashed the ball into the net.

Swissvale fans did not feel that the Celtic defense could stop Angus McNair and Nelson, but it did. Marshall also failed to impress.

Switch meets National Tube on Saturday, and it is hard to see the Tubers holding the Campbell aggregation. Campbell talked to the boys last evening and it will be a fighting bunch that clashes with the Tubers on Saturday.

The German Sport Club meets Westinghouse. Westinghouse is not impressive enough to win many games with any team in the loop.

Church Aid Society Names New Officers

The Third District Aid Society of the First Methodist Episcopal Church has elected new officers. They are: President, Mrs. John Taylor; vice president, Mrs. James B. Ball; secretary, Mrs. E. R. Rowland; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Stagg; treasurer of the flower fund, Mrs. Ralph Fritzinger. Members plan a Halloween social party for October 27 at the home of Mrs. O. E. Jones, on Fourth street, North Braddock.

Efimove to Offer Jewish Folk Music

Swissvale Adopts High License For Peddlers

Swissvale Borough has taken steps to protect its merchants from competition of "transient merchants" by passing an ordinance providing for a license fee of $200 a month for out-of-town individuals and firms wishing to establish short-time retailing activities in the borough. The measure was indorsed by the Swissvale Chamber of Commerce.

Peabody Club Hears Talk by Dr. Hance

Dr. Robert G. Hance, of the zoology department of the University of Pittsburgh, addressed the members of the Zoology Club of Peabody High School on "The Work Zoologists Are Doing in Tracking Down Human Diseases." He said:

MARY E. MODROVICH

TUBERS FLASH GRID FORM

East End fans certainly packed their way into Olympia Park last Sunday for the Akron game with the Olympics and were rewarded with the best game of the season in the Tube City. Sullivan, the old East Pittsburgh player, was a tower of strength in the Tube City lineup and smacked his way into many of the plays.

East End fans will have to travel this week-end. The Olympics make the trip to West View to meet the Parkers, and only one game will be played in the lightweight section.

East Pittsburgh Firemen still are keeping the fires burning at the Quarry Stadium. Last Sunday the Garrity club lost a tough ball game to the McChesneytown outfit, which, by the way, is trying to build up a club good enough to get in the Independent Gridiron Conference next season.

Cy McGinnis has charge of the team and the next assignment will be at New Kensington on Wednesday evening when the team clashes with Burns.

Two years ago McChesneytown was the best club on the local gridiron, but internal troubles broke up the team.

McChesneytown was the only independent club that played the typical college football on local lots and should the scheme to build an enclosed park just outside of Latrobe go through, then the managers in the loop may admit this club to the circuit.

In the Lightweight Conference, the East Liberty Papales are going at a sensational clip. They are unbeaten, but whether they can overtake the flying Broadway club is another question.

Sorority to Hold Halloween Party

Members of the Beta Alpha Tau Sorority will hold a Halloween party October 30 at the home of Helen Perlut, 5710 Hobart street.

PITT SLASHES NON-ATHLETIC EXPENSES

$7,000 Taken From Budget Eliminates Parties, Cuts Drama, Debating Funds

With $7,000 slashed from its previous annual budget of $25,000, the University of Pittsburgh non-athletic activities program for 1931-32 will be operated on a close schedule. Funds of all such activities have been cut by Walter Rome, graduate manager of non-athletic activities, and have been approved by the advisory board of student activities.

All extra functions such as teas, dinners and parties will be eliminated from the programs this year as a result.

The principal expenditures for student council will be for the Yuletide festival and the printing of election ballots.

Because of the small budget, there will be a curtailment in the annual trips of the university's debating team. Cap and Gown, Pitt Players and the musical organizations also will cut the costs of their annual shows.

$25 for Your Old Washer When You Purchase a New 2-Tub Damp-Dryer EASY WASHER $165

This is just a short-time offer for such a liberal allowance, so take advantage of it right now.

Both the Easy Vacuum Cup type and the Easy Agitator type are included in this offer. Hundreds of women claim the new Easy is the most outstanding washer in years—They like its Safety, by replacing the old-fashioned wringer with the Damp-Dryer, by keeping all moving parts enclosed—They like its two separate tubs, for washing and rinsing, or damp-drying at the same time.

The large tub of the new Easy washes a big 8-lb. load of clothes (equal to 6 double sheets). One-third larger than most so-called "family size" washers—this extra capacity saves one-third your washing time.
